MR. LEACH of the Forum, asked Prince William, second son of the Swedish king, to luncheon yesterday, and showed him the "important editors." The prince, earnest, pleasant young man, much more than six feet high, returned the compliment by showing moving pictures of the mountain gorilla that he killed in Africa, also a leopard devouring a zebra, just killed.

Modern women would be interested in the prince's pictures of African pygmies, including a young mother with one baby in front nursing, another hanging on her back with its little legs wrapped around the mother's waist.

Prince William shot his mountain gorilla as it charged at him, only three yards away. The gorilla ran 50 yards and died. It weighed 400 pounds, knew nothing about any divinity hedging a king, and would have torn the plucky young Swede to pieces had it covered those last three yards.

American youth will want to know that Prince William has diamonds in his cuff buttons, wears a black coat with braid on the edges, but without any tails, long striped trousers and has a thin waist that would fill the stout American business man with envy.

In addition to the dull collection of "leading editors," with faces far less interesting than that of the gorilla killed on the mountains of the moon, Mr. Leach had collected inter-

Review-Tribune Offers Its Readers New Map of Europe

For years our maps have changed the spelling of names in Europe to suit our American pronunciations.

Now our postal authorities, travel agencies, geographers and business houses have decided it is sensible to spell European names as Europeans do. We would laugh if they spelled our cities to match their own pronunciations or accents.

The new map of Europe, just off the newly made plates, shows the new and old spellings, the new and old boundaries, and other post-war changes. Not much like the maps we studied in the old school geographies. Our Washington Information Bureau has secured the first printing of the new maps, exclusively for our readers.

Full colors, finely printed, 21 by 28 inches, with complete statistical data and charts. Our readers may have copies at a postage and handling charge of but ten cents each.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD UPHOLDS MAYOR FOGO IN "FIRING" FULTZ

Three Charges Against Deposed Department Head Sustained.

FIGHT GOES ON

Accused Officer Will Carry Case to Lisbon Court.

Mayor W. L. Fogo's suspension of Chief of Police John H. Fultz, of Wellsville, on charges of disrespect, disobedience and conduct unbecoming an officer, was sustained by the Wellsville civil service commission in a written opinion handed down today.

The former chief announced immediately he will appeal the finding to common pleas court, Lisbon.

Aftermath of Pugia Arrest.

The decision of the commission follows a one-night hearing last week in which six witnesses were examined by the prosecution, including City Hall Patrolman John Duncan, William Taylor, a garage owner; George Davis, newspaper publisher; Mayor Fogo; Fultz and James Pugia, whose arrest and arraignment in police court here precipitated the break between the mayor and the police chief.

Pugia was arrested by the chief and Patrolman John Cole on charges of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Pugia was brought into court and dismissed by Mayor Fogo, the latter deeming a small quantity of liquid in a bottle insufficient evidence to convict the accused. Fultz then pocketed the bottle and refused to surrender it to the mayor's demands.

Second Suspension.

Fultz's suspension today is his second since the early part of last year. Twelve charges were preferred against the office, by Mayor Fogo in the first removal and lengthy hearings were held both before the commission and the court of common pleas. The court of appeals finally affirmed the lower court's decision reinstating Fultz.

Members of the commission handing down the decision today, include Dwight McLean, chairman; A. C. Fogo and Harry Hammond.

DAHLIA SOCIETY MEETING FRIDAY

Meeting of the East Liverpool Dahlia society will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Little building Friday night.

Session of the board of directors of the chamber, announced for Friday night, has been moved up to Thursday night.

Meeting of executives of the City Industrial Baseball league has been called for the chamber's quarters on Friday, January 21.

Akron Bans "Black Bottom."

AKRON, O., Jan. 12.—"The Black Bottom" has been banned here by George E. McCord, superintendent of public schools. In a letter to all principals of schools, McCord declared that students recently have participated in the dance which he believes to be immoral and ugly.

Three Shorthand Reporters on Job In Lisbon Court

For the first time in county history, three court stenographers are now employed at Lisbon. This has been made necessary on account of two branches of common pleas court being in session, and with records accumulating rapidly it was impossible for the two reporters, Miss Alice Glenn, of Lisbon, and Miss Minnie Higgins, of Wellsville, to keep up with the task. Miss Edna Callahan, of Dayton, is filling the third place.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Strong opposition to the administration's "Big Stick" policy in Central America was registered on both sides of the Capital tody.

While Secretary of State Kellogg, behind closed doors, explained to the semi-hostile senate committee on foreign relations the reasons for the concentration of 15 warships and 5,000 bluejackets in the Caribbean, the house committee on foreign affairs staged a quarrelsome open session at which the Coolidge-Kellogg policy was denounced and defended.

Kellogg surrounded his appearance before the senate committee with unusual precautions of secrecy. He insisted upon the regular committee stenographer being dispensed with, and substituted one of his own, from the state department. He then proceeded to read a long prepared statement of the events leading up to the establishment of a virtual protectorate over Nicaragua, and the president's warning to Mexico to keep "hands off" in that republic. He had not concluded the statement when the senate convened at noon and the session continued long after the noon hour.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The administration's "big stick" policy in Central America came face to face with its senatorial critics today when Secretary of State Kellogg made his long-delayed appearance before the senate foreign relations committee to explain and defend the concentration of 15 warships and 5,000 men in Caribbean waters.

Secretary Kellogg was accompanied to the capitol by a number of aides bearing brief cases and portfolios of Police have been asked to search for a Ford touring car, 1926 model belonging to Elmer Crawford, insurance agent, of 1514 Allison street, stolen while parked on Broadway between 9 and 10 o'clock last night. The machine carried license plates No. No. 387-005.

DON MELLETT'S SLAYER HAS NO PARDON HOPE, COURT RULES

Sentence Meted Out in Killing of Canton Editor.

NADEL GUILTY

Cleveland Man Convicted of Hiding Pat After Crime.

CANTON, Jan. 12.—Patrick Eugene McDermott, convicted of slaying Don R. Mellett, Canton published on July 16 last, was today sentenced by Judge E. W. Diehl in common pleas court to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary without hope of pardon or parole.

E. L. Mills, counsel for McDermott made a motion for a new trial which was overruled by Judge Diehl. Mills gave notice that he would appeal the verdict of Pat's guilt to a higher court. He has forty days from today in which to file an appeal.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 12.—Motion for a new trial will be filed it was announced today, by attorneys for Ben Nadel, convicted here late yesterday of having financed and hidden Patrick McDermott, while the latter hid for three months from police who sought him for the murder of Don R. Mellett.

Nadel is to be sentenced by Judge Walter McMahon in common pleas court Friday. The crime carries a penalty of from one to seven years in the penitentiary.

Although Nadel and McDermott both testified that they never before had seen each other, state witnesses swore that the former acted as "angel" for Pat during his flight, maintaining him in an East Side apartment.

The jury, composed of eight women and four men, deliberated about one hour.

William T. Grimm, 83, Drops Dead in His Home at Calcutta

William T. Grimm, 83, retired grocer, dropped dead yesterday of heart disease in his home at Calcutta.

Mr. Grimm, who was born and spent his entire life in Calcutta, was a veteran of the Civil war and for many years was proprietor of a general store at Grimm's bridge.

He is survived by two sons and two daughters: Robert, East Liverpool; Roy, Calcutta; Mrs. Gertrude Hameric, Martins Ferry, and Mrs. Edward Martin, Seattle, Wash.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 2:30 Friday afternoon, in charge of Rev. C. R. Cheeks, pastor of the Calcutta United Presbyterian church. Burial will be made in Long's Run cemetery.

KIWANIS CLUB MEETS TOMORROW

Duties of committees will be outlined at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club to be held in the Larkins annex, Market street, tomorrow noon. The meeting will be in charge of Dr. W. A. Hobbs, who has asked that all chairmen and members of their committees attend the meeting.

40 Columbus High School Girls Will Run City One Day

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12.—Forty Columbus high school girls will try their hands at "Ma" Ferguson's hand of running a government, when they will be given charge of the administration of the municipal machinery here for one day, Jan. 18. They are members of the girl reserves, and will hold down the jobs of mayor, safety director and other important city department heads.

THREE MEXICAN TOWNS RETAKEN FROM REBELS

Three Other Cities Reported Held by Revolutionists.

RELIGIOUS WAR

Twenty-six Killed in Two Clashes in Jailisco.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—Three small Mexican towns have been recaptured from rebels while three others are reported to now be in the hands of Revolutionists, according to dispatches received here today, indicating that the warfare of religious zealots has not been entirely stifled by the government.

Two clashes between rebels and Federals in Jailisco, in the towns of Arandas and Tottelan, are reported to have resulted in the death of 26 rebels and the scattering of the remainder of the bands.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—With orders for summary executions of rebels, General Jose Escobar has been placed in command of the federal forces assigned to suppress the rebels who are active in northern and central Mexico, fighting under banners inscribed "Viva Christ, the King."

Meanwhile a statement has been issued from the presidential palace charging that fanatical religious outbreaks have been inspired by the Catholic Episcopate under the leadership of Bishop Diaz and Rene Capistran Garza, who has been active on the border.

Lorraine Coleman Is Arrested on Non-support Count

Lorraine Coleman was brought to the city jail by Sheriff George Wright today to await a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley upon a charge of non-support preferred by his wife, Mrs. Martha Coleman, in behalf of her four-months-old daughter, Marcella.

Coleman was arrested at the home of his father, William Coleman, employed on the Scott farm in Elkrun township, Tuesday afternoon. He will be given a hearing before Judge Hanley this afternoon or Thursday morning.

Law Against Libeling Dead.

TOLEDO, Jan. 12.—The Ohio State Bar association which will open its mid-winter meeting here January 27 is to sponsor a law which would make libeling of the dead as illegal as against the living. It would provide a fine of $500 and six months imprisonment for violators.

JUDGE LANDIS ACQUITS STARS OF CHARGES OF SOX-TIGER 'SLOUGHING'

High Commissioner of National Pastime Finds Eddie Collins, Donie Bush, Ray Schalk and Others Not Guilty of Allegations Made by Risberg and Gandil.

PAST AND PRESENT DIAMOND PERFORMERS ABSOLVED OF BLAME

Chieftain, Who Upholds Testimony of Accused Men, Makes no Reference to Cases of Cobb and Speaker and Does Not Rule on "Buck" Weaver's Application.

By C. COPELAND BURG.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, today exonerated leading Detroit and Chicago baseball players of charges they "threw" games in 1917.

The diamond czar decided there was no truth in the charges of Charles "Swede" Risberg that the Chicago White Sox paid the Detroit Tigers for "sloughing" them a series of games.

Judge Landis also ruled there was no 'sloughing" in the games of September, 1919, "except possibly" by Risberg and "Chick" Gandil, another Black Sox player, who jointly charged the Sox and Tigers with "crookedness."

Only a group of newspapermen was present in the commissioners' office when he announced his decision in a five-page document.

The concluding paragraph of Judge Landis' decision was as follows:

"It is the finding of the commissioner that the fund raised by the Chicago players about September 28, 1917, was not collected or paid to Detroit players for "sloughing" to Chicago the games of September 2 and 3, 1917, but was paid because of Detroit's beating Boston; that there was no 'sloughing" of the September 2 and 3, 1917, games, nor of the September 26, 27 and 28, 1919, games, except possibly by Risberg and Gandil."

Scores Risberg and Gandil.

Eddie Collins of Philadelphia; Donie Bush, Pittsburgh Pirates' manager, and Ray Schalk, new pilot of the Chicago White Sox, as well as the thirty other diamond stars, past and present, were absolved of all blame by Landis, who upheld the testimony of the accused men that they had merely given the Detroit team a present for winning games from Boston club at a time when Boston was close at the heels of the Sox in the pennant race.

By making the charges against Collins, Bush and other prominent players Risberg and Gandil had nothing to lose, the commissioner ruled. His decision said anent this feature:

"To some it may seem inexplicable that Risberg and Gandil should implicate themselves in these alleged corrupt practices. Obviously, that self-implication may have been conceived upon the theory that 'they have in criminated themselves, so it must be true.' However, being already on the ineligible list, this would not affect them and it might blacken 'the lily whites.' "

No Action on Weaver's Request.

Judge Landis made no reference today to the cases of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, ousted Detroit and Cleveland managers. He said no application for a rehearing of the charges made against these men by "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, had been filed with him as yet.

The commissioner also took no action on the application of "Buck" Weaver, banned White Sox player, who has asked to be returned to baseball, declaring he was innocent of the 1919 scandal.

Ruling on 1919 Series.

In relation to the charges that two games of a three-game series of the Sox and Detroit teams in 1919 were "sloughed" the commissioner said:

"In addition to the charge of sloughing the September 2 and 3, 1917, series, Risberg alleges that Chicago

Toledo Pyromaniac Applies Torch to Storage Warehouse

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 12.—Toledo's pyromaniac plied his torch again today causing damage estimated at $250.000 and bringing total losses attributed to the fire bug of nearly $1,500,000 during the last 60 days.

Today's blaze occurred at the Moreton Storage company's warehouse where the flames had gained such headway before discovery that lives of firemen were endangered by falling walls.

Dozens of automobiles and quantities of merchandise owned by Baumgardner and company, stored in the warehouse, were destroyed.

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

(Copyright, 1927, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—"Peaches" Browning still loves her elderly millionaire husband, Edward W. ("Daddy") Browning, but she'll never go back to him, her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Chamberlain Heenan, declared in an exclusive interview today.

"She is afraid of him," said Mrs Heenan. "Why, he used to sleep with a gun at the side of their bed and act so strangely. She was an innocent child when she married Browning but when she left him she was a physical wreck."

It was the first interview granted by Mrs. Heenan since she and "Peaches" suddenly and dramatically packed up last fall at New Gardens inn the honeymoon retreat of Brownings, and left Browning "flat. Mrs. Heenan and "Peaches" since have been in seclusion in their fashionable uptown apartment and have not talked to reporters on advice of counsel. "Mamma" is spokesman for "Peaches."

Mrs. Heenan scoffed at the statement made in court yesterday by Browning's attorney that the millionaire was "dragged into" his marriage with "Peaches."

"We are not gold diggers," said Mrs. Heenan spiritedly. "My daughter didn't marry Browning for his money and furthermore she didn't propose to him. My girl is a saddened and disillusioned young wife—a mighty changed girl."

"Peaches" is going through with her forthcoming suit for separation and is prepared to take the witness stand much as she recoils from such an ordeal, her mother said. Mrs. Heenan talked frankly and freely, sketching the high spots in "Peaches" life from the time she was born sixteen years ago to their pretty home at 116 East Fifth avenue, Columbus, Ohio, up to the time of the collapse of her romance with Browning the famous adopter of young girls and widely known as a "prince charming."

"All this publicity, this notoriety that Mr. Browning dotes on, my daughter detests," said Mrs. Heenan. "Babe is naturally a retiring girl with the most domestic tastes. She never wrote that diary credited to her. Mr. Browning had it published.

"Her romance wasn't a case of flaming youth and a man at the dangerous age. Babe wasn't the jazz, wild young type. She was just a wholesome, winsome high school girl when she met Mr. Browning at a sorority dance. What change was wrought in her was brought about by Mr. Browning."

To show how domesticated "Peaches" is, Mrs. Heenan escorted the reporter into her daughter's orchid and green boudoir to see "all the things Babe made herself."

"Old Fashioned Home Girl."

"She would make the right kind of a man a mighty good wife," commented Mrs. Heenan proudly. "She's the old-fashioned home girl."

"Peaches" herself wasn't home. She was out taking a Turkish bath. She is reducing, her mother smilingly explained. She will be fashionable.

"I see Mr. Browning makes me out the dreadful mother-in-law who broke up his home," said the genial, 42-year-old Mrs. Heenan. "That isn't true. I didn't interfere in any way until my daughter telephoned me, with tears in her voice, to come to her—that he was mistreating her. What mother would not respond to such an appeal? When I got to her she was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. I am a nurse, and I knew how serious her condition was so we packed up, and I took her away.

"His lawyer said in court yesterday that we 'dragged' Mr. Browning into this marriage. That is another falsehood. Did any one send for Mr Browning when he came to see my daughter, day after day, afternoon and night, bringing her flowers and telling her he couldn't live without her? And what real man would say his wife proposed to him, even if she did, which, however, in this case she did not?

"Money wasn't what we were after. My daughter simply fell in love with his dignified, man-of-the-world manner. I honestly didn't want her to marry so young. We were so happy together. All I wanted from him was that he be kind to her. Instead he bedecked her in trinkets, paraded her about for publicity purposes and soon began treating her most cruelly. That was too much for me."

Denies Browning's Statement.

Mrs. Heenan denied Browning's statement that he took "Peaches" from a poor home. She said when Browning was courting her daughter they were living in an attractive apartment in Iris Gardens. In refuting the insinuation that she is a "gold digger," Mrs. Heenan said that for

Lorraine Coleman Is Arrested on Non-support Count

Lorraine Coleman was brought to the city jail by Sheriff George Wright today to await a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley upon a charge of non-support preferred by his wife, Mrs. Martha Coleman, in behalf of her four-months-old daughter, Marcella.

Coleman was arrested at the home of his father, William Coleman, employed on the Scott farm in Elkrun township, Tuesday afternoon. He will be given a hearing before Judge Hanley this afternoon or Thursday morning.

Law Against Libeling Dead.

TOLEDO, Jan. 12.—The Ohio State Bar association which will open its mid-winter meeting here January 27 is to sponsor a law which would make libeling of the dead as illegal as against the living. It would provide a fine of $500 and six months imprisonment for violators.

JUDGE LANDIS ACQUITS STARS OF CHARGES OF SOX-TIGER 'SLOUGHING'

PAST AND PRESENT DIAMOND PERFORMERS ABSOLVED OF BLAME

Chieftain, Who Upholds Testimony of Accused Men, Makes no Reference to Cases of Cobb and Speaker and Does Not Rule on "Buck" Weaver's Application.

By C. COPELAND BURG.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, today exonerated leading Detroit and Chicago baseball players of charges they "threw" games in 1917.

The diamond czar decided there was no truth in the charges of Charles "Swede" Risberg that the Chicago White Sox paid the Detroit Tigers for "sloughing" them a series of games.

Judge Landis also ruled there was no 'sloughing" in the games of September, 1919, "except possibly" by Risberg and "Chick" Gandil, another Black Sox player, who jointly charged the Sox and Tigers with "crookedness."

Only a group of newspapermen was present in the commissioners' office when he announced his decision in a five-page document.

The concluding paragraph of Judge Landis' decision was as follows:

"It is the finding of the commissioner that the fund raised by the Chicago players about September 28, 1917, was not collected or paid to Detroit players for "sloughing" to Chicago the games of September 2 and 3, 1917, but was paid because of Detroit's beating Boston; that there was no 'sloughing" of the September 2 and 3, 1917, games, nor of the September 26, 27 and 28, 1919, games, except possibly by Risberg and Gandil."

Scores Risberg and Gandil.

Eddie Collins of Philadelphia; Donie Bush, Pittsburgh Pirates' manager, and Ray Schalk, new pilot of the Chicago White Sox, as well as the thirty other diamond stars, past and present, were absolved of all blame by Landis, who upheld the testimony of the accused men that they had merely given the Detroit team a present for winning games from Boston club at a time when Boston was close at the heels of the Sox in the pennant race.

By making the charges against Collins, Bush and other prominent players Risberg and Gandil had nothing to lose, the commissioner ruled. His decision said anent this feature:

"To some it may seem inexplicable that Risberg and Gandil should implicate themselves in these alleged corrupt practices. Obviously, that self-implication may have been conceived upon the theory that 'they have in criminated themselves, so it must be true.' However, being already on the ineligible list, this would not affect them and it might blacken 'the lily whites.' "

No Action on Weaver's Request.

Judge Landis made no reference today to the cases of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, ousted Detroit and Cleveland managers. He said no application for a rehearing of the charges made against these men by "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, had been filed with him as yet.

The commissioner also took no action on the application of "Buck" Weaver, banned White Sox player, who has asked to be returned to baseball, declaring he was innocent of the 1919 scandal.

Ruling on 1919 Series.

In relation to the charges that two games of a three-game series of the Sox and Detroit teams in 1919 were "sloughed" the commissioner said:

"In addition to the charge of sloughing the September 2 and 3, 1917, series, Risberg alleges that Chicago

Toledo Pyromaniac Applies Torch to Storage Warehouse

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 12.—Toledo's pyromaniac plied his torch again today causing damage estimated at $250.000 and bringing total losses attributed to the fire bug of nearly $1,500,000 during the last 60 days.

Today's blaze occurred at the Moreton Storage company's warehouse where the flames had gained such headway before discovery that lives of firemen were endangered by falling walls.

Dozens of automobiles and quantities of merchandise owned by Baumgardner and company, stored in the warehouse, were destroyed.

Fall River, Mass., Playhouse is Swept By $200,000 Fire

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 12.—Empire theatre, a vaudeville and motion picture playhouse, was swept by fire today at a loss estimated at $200,000.

Actors and actresses who had rooms in nearby hotels into the burning theatre saved most of their personal belongings.

20 Persons Frozen To Death as Cold Wave Hits Siberia

MOSCOW, Jan. 12.—Twenty persons were frozen to death today at Turukhansk, Siberia, during an unusually cold wave sweeping that section. The thermometer registered 65 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

"PEACHES" BROWNING STILL LOVES HER ELDERLY MILLIONAIRE HUSBAND, BUT SHE'LL NEVER GO BACK TO HIM, HER MOTHER DECLARES

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

(Copyright, 1927, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—"Peaches" Browning still loves her elderly millionaire husband, Edward W. ("Daddy") Browning, but she'll never go back to him, her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Chamberlain Heenan, declared in an exclusive interview today.

"She is afraid of him," said Mrs Heenan. "Why, he used to sleep with a gun at the side of their bed and act so strangely. She was an innocent child when she married Browning but when she left him she was a physical wreck."

It was the first interview granted by Mrs. Heenan since she and "Peaches" suddenly and dramatically packed up last fall at New Gardens inn the honeymoon retreat of Brownings, and left Browning "flat. Mrs. Heenan and "Peaches" since have been in seclusion in their fashionable uptown apartment and have not talked to reporters on advice of counsel. "Mamma" is spokesman for "Peaches."

Mrs. Heenan scoffed at the statement made in court yesterday by Browning's attorney that the millionaire was "dragged into" his marriage with "Peaches."

"We are not gold diggers," said Mrs. Heenan spiritedly. "My daughter didn't marry Browning for his money and furthermore she didn't propose to him. My girl is a saddened and disillusioned young wife—a mighty changed girl."

"Peaches" is going through with her forthcoming suit for separation and is prepared to take the witness stand much as she recoils from such an ordeal, her mother said. Mrs. Heenan talked frankly and freely, sketching the high spots in "Peaches" life from the time she was born sixteen years ago to their pretty home at 116 East Fifth avenue, Columbus, Ohio, up to the time of the collapse of her romance with Browning the famous adopter of young girls and widely known as a "prince charming."

"All this publicity, this notoriety that Mr. Browning dotes on, my daughter detests," said Mrs. Heenan. "Babe is naturally a retiring girl with the most domestic tastes. She never wrote that diary credited to her. Mr. Browning had it published.

"Her romance wasn't a case of flaming youth and a man at the dangerous age. Babe wasn't the jazz, wild young type. She was just a wholesome, winsome high school girl when she met Mr. Browning at a sorority dance. What change was wrought in her was brought about by Mr. Browning."

To show how domesticated "Peaches" is, Mrs. Heenan escorted the reporter into her daughter's or child and green boudoir to see "all the things Babe made herself."

"Old Fashioned Home Girl."

"She would make the right kind of a man a mighty good wife," commented Mrs. Heenan proudly. "She's the old-fashioned home girl."

"Peaches" herself wasn't home. She was out taking a Turkish bath. She is reducing, her mother smilingly explained. She will be fashionable.

"I see Mr. Browning makes me out the dreadful mother-in-law who broke up his home," said the genial, 42-year-old Mrs. Heenan. "That isn't true. I didn't interfere in any way until my daughter telephoned me, with tears in her voice, to come to her—that he was mistreating her. What mother would not respond to such an appeal? When I got to her she was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. I am a nurse, and I knew how serious her condition was so we packed up, and I took her away.

"His lawyer said in court yesterday that we 'dragged' Mr. Browning into this marriage. That is another falsehood. Did any one send for Mr Browning when he came to see my daughter, day after day, afternoon and night, bringing her flowers and telling her he couldn't live without her? And what real man would say his wife proposed to him, even if she did, which, however, in this case she did not?

"Money wasn't what we were after. My daughter simply fell in love with his dignified, man-of-the-world manner. I honestly didn't want her to marry so young. We were so happy together. All I wanted from him was that he be kind to her. Instead he bedecked her in trinkets, paraded her about for publicity purposes and soon began treating her most cruelly. That was too much for me."

Denies Browning's Statement.

Mrs. Heenan denied Browning's statement that he took "Peaches" from a poor home. She said when Browning was courting her daughter they were living in an attractive apartment in Iris Gardens. In refuting the insinuation that she is a "gold digger," Mrs. Heenan said that for

All's Well on the Potomac

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

"LITTLE GIANT FROM THE SOUTH" UPHOLDS OLD-TIME DEMOCRACY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.— When Representative George Huddleston of Alabama dies or retires from politics the race of Jeffersonian Democrats will have become extinct in Washington.

A few other specimens of the dying species may still lurk in remote fastnesses of the country, but Huddleston is the only one left here.

He's a splendid specimen, too.

It warms the blood of any true believer in what once were Democratic doctrines to hear him speak. In fact, it warms anybody's blood. He's one of the few members of congress who always has a full house whenever he takes the floor.

"AH, there's a man who knows what democracy is."

And it wasn't a Democratic lawmaker, either, who said this, as Huddleston sat down after a short talk the other day. It was a tribute of involuntary admiration for a legislator who speaks from the heart, and the heart of a genuine democrat, at that —with a little "d."

The strange thing is that Huddleston isn't better known. He's known in his own bailiwick, of course, and he's known on Capitol Hill as one of the ablest men who comes to Washington, but he doesn't break into the newspapers on a national scale.

Why he isn't of countrywide renown—for his oddity, if not for his quality — is one of the mysteries to me.

THAT he's re-elected, term after term, isn't peculiar. In Alabama all Democratic nominees are sure of election.

But how does it happen that he's renominated?

He comes from Birmingham.

Now Birmingham is the center of the industrialization of the south. So far has southern industrialization progressed in recent years that the Republicans are figuring on gaining a foothold in spots where manufacturing has become the predominant influence.

"I'm for absolutely free trade."

Huddleston told me this himself, without a qualifying clause.

He said it in an ordinary tone, but it sounded like a clap of thunder in these times, with the rank and file of Democrats hesitant to express themselves favorably even toward tariff reduction.

HOW does Huddleston manage to get himself, not re-elected, which is a matter of course, but renominated?—in a district like his, with the views he holds, and not only holds but voices so boldly.

The only explanation seems to be that his constituents like his nerve.

They also know where he stands—a thing so rare in a politician as to count as a recommendation, perhaps, even to may a voter who stands somewhere else.

HUDDLESTON looks like anything but a scrapper. He's short and slight, with a gentle face, an upturned nose and washed out brown hair.

He's the picture of a political tenderfoot, every inch.

From appearances, any bully should be able to run over him.

But when he unlimbers his artillery —oh, how he can shoot!

Several "gentlemen" — as they call 'em all in congress—have tackled him in debate and been carried out feet first. They refer to him on Capitol Hill as "the little giant from the south."

MRS. M'PHERSON PLANS LECTURE TOUR IN EAST

Woman Evangelist Freed of Conspiracy Charges.

CASE DISMISSED

Friends Urge Her to Demand Trial to Clear Name.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12. — Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, noted woman evangelist, freed of conspiracy charges, today was on her way to the east to begin a lecture tour. On the eve of her departure it was urged that she demand a trial, in order that she might clear her name of the alleged charges.

In spite of the evident relief seen both in the district attorney's office and in Angelus Temple over the dismissal of the case, rumblings of protest were heard in many circles, among which the pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Rev. G. A. Briesleb, was the most emphatic.

"Just why the district attorney, after besmirching a woman's character now finds that he cannot try her, is a question which the district attorney alone can answer," Dr. Breigleb said.

"Mrs. McPherson should demand and get a trial. She should not allow herself to go through life with suspicion against her in the minds of many."

By Aimee Semple McPherson

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12. — Three things have upheld me during these months of trial. There were, first, the kindness, strength and comfort of my heavenly Father; second, my knowledge of my innocence of the charges against me; third, the confidence and trust of my people.

Realizing that I possessed these three aides I never have had any fear of the ultimate outcome of my case.

District Attorney Keyes' statement is ample that my confidence was well grounded. He admits that the evidence against me was not worth bringing into court.

I am glad he found out before further prosecution that Mrs. Wiseman's story was false, just the same as all other attacks on me have been false.

My loyal followers and countless thousands throughout the world, believe in me and know that I have told the truth and I want to thank them for their faith in me, knowing that I would be fully cleared of all falsities.

We shall go on in the work of the Lord.

THREE DAY COLDS THREATEN LUNGS

A cough or cold that hangs on after the third day is a threat.

Do something! Don't wait until the cold has run its course—from your head to your throat — from throat to chest or bronchial tubes. Break up your cold before it settles in this "danger zone"; for inflammation spreads, and your bronchial tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble. With the very first swallow you feel its comforting warmth. You feel its soothing, healing powers reaching deep down into your bronchial tubes. You feel it penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

This healing medication, absorbed into the membranes themselves, breaks up the cold, stops the cough, brings prompt and lasting relief.

If you are catching cold; if you have a "head cold"; if your chest is tight; if you have a cough — even if bronchitis has developed — Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at once!

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—50c; twice as much, $1.00. 2a2c

SISTERS OF CHARITY HAVE PROVEN VALUE OF FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Used it with great success in Children's Home for Coughs and Colds and as a Body Builder.

At the Children's Home in Newburyport, Mass., are many children under the loving care of the Sisters of Charity.

In a signed statement the Sister in charge states:

"We cheerfully endorse Father John's Medicine because in our Home it has become indispensable. We use it, not only for coughs and colds but also as a builder. We tell our friends that we would not be without it. We have used it with great success and find it to have no equal as a builder."

In many similar institutions throughout the country Father John's Medicine is depended upon by the nurses in charge to keep the children well and strong. They know, too, it is entirely safe because it is free from alcohol and harmful drugs.

Many similar letters of endorsement have been received from homes, hospitals, and other institutions. Father John's Medicine is a doctor's prescription that has been successfully used for colds and throat troubles and as a tonic and body builder for more than 70 years.

SISTERS OF CHARITY HAVE PROVEN VALUE OF FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Used it with great success in Children's Home for Coughs and Colds and as a Body Builder.

At the Children's Home in Newburyport, Mass., are many children under the loving care of the Sisters of Charity.

In a signed statement the Sister in charge states:

"We cheerfully endorse Father John's Medicine because in our Home it has become indispensable. We use it, not only for coughs and colds but also as a builder. We tell our friends that we would not be without it. We have used it with great success and find it to have no equal as a builder."

In many similar institutions throughout the country Father John's Medicine is depended upon by the nurses in charge to keep the children well and strong. They know, too, it is entirely safe because it is free from alcohol and harmful drugs.

Many similar letters of endorsement have been received from homes, hospitals, and other institutions. Father John's Medicine is a doctor's prescription that has been successfully used for colds and throat troubles and as a tonic and body builder for more than 70 years.

CHAPTER ELEVEN.

I pulled steadily at the woodwork, and in about ten minutes I had broken down the whole partition, which was of a very flimsy nature. The hole was now large enough for me to force my way through. I was, however, at least sixty feet from the ground, and my next step was to seek for some means to shorten that distance. The couch was useless, since it was covered with shiny yellow silk, well secured at the edges, but the hangings on the wall would, I thought, prove sufficient for my purpose.

I accordingly tore down a large part of the judgment scene. It went to my heart to destroy such exquisite embroidery, but this was no time for vain regrets. The silk, I noted with dismay, was old and not at all strong. I wove it with some difficulty into a rough form of a rope, and, by using most of the embroidery on one of the walls I obtained a length of about forty feet.

I tied my rope to one leg of the couch, and looking out through the hole, made sure that I was unobserved. I then let the rope through the hole down the side of the wall, and saw to my satisfaction that it reached within ten feet or so of the ground. Laying hold of it, I started to climb down. The evening, as I have already said, was fine, but I forgot to mention that there was a strong wind blowing, the local name for which as I heard later, was the "bise." It came from the northwest, and its violence was such that before I had descended ten feet, it had twisted me quite round, so that, instead of facing the wall, I had my back to it, hanging some forty feet above the courtyard, my face turned to the mountains, my body buffeted by the strong breeze. From where I hung, the sigh was lovely. The lake of Geneva had been beaten into long rugged lines of white-capped waves, and the last rays of sunset were striking the topmost peaks of Mount Blanc and the Dome du Gouter.

I did not, however, give much attention to the beauties of the view, but twisted about so as to face the wall again, and start my descent. Suddenly, however, I felt myself going.

The rope had parted, and I fell like a plummet, my knee and one elbow striking the hard, uneven surface of the wall.

It all took place to quickly that I had no time to realize what had happened, but the thought flashed into my head that all was over, when with a terrific splash I was suddenly submerged in water. Down I went till my lungs were bursting and it seemed an age before I shot back to the surface. I could see nothing at first. I appeared to be in pitch darkness, and in an unknown depth of water. Being a fair swimmer, I struck out vaguely, but a couple of strokes brought me hard against a stone wall. I turned on my back, and looking upwards realized what had happened.

I had fallen into a well!

My good fortune had been extraordinary, for the opening had been situated immediately beneath the window from which I had climbed, otherwise I should have been dashed to pieces on the stones of the courtyard. As it was my plight was sufficiently desperate. It semed a case of death deferred rather than avoided. The sides of the well, though not quite smooth, were round and offered very little in the way of foothold, and I must have been fifteen or sixteen feet below the rim. I could see no bucket or windlass of any kind. To add to my miseries the water was very cold, though apparently fresh and clean.

I began to swim slowly round and round to keep myself afloat, while, at the same time, I looked desperately for some means of escape. I had not swum more than a few strokes when I found myself entangled in the silken rope which had fallen with me into the water. Its coils clung to my body and impeded my movements. As I strove to get free of them, my hand struck against a piece of timber about three feet long. This I discovered to be nothing less than the leg and part of the back of the couch to which the rope had been attached. It had not, therefore, been the rope but the couch which had given way under my weight.

I had made more than one fruitless circuit of the well, when kicking out with my left, I failed to encounter the wall. This surprised me, as I had hitherto touched it at every second stroke. I turned again on my back and felt carefully. Then I noticed what had previously escaped my attention—an opening of some size, situated just below the level of the water, apparently at right angles to the main shaft. I dropped my legs and began feeling for its lower edge. Presently I found it, though not before I had been compelled to sing right below the surface. It seemed that the lower edge of the hole was a little more than the height of a man from the top of the water, and I wondered whether it led anywhere, or was merely a recess in the wall. My position in the well was sufficiently desperate to make it well worth while to find out. I decided to explore the passage, taking with me the leg of the couch as a possible weapon and the coil of rope which might very probably be useful. The rope I coiled round my waist, treading the water as I did so, and the leg of the couch I thrust into the girdle which I had thus improvised. It had evidently parted company at the joint, for in itself it was quite stout wood.

I then got as far away from the wall as possible, plunged beneath the water and "duck dived" towards it, grouping with my hands. I soon felt the rough edges of the hole, and pulled myself in with my hands. With a bit of a struggle I was through.

I swam under water through what semed an eternity. Now I had gone too far. The passage was narrow. I found that I was unable to turn! I could not go back, my lungs were bursting, and this was, I thought, the end.

With a desperate effort I raised my head and found to my astonishment that it came clear of the water. I gasped once or twice for breath and discovered that the water was in reality quite shallow, not more than waist deep, and that I might easily have walked the greater part of the distance along the shaft. The air was horribly dank and musty, but pure enough to breathe. I grouped my way forward in pitch black darkness, the water getting lower and lower as I went along, till, at what I judged to be some twenty yards from the well shaft, it ceased altogether, and I found myself in a very narrow passage sloping upwards fairly steeply, and not quite high enough for me to stand upright. I stumbled along, my teeth chattering, wet to the skin and very tired.

After what seemed an eternity, though it was probably only a very short time, my progress came to an abrupt end.

I was brought up short by a barrier which, from the feel of it, appeared to be wood. I halted and felt all over the surface carefully, soon coming to the conclusion that it was some sort of a door. But I could feel no handle or keyhole of any kind, and I wondered miserably what I would better do next. I was caught like a rat in a trap. I do not mind confessing that I was near despair in that horrible darkness, with the unyielding door in front and the water behind. I think indeed I must have lost my nerve and beat wildly on the door, for I found later that my hands were bruised and cut.

I do not know how long I continued there, as the water had put my wrist watch out of action. I only know that after a time I forced myself to some sort of calmness, and that I was beginning to take further stock of my position when, through utter darkness, a sudden shaft of light shot like a sword.

INDIGESTION MAKING YOU MISERABLE?

See How Quick Improvement Comes

Do you suffer the tortures of this typical American malady? Are you afraid to eat the food you like? Do pains and discomforts after eating drive you mad?

You need Plant Juice, the pleasant tasting, natural remedy of herbs, roots, barks, leaves and blossoms. It is Nature's way to stimulate your liver and your bowels. Safe and quick in action.

Read Mrs. Mary Bowers' experience—Mrs. Bowers writes from Cabin 13, 11th Street Bridge, Wilmington, Del.:

"Four years ago I was just miserable from indigestion, gas bloating, headaches, and dizzy spells. To eat anything meant only to suffer, and such headaches would come on that I felt like my head would burst. I had such dizzy attacks I had to sit down. I began taking Plant Juice, and after my sixth bottle I was like a new person. It just put my stomach in perfect condition, rid me of all the headaches, dizziness, and gas bloating, so that I did not have a sign of distress left. Plant Juice put me in splendid health, which I have enjoyed ever since."

If the first bottle of Plant Juice makes you feel a lot better don't stop taking it. Give this good old remedy a chance to do some real good. Let it tone up your system and get you good and clean.

Here's Real Relief From the Torturing Pains of Neuritis

Men and Women Everywhere Seldom Fail to Get Quick Relief from Pain and Suffering

When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to some good druggist and get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2 which comes in capsule form.

Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced if not entirely banished those persisting nerve racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights.

While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful, Gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in most forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.

You needn't be afraid of its containing dope of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and can at the best give only partial relief.

Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. J. D. Holloway and Mathew's Medicine Store sell lots of it.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatism pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 114 West Main street, Johnson Cit, Tenn.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S S S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatism pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 114 West Main street, Johnson Cit, Tenn.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Wanted—Traffic Engineering

The statistician of the National Safety Council says that this year 25,000 persons will die in automobile accidents in the United States "unless more rigid observance of the laws is maintained."

That is probably true, inasmuch as the motor toll of lives in 1926 was nearly 23,000. But it is not exactly a fair way of putting it.

Better observance of traffic laws will help a good deal; there is always room for improvement in that respect. Universal licensing of drivers, with examinations to determine their competency, will help, too. So will all further contributions that drivers can make toward safety in matters outside the field of legislation and official action—courtesy on the road, better knowledge of their car and its operation, etc. Further improvements in cars for fuller control will help. But there is another very important factor outside of all these which may do as much as any of them, possibly as much as all.

That is better engineering of highways.

Motorists want to drive safely, and most of them are good drivers. They get into mix-ups largely because of the traffic jams caused by the fact that streets and roads as laid out are so seldom adapted to the safe passage of modern traffic. Thoroughfares are not wide enough or straight enough. There is too much needless cross-traffic. Street car lines interfere, too much. There are too many "bottle-necks."

A man whose blood had to circulate through a system like that which handles the motor traffic of an ordinary city wouldn't live long. He would die of hardened arteries or thrombosis or heart disease. There would be vital accidents all along the line.

Health Instead of Weight

The Yale University Department of Health pays attention to students' weight and endeavors to fatten those who are found to be too thin. This sounds a little old-fashioned in a period when reducing is the faddish thing. Perhaps it is just a matter of giving the thing a different name.

What the Yale authorities are doing is to make students more healthy. Persons in genuinely good health, whether students or not, do not need either to be reduced or fattened.

There are many persons who need to reduce, not for the sake of style, but for their own good health and efficiency and happiness. There are others who need just as much to put on a few more pounds, the added weight being merely part of a general improvement of health.

Regarding it then as a matter of putting on health or reducing un-health, the methods employed at Yale are worthy of outside note. Students in the nutrition classes are urged to eat their meals regularly, to eat food containing the quantity of calories their systems need, to correct any physical defects or chronic infections, to rest before the evening meal, to get adequate sleep at night and moderate exercise.

That is a regime worth following, not to make oneself fat or lean, but simply well.

Recognition For The Bob

The Beauty Shop Owners of America have now convened and have decided what's to be what about hair—women's hair—and other matters of charm and loveliness. First of all they decided that bobbed hair is to remain, not necessarily because they approve of it, but because their disapproval wouldn't make much difference anyhow.

To the laity it has seemed strange that the beauty shop owners should persist, in their conventions, to bemoan the folly of short locks, while within their professional precincts they have long scorned the courageous or obstinate female who refused to have her hair cut. Bobbed hair, it developed long since, was to the beauty shop business what phonograph and radio were to the concert hall and professional musicians. More people, and particularly phonograph and radio owners, now go to paid concerts than did so a few years ago. More women visit beauty and barber shops than ever before—to have their hair cut if nothing else. And many who go for that initial purpose linger for beauty treatments of one sort and another.

There seems to be no real reason why the hair dressers and beauty shop professionals shouldn't be quite cheerfully resigned to the bobbed head.

Drama Reform From Within

Theatrical producers of New York City had a chance to make their good resolutions early when they were called to a conference with Mayor Walker a short time ago. The mayor asked them to undertake a moral housecleaning "for the protection of the theater and the good name of the city." He wanted them to do this job themselves because he had little faith in censorship.

The producers present at this conference promised to cooperate in carrying out the mayor's wishes. If their efforts are sincere they are likely to meet with success. If they devote more energy to discovering and producing plays that are good artistically and dramatically it will more often than not be true that those plays are sound morally. It is the raising of false standards—mere sensationalism, for one—that puts the wrong sort of theatrical entertainment before the public and stirs up trouble for the theater.

A QUICK ORDER OF KID STORIES.

Stories of children seem to come in groups. Probably this is because if someone in company tells of a cute saying by his little nephew somebody else is sure to be reminded of a bright thing that his little niece got off only that day.

At one sitting, lately, I heard three juvenile yarns, all of them bearing marks of authenticity, and all of them to my way of thinking, deserving of a wider circulation than could be given them by word or mouth. Here is the first one:

Elizabeth, aged four, was being parentally reproved for indulging in an appetite for chocolate caramels.

"If you eat so much candy," her mother said, "it'll ruin your stomach."

"Oh, I don't mind that, Mother," she answered. 'It won't show with my clothes on."

Here follows the second:

Mildred was sent to the grocery on an errand.

"Well," said the grocer, "I hear you've got a little baby brother up at your house. What do you think of him?"

"I don't like him," said Mildred frankly. "He's got a funny red face and he cries all the time."

"Well," asked the grocer, "why don't you send him back where he came from?"

"Oh, I'm afraid we couldn't do that," she said. 'We've used him two days already."

And this is the third:

At Sunday school Charles, just past his fourth birthday, was making his first appearance. The teacher asked him who had made him and Charles confessed a total ignorance on this important point.

"God made you, Charles," said the teacher. "Now remember that, so you can tell me when you come back next Sunday."

Next Sunday Charles returned.

"Charles," said the teacher, "tell me who made you."

Charles thought a moment:

"I done forgot the gentleman's name," he said.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Jan. 12.—The New Yorker is a little baffled out here with the way things are accomplished in a leisurely way. He is accustomed to flying subway trains, hurry-up conferences, rapid fire luncheons and rushing crowds. The Gotham tempo is quick. Always quick!

Gotham provides a mountain goat existence leaping from crag to crag. Here men have time for walks, rides, tennis and a shower before breakfast. They stroll to their clubs for luncheon and many have time for the brief siesta. They chat on street corners and sit on park benches in a warmth of friendliness.

Yet they tunnel mountains, make rivers gush in deserts and build towering cities. And have a lot of fun as they go along. Out in Hollywood you find stars and directors loafing for months between pictures. And this brings us to the roseate dream of almost every prairie cottage.

The longing to quit the plow or the milk stool and become a movie extra. It is not fiction that most of the movie stars were plucked from obscurity and it is this romantical fact that brings thousands upon thousands of votaries to the shrine.

They are still pouring into that Los Angeles suburb, vibrant and eager eyed with hope to drift swiftly to despair. At sun up they are at the casting offices day after day to hear the same old rebuff: "Sorry, nothing today."

Hollywood issues its ceaseless warnings but still they come. Not one in ten thousand receives the Big Chance. A pitiful few chuck their pride and go back home. The stories of Valentino, Swanson and a host of others ring in the ears of those who remain.

Widowed mothers bring their potential Jackie Coogans and Baby Peggies. Girls quit their typewriters and young men their counters impelled by the swish of romance that has flickered before them in Main street nickelodeans. They swarm here, linger and eventually vanish.

I believe it was Harry Witwer who called Hollywood Yes Man's Land. It is a tradition that every director has his Yes Man — an agreeable and harried soul who will stoutly agree water is ink if the director suggests it. This is the balm to tortured directorial nerves. So many are the oppositions in making a picture that had he not this quiescent influence he would likely be carried off the lot in a straight jacket at the end of the first reel.

It interested me to inquire who is the most popular producer in Hollywood. I asked many in all branches of the industry and in almost every instance it was Adolph Zukor. He has been in a way the kindly little man to whom everyone turns in black and despairing moments. I have never met Mr. Zukor save for a hurried handshake in a ship smoking room nor am I acquainted with his activities. So I cannot be called prejudiced in his favor.

I also find Jack Dempsey is extremely popular among Los Angelans. His hotel—the Barbara—is on a midtown corner with an expensive pressed yellow brick facade and he is said to be devoting much time to its management.

Los Angeles seems to have more drug stores than any city in America. Some one tells me 800 of them. Most appear the kind that would have to send out for a pharmacist if you presented a prescription. They sell everything from needle threaders to bass drums. One I noticed had evening jazz concerts and a pool hall.

The suburbs of Los Angeles expand with the city. Pasadena, at its doorstep, is now a bustling city of about 100,000. Santa Barbara is rebuilt and charging heroically ahead.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A Convention Country.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—Men whose business it is to know about such things say that there are approximately 15,000 conventions of one kind and another in the United States every year. Some of them are international gatherings or world congresses, many of them are national affairs, while most of them are state or local in character.

The larger cities of the country are keen rivals for the privilege of entertaining these conventions. In a few instances, the by-laws or constitution of an organization stipulate that its annual meeting shall be held in a certain city, and in the case of state associations it is obvious that their meetings will not be held outside the state of the organization's origin. Thus the number of conventions that cities can fight for is decidedly reduced from the grand total of 15,000. In fact, it is stated on the best authority that there are not more than 2,000 convocations that may be said to be at large and subject to being snared by the city that is the most hospitable, or that makes the most of its attractions.

In going after these gatherings almost every city of importance has a convention bureau which may be an adjunct of the local chamber of commerce or board of trade or may be an independent organization manned by experts who know the convention game inside and out. Most of their work is done by correspondence, but in case of the larger conventions they frequently attend and make personal bids for the next convention.

Kansas City with a convention bureau that is fifteen years old may be cited as a typical example of what a city can do in this line when it tries. The western metropolis of Missouri made a bid for the Republican national convention of 1908. The city had a splendid auditorium and fairly adequate hotel accommodations for a great national gathering, but it didn't have the organization to turn the trick.

Independent Civic Unit.

After that experience the business men of Kansas City expanded their convention bureau from a mere committee of the chamber of commerce into an independent civic unit. Moreover, they gave it an operating fund of $35,000 a year, which is paid in advance so that the bureau has its money before it spends a nickel, and this has proved to be such a good investment that Kansas City is now on record with the declaration that a well organized convention bureau is as necessary to a city as a paved street or a union station."

Municipalities get their dividends out of conventions not alone through the money which the delegates spend during the three or four days or week that their organizations are in session. That is a considerable item, of course. No delegate to a convention of any importance spends less than $10 a day in the city that is entertaining him, and in most instances the daily contributions run far above that sum. From this source, for example, it is said that Kansas City business interests drew dividends of $15,000,000 in seven years on an investment of but a little more than $115,000.

A city also profits in a large way from conventions and similar gatherings in the instance of a man's being so favorably impressed with his host city that he decides to establish a factory or some other business institution there. In the case of a factory with but a few hundred employes the city acquires a substantial increase in population and new capital and business that run into the millions every year.

Washington has a convention bureau less than two years old that has been functioning with exceptional success. During the year just passed the national capital entertained 212 of the 2,000-odd conventions that are available for cities of this class. C. E. La Vaigne, executive director of the bureau, says that this is 18 times Washington's proportionate expectancy in the competition for conventions.

These conventions ranged from those of stationers and certified public accountants to various international scientific organizations, sanitary engineers, Ku Klux Klan-ers, and "selected morticians," as modern undertakers prefer to be known. Also there have been gatherings of Baptists, Congregationalists, and other church people. In all, these affairs brought something like 100,000 visitors to Washington and contributed several million dollars to the city's commercial pool.

Why Washington Is Popular.

Washington is popular as a convention city desnite the fact that it is not at all centrally located or even conveniently located. It has so many attractive features of historic interest, and there are so many interesting people here—statesmen, diplomats, Army and Navy officials, distinguished jurists, and the like—that delegates are reasonably certain of getting even more than their money's worth. They can look in on the two houses of congress and if luck is with them they may hear a Blanton in the house or a Reed in the senate. They have a fair chance of seeing the man who was

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—Men whose business it is to know about such things say that there are approximately 15,000 conventions of one kind and another in the United States every year. Some of them are international gatherings or world congresses, many of them are national affairs, while most of them are state or local in character.

The larger cities of the country are keen rivals for the privilege of entertaining these conventions. In a few instances, the by-laws or constitution of an organization stipulate that its annual meeting shall be held in a certain city, and in the case of state associations it is obvious that their meetings will not be held outside the state of the organization's origin. Thus the number of conventions that cities can fight for is decidedly reduced from the grand total of 15,000. In fact, it is stated on the best authority that there are not more than 2,000 convocations that may be said to be at large and subject to being snared by the city that is the most hospitable, or that makes the most of its attractions.

In going after these gatherings almost every city of importance has a convention bureau which may be an adjunct of the local chamber of commerce or board of trade or may be an independent organization manned by experts who know the convention game inside and out. Most of their work is done by correspondence, but in case of the larger conventions they frequently attend and make personal bids for the next convention.

Kansas City with a convention bureau that is fifteen years old may be cited as a typical example of what a city can do in this line when it tries. The western metropolis of Missouri made a bid for the Republican national convention of 1908. The city had a splendid auditorium and fairly adequate hotel accommodations for a great national gathering, but it didn't have the organization to turn the trick.

Independent Civic Unit.

After that experience the business men of Kansas City expanded their convention bureau from a mere committee of the chamber of commerce into an independent civic unit. Moreover, they gave it an operating fund of $35,000 a year, which is paid in advance so that the bureau has its money before it spends a nickel, and this has proved to be such a good investment that Kansas City is now on record with the declaration that a well organized convention bureau is as necessary to a city as a paved street or a union station."

Municipalities get their dividends out of conventions not alone through the money which the delegates spend during the three or four days or week that their organizations are in session. That is a considerable item, of course. No delegate to a convention of any importance spends less than $10 a day in the city that is entertaining him, and in most instances the daily contributions run far above that sum. From this source, for example, it is said that Kansas City business interests drew dividends of $15,000,000 in seven years on an investment of but a little more than $115,000.

A city also profits in a large way from conventions and similar gatherings in the instance of a man's being so favorably impressed with his host city that he decides to establish a factory or some other business institution there. In the case of a factory with but a few hundred employes the city acquires a substantial increase in population and new capital and business that run into the millions every year.

Washington has a convention bureau less than two years old that has been functioning with exceptional success. During the year just passed the national capital entertained 212 of the 2,000-odd conventions that are available for cities of this class. C. E. LaVaigne, executive director of the bureau, says that this is 18 times Washington's proportionate expectancy in the competition for conventions.

These conventions ranged from those of stationers and certified public accountants to various international scientific organizations, sanitary engineers, Ku Klux Klan-ers, and "selected morticians," as modern undertakers prefer to be known. Also there have been gatherings of Baptists, Congregationalists, and other church people. In all, these affairs brought something like 100,000 visitors to Washington and contributed several million dollars to the city's commercial pool.

Why Washington Is Popular.

Washington is popular as a convention city despite the fact that it is not at all centrally located or even conveniently located. It has so many attractive features of historic interest, and there are so many interesting people here—statesmen, diplomats, Army and Navy officials, distinguished jurists, and the like—that delegates are reasonably certain of getting even more than their money's worth. They can look in on the two houses of congress and if luck is with them they may hear a Blanton in the house or a Reed in the senate. They have a fair chance of seeing the man who was

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

BEAVER COURT SETS PRECEDENT

Precedence was set in the Beaver county courts when Judge William A. McConnel, sitting in sentence session placed Mike Warner, 50 years old, on probation for a period of 12 years on condition he contribute $10 a week for the support of the children of the man he was convicted of killing. Warner was tried for murder at the December term of criminal court, it being charged by the commonwealth that he struck Dan Mitchell of Beaver Falls, over the head with an iron bar, killing him. The jury learned that Mitchell was intoxicated at the time of the killing and with other facts at hand returned a verdict of voluntary manslaughter, and recommended the defendant to the extreme mercy of the court.

Judge McConnell, in passing sentence, stated he believed the enforcement of a sentence requiring payment of money to the widow and children would be a just punishment for the convicted killer and would keep the family from becoming a public charge.

Children's Night Coughs

Stopped Almost Instantly.

Children very frequently have spells of night coughing due to bronchial irritations or while suffering from colds. These coughing spells, if not quickly checked, are very injurious to the child's health, to say nothing of the annoyance to others.

A famous physician's prescription called Thoxine much better than patent medicines and cough syrups acts on a different principal, relieves the irritation and stops the cough in a few minutes. In fact it is guaranteed to stop night coughs or sore throat within 15 minutes or money back. Contains no chloroform, dope or other harmful drugs, pleasant taste and safe. 35c., 60c., and $1.00. Fluffy Biscuits

"Fluffy" is just the name for these lovely, light biscuits. A recipe by Miss.....who is in charge of the Cooking School now being conducted by (name of paper)

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Crisco
¾ cup milk, or half milk and half water

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add Crisco and mix in very lightly with fork; add liquid slowly; roll or pat out with hands on floured board to about one inch of thickness (handle as little as possible); cut with biscuit cutter first dipped in flour. Bake in hot oven twelve or fifteen minutes.

Miss.....says:

Your biscuits will be light and tender if you will cut the Crisco into the sifted flour with two knives as in making pastry—instead of rubbing it in with your finger-tips.

BEAVER COURT SETS PRECEDENT

Precedence was set in the Beaver county courts when Judge William A. McConnel, sitting in sentence session placed Mike Warner, 50 years old, on probation for a period of 12 years on condition he contribute $10 a week for the support of the children of the man he was convicted of killing. Warner was tried for murder at the December term of criminal court, it being charged by the commonwealth that he struck Dan Mitchell of Beaver Falls, over the head with an iron bar, killing him. The jury learned that Mitchell was intoxicated at the time of the killing and with other facts at hand returned a verdict of voluntary manslaughter, and recommended the defendant to the extreme mercy of the court.

Judge McConnell, in passing sentence, stated he believed the enforcement of a sentence requiring payment of money to the widow and children would be a just punishment for the convicted killer and would keep the family from becoming a public charge.

Fluffy Biscuits

"Fluffy" is just the name for these lovely, light biscuits. A recipe by Miss.....who is in charge of the Cooking School now being conducted by (name of paper)

2 cups flour	2 tablespoons Crisco
4 teaspoons baking powder	¾ cup milk, or half milk and half water
½ teaspoon salt

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add Crisco and mix in very lightly with fork; add liquid slowly; roll or pat out with hands on floured board to about one inch of thickness (handle as little as possible); cut with biscuit cutter first dipped in flour. Bake in hot oven twelve or fifteen minutes.

Miss.....says:

Your biscuits will be light and tender if you will cut the Crisco into the sifted flour with two knives as in making pastry—instead of rubbing it in with your finger-tips.

BREAK IN PENN AVENUE HILLSIDE IS MENACING

200-FOOT CRACK IS EXTENDED, SAYS ENGINEER

Earth Near Red Steps is Reported Moving.

ENDANGERS HOUSE

Passage in Clay Mine Blocked After 100-ton Slide.

Break in the hillside above Pennsylvania avenue near the "red steps," which made its appearance shortly after a 100-ton slide of rock and earth blocked the street car tracks and automobile drive way on Pennsylvania avenue, on Christmas morning, is daily becoming more menacing, according to an opinion by City Engineer Flay Clapsaddle today.

The 200-foot long fissure in the ground which developed December 25 has extended itself along the hillside past the Walter Bulger house in the direction of East End for at least another 100 feet. According to stakes and other marks the city engineer says the earth has moved approximately eight inches since December 26.

The gap in the ground about half way up from the point where the break starts has opened wider. It has been impossible to determine the depth of the fissure with the human eye and no attempt has been made to measure it with a weight and string.

Inspect Abandoned Mine.

The city engineer and three assistants made an inspection of an abandoned clay mine, which opened along Pennsylvania avenue just east of where the crack occurred, about a week ago in an effort to determine the exact cause of the slide. The party traveled to a point about 300 feet back into the hillside but found the passage blocked when they attempted to push their way back beneath the break, because of fallen slate.

Supporting posts which had been erected when the clay mines were being operated, were of no service. A narrow deposit of coal, at the roof of the mines, was removed during the war-time fuel scarcity. The earth above the posts held without the support of the posts, many of which were installed 50 years or more ago when local pottery plants obtained their clays in this district. Clapsaddle found a small break in the roof of the mine where the lower side had dropped about two inches below the upper side, he said. Numerous entries were discovered off both sides of the main shaft but these were blocked with falls of slate and other materials.

Bulger Prepares to Move.

The city engineer is preparing to make another inspection of the ground under the hillside as soon as an another entry can be opened just below the crack. If the crack is due to a settling process in the mines, no serious results are anticipated.

Walter Bulger, Diamond druggist, whose stone residence occupies a site just above the hillside, is preparing to move his household furnishings from the house. The crack in the earth passes within 10 feet of the house and should the slide occur the dwelling would be precipitated over the hillside. Bulger denied that the foundation of the house has been cracked by the ground movement.

The break in the ground has not yet reached the home of Dr. W. A. Hobbs, which also occupies a side atop the hill about 300 yards east of the Bulger home.

Edwin K. Morse, noted consulting engineer, of Pittsburgh, who came here December 26 to inspect the break in the ground expressed the opinion that there was no immediate danger of a further slide, the center of the load being well toward the top of the hill. If the earth is moving on the clay deposits in the hillside there is grave danger that the whole hillside may eventually crumble and slide, according to the engineer. In this event both Pennsylvania avenue and possibly the Pennsylvania railroad right of way at the foot of the hillside would be blocked and the task of removing the slide would no doubt require weeks and possibly months.

Defendant Given Verdict in $1,000 Damage Suit Here

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by a jury in municipal court yesterday afternoon in the suit for $1,000 damages brought by George Panalapolous, Klondyke laborer, against Valentine Neiser, Oakland mill worker, as the result of injuries alleged to have been sustained in an automobile accident on the Midland road, near the state line, last fall.

The case went to the jury at 4 o'clock and a verdict was reached after a few minutes deliberation. The plaintiff was represented by Fouiks and Stevenson, while Attorney G. C. Thompson was counsel for the defendant.

The case of Mrs. Mary Allen, Toronto, against Edward Arnold, West Third street, for $500 damages alleged to have been done to her automobile in a crash near the "Red Steps" on Pennsylvania avenue was placed on trial before Judge Hanley and a jury of six persons this morning.

GRIFFIN GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

William Griffin, who was turned over to Probation Officer John McShane last week, following his arrest by local police, was yesterday sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail and pay the costs of prosecution after he had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor before Probate Judge Lodge Riddle at Lisbon.

Kellogg Faces

data on the existing state of affairs below the Rio Grande.

Just prior to Kellogg's appearance, Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the senate, was summoned to the White House for a hurried conference with President Coolidge. Robinson is also a member of the foreign relations committee.

Two of the severest critics of administration policy, Senators Wheeler (D.) of Montana and La Follette (R.) of Wisconsin, were permitted to attend the meeting behind closed doors, although they are not members of the foreign relations committee. Wheeler and La Follette simply walked into the meeting, and after they were in no one apparently wanted to take responsibility for barring them. It established a precedent in the senate.

A White House car brought the Democratic leader to the executive offices and carried him back to the capitol for the committee meeting.

The president's action in again consulting the Democratic leader, instead of Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the committee, aroused considerable comment at the capitol. Borah is completely out of sympathy with administration policy, and Mr. Coolidge apparently considered it more advantageous from the administration's standpoint to deal with the Democratic leader.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Mexico's disavowal of any desire for war with the United States, contained in the conciliatory statement issued by Foreign Minister Sanez, in reply to President Coolidge's message to congress, did not allay today the tensity that grips Washington concerning the state of affairs in Central America.

Administration officials accepted at its face value Mexico's expressed desire for peace. They did not, however, accept equally the disclaimer that the Calles government has only an academic interest in the Nicaraguan revolution.

Sanez's reply to the Coolidge charges did not mention the acts of Mexican gun-running to Nicaragua, stressed in the president's message.

France Denies U. S. Report.

DEDICATE NEW WORSHIP HOUSE HERE SUNDAY

East End Tabernacle Will be Erected Thursday.

ONE-DAY TASK

Dr. Clyde Fife Speaks in Church of Christ.

Plans were made today for the dedication on Sunday of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ tabernacle, which will be erected on the East End house of worship site on Thursday.

Decision to enlarge the church was made because of overflow crowds at revival services being conducted there by Fife Brothers, Radio Cabin Boys from Kentucky.

"I never saw such steam and zeal for religious work as is being displayed here," said Dr. Clyde Fife, last night before his sermon. "I have watched this town for 15 years and gloried in all it has done. My wife and little kiddies and I eat off of dishes made right here in this town. But I never thought I would get a sample of the zeal of these people and see them do their stuff. I am more than delighted.

"This meeting should have been a city wide effort with a union tabernacle to seat 7,000 people and we would have filled it easily and helped hundreds of souls back to God. But my friend, Rev. C. Mellon McKay, told me of the sacrifice he had made for this little church and I decided to come and help him out a few days and I am glad I did. I hope this revival spreads to the entire city."

A call was made last night for volunteers to help all aly Thursday so that the tabernacle may be completed for service by 7:30 that night. Ladies of the church served hot dinner to the men cutting the frames. John Schmidt will supervise the construction of the building.

Today at noon the Fife Brothers entertained and spoke at a pottery meeting in Newell.

Tuesday noon they were at Laughlin No. 2 plant, East End, and invited the entire office force and other employes to come in a body to the tabernacle on Friday night.

"There are men sitting here tonight who are as much lost as if they had been in hell for a thousand years," said Dr. Fife in his sermon on "The Unpardonable Sin" last night. "You never gave your heart to God and you never intend so to do. So far as you are concerned there was no reason at all why your poor mother should have gone down into the valley of the shadow of death to bring you into the world. No excuse for suffering. No efficacy in the atoning merits of the death of Christ; no hope beyond the grave. Are you dead? Can't you feel? Can't you think? Do you not know that in another generation from you your children will be entirely infidel? Is nothing to be held sacred?"

Then he went on by the logic of climination to tell what the unpardonable sin was not, declaring that if a man worse, drank, doubted, etc., that God would forgive him if he were penitent, and then stated that any sin unforgiven and unrepented would cause a soul to be lost.

"But the unpardonable sin, that God Himself can not forgive is the wilful, constant and final rejection of God, Christ and of the Holy Spirit," he said.

There were 13 conversions last night.

The sermon topic tonight will be "The Second Coming of Christ."

TREMOR ROCKS LISBON, PORTUGAL

LISBON, Jan. 12.—A violent earthquake of five seconds duration caused a panic among inhabitants of Lisbon this morning. Residents, awakened by the tremor, rushed into the streets. No casualties or damage was reported.

33 Ball Players

sloughed to Detroit two of a three-game series at the close of the 1919 season. His only specific allegations are that he played out of position and that he believes that Gandil (and two other players out of baseball since 1920) also played out of position. Gandil corroborates this, testifying that he played out of position (first saying "I think it was two out of the three ball games' and later saying: 'I probably played out of position in all three games'); that he noticed Risberg playing out of position, so figured he would do it also, without even a word between him and Risberg, or with any other Chicago or Detroit players about it.

"Of course this testimony by Gandil and Risberg is evidence to that extent against them, but there is no evidence whatever supporting the charge as involving any other Chicago player."

Except for the claims of the accusers there was nothing to show that any prearranged plans were made for raising the alleged "pool" given to Detroit and plans for raising money for any illegitimate purpose were not discussed by the players, Judge Landis ruled.

Analyzes Evidence.

In this connection his decision said: "Beyond the statements of Gandil, the record discloses nothing to the effect that the raising of the money was ever discussed at a meeting of the players. Whether such a meeting actually took place is important only as going to the question of creditability.

"Risberg and Gandil testified that they collected the money. Risberg puts it at about $1,100, Gandil states that he turned over to James between $900 and $1,100—'that he could not give the exact amount, because some that promised to give me some of that money didn't give it to me.'"

After reviewing the testimony given by the accused and the accusers at the hearings he conducted in Chicago, Judge Landis wrote as follows in his decision:

"If the Gandil-Risberg version be correct, it was an act of criminality. If the other version be true, it was an act of impropriety, reprehensible and censurable, but not corrupt.

"The usual contradictions that characterize controversies of fact are present. It is the commissioner's opinion, however, that an examination of the evidence will clearly point the truth of the matter in dispute. When Risberg was first here January 1, he stated that before Detroit played Chicago the first game of the series of September 2 and 3, 1917, 'Clarence Rowland, manager of the Chicago club at the time, instigated a proposition that if we (meaning Chicago) would give a certain amount of money to Detroit pitchers—pool the money collectively on the ball club—they (meaning Detroit pitchers) would slough (intentionally lose) to Chicago those games we were playing during that series to help us try to win the pennant.'"

Refers to Risberg's Testimony.

"And further that Rowland told him, in substance, that 'I have got it all set.'

"However, on January 5, Risberg asserted that nothing was said by Rowland about money (in connection with his telling Risberg 'everything was fixed' for Detroit to lose to Chicago the Sept. 2 and 3, 1917, games). In fact, it was Risberg's testimony, on January 5, that nothing was said by anybody about money until the Chicago team was in New York Sept. 28, 1917, and while it was his statement that the sloughing of these four games was 'common talk' among the Chicago players the only testimony he gave o' anything having been said on that subject by any Chicago player during the series, or at any time thereafter, was that Edward Collins, referring to an error by Substitute Shortstop Dyer, of Detroit, made the remark: 'My God, that is terrible'" Risberg's meaning being that Collins understood it was a dishonest game and intended to characterize Dyer's play as crude and raw."

"Collins recalled no such occurrence and testified that he knew he made no remark implying that he thought it was a crooked game or a dishonest play.

"Risberg further testified that although he knew the games were being sloughed, and notwithstanding this was the first time he knew such a thing to happen, he did not watch to see how it was to be done; that the only things he observed (aside from Dyer booting the ball) was that 'in spots' the Detroit pitchers did not appear to be 'putting much on the ball, and in this respect, the only thing he could recall was that on one occasion when he batted (and the official scores of the four games show he batted 17 times) a curve ball was thrown to him 'which did not seem to have much on it,' which ball he hit, but not safely; and that there was some base stealing 'that didn't look right which Risberg laid to poor work by Catcher Stanage, of Detroit, it being his testimony that the Detroit pitchers seemed to be holding the runners, but they 'were getting an awful lead before Oscar (Stanage) let the ball go.' Gandil blamed the pitchers. According to one newspaper account (Chicago American, Sept. 4), Chicago in these four games had, respectively, 2, 6, 6 and 4 stolen bases; according to another paper Chicago had 3, 6, 8 and 5 stolen bases (four of these were double steals). This was an unusual number of stolen bases, but not an unprecedented number. This record of stolen bases certainly is no more significant than the Boston team's eight errors in it's game against Detroit September 19, with Boston still in the pennant race and unquestionably fighting their utmost to win."

Fined for Disorderly Conduct.

Pleading guilty to charges of disorderly conduct, Daniel Lynch and Harold Green of this city were fined $10 and costs when they faced Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley in police court this morning. They were arrested by Patrolman William Lister as they left a Beaver interurban car at the Broadway terminal at 1 o'clock this morning.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Mollie Brandon.

Mrs. Mollie Raney Brandon, 61, New Cumberland, died yesterday afternoon in the City hospital, as a result of complications following an operation.

She is survived by two sons, James and Raney; her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Raney; four brothers, William, Cleveland; John, Toronto; James, Pittsburgh; Thomas, Weirton, and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Grimes and Miss Ella Raney, both of Zalia, W. Va.

She was a member of the New Cumberland Presbyterian church and order of Maccabees.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, in charge of Rev. Anthony Banford. Burial will be made in New Cumberland cemetery.

Fultz Loses Fight

Overrule Defense Motion.

The commission first overruled the motion of the defense to dismiss the charges on the grounds that they were filed under a section of the general code that specifies a hearing must be held in five days after facts are cited to the civil service body and then, in its decision says:

"It is the judgment of this commission that the causes stated in the order of removal made by Wallace L. Fogo, mayor, removing John H. Fultz from the office of chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, for the reasons presented is fully sustained by the evidence."

The text of the decision follows:

"The civil service commission of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, met this 10th day of January, 1927, pursuant to order taken at the close of hearing, to consider the evidence presented and render its decision in the case of the removal of John H. Fultz as chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, by Mayor Wallace L. Fogo.

"The following members were present: D. S. McLean, president; Harry Hammond, A. C. Fogo.

"The motion to dismiss is made under the provisions of Section 468-19, providing for a hearing by the commission within five (5) days after filing of appeal in cases of suspensions. The commission finds that the case now under consideration, is a case of removal from office and is governed by provisions of Section 486-17 A, requiring hearing within 30 days.

"The motion to dismiss is therefore overruled.

Commission's Findings.

"The commission then proceeded to consider the evidence in support of the charges made. After due consideration thereof, the commission finds:

"Charge No. 1—Conduct unbecoming an officer.

"In substantiation of this charge the evidence shows that on the ninth day of December, 1926, James Pugia was under arrest as was shown by the mayor's criminal docket, No. 24, page 63; title of case State of Ohio vs. James Pugia; charge, possessing liquor unlawfully; was tried, found guilty. Case dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence. A bottle containing a small quantity of white colored liquid was offered as evidence. Upon inquiry by Mayor Fogo if the bottle was his, Pugia assented but added, 'Not so much last night.' Evidence shows that at this point John H. Fultz started across the room in a threatening manner and said 'G— D— you Pugia, you have told enough lies on me.' At this point the mayor intervened and ordered John H. Fultz to sit down and directed that Pugia be dismissed. The mayor then told John H Fultz that he was tired of having such cases before him when there was not sufficient evidence.

"It is therefore the judgment of the commission that the evidence offered in support of charge No. 1 is sufficient and that same is sustained.

"Charge No. 2—Disrespect to your superior officers.

"The judgment of the commission is clear upon the point that the conduct of the said John H. Fultz, as chief of police, at the hearing in question, as shown by the undisputed evidence in the case, was wholly unreasonable, unwarranted and amounting in law to insubordination, disrespect to superior officer and has furnished justifiable cause to sustain charge No. 2.

"Charge No. 3 — Disobeying orders given by your superior officer.

"The undisputed evidence shows that the said John H. Fultz took possession of the bottle used as evidence in the trial of James Pugia and refused to return same to mayor when directed by him to do so. We hold that the court's authorities supersede those of the chief of police in such cases, and the refusal of said John H. Fultz to comply with the order of the mayor amounts to flagrant disobedience of positive orders, and charge No. 3 is sustained.

Mayor's Order Affirmed.

"It is the judgment of this commission that the causes stated in the order of removal made by Wallace L. Fogo, removing John H. Fultz from the office of chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, for reasons presented is fully sustained by the evidence.

"It is therefore ordered that the order of Wallace L. Fogo as mayor, removing from office John H. Fultz as chief of police be and the same is hereby affirmed and said John H. Fultz be and he is hereby removed from office as chief of police, said order to be in force and take effect from the date of said order of removal by Mayor W. L. Fogo, to wit: December 9, 1926.

"It is further ordered that the secretary of this commission cause Mayor W. L. Fogo and said John H. Fultz to be duly notified of the judgment of the commission, and its order, in relation to said matter as above set forth.

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Story of Couzens' Fortune Told in Tax Appeals Suit

DETROIT, Jan. 12.—The story of Senator James Couzens' fortune which jumped from $900 to more than $29,000,000 in 13 years, was told today in the governments $34,0000,000 tax suit against former stockholders of the Ford Motor company.

A stipulation signed by Couzens and read at the hearing by the senator's attorney, former Judge Arthur Lacy, showed that Couzens invested $1,000 in the Ford Motor company, at the time of its organization in June, 1903. He borrowed $100 of this from his sister, Mrs. Rosetta V. Hauss, however, and carried $100 worth of stock in her name. The $1,000 was the down payment on a block of 25 shares of stock then valued at $2,500.

BREAK IN PENN AVENUE HILLSIDE IS MENACING

200-FOOT CRACK IS EXTENDED, SAYS ENGINEER

Earth Near Red Steps is Reported Moving.

ENDANGERS HOUSE

Passage in Clay Mine Blocked After 100-ton Slide.

Break in the hillside above Pennsylvania avenue near the "red steps," which made its appearance shortly after a 100-ton slide of rock and earth blocked the street car tracks and automobile drive way on Pennsylvania avenue, on Christmas morning, is daily becoming more menacing, according to an opinion by City Engineer Flay Clapsaddle today.

The 200-foot long fissure in the ground which developed December 25 has extended itself along the hillside past the Walter Bulger house in the direction of East End for at least another 100 feet. According to stakes and other marks the city engineer says the earth has moved approximately eight inches since December 26.

The gap in the ground about half way up from the point where the break starts has opened wider. It has been impossible to determine the depth of the fissure with the human eye and no attempt has been made to measure it with a weight and string.

Inspect Abandoned Mine.

The city engineer and three assistants made an inspection of an abandoned clay mine, which opened along Pennsylvania avenue just east of where the crack occurred, about a week ago in an effort to determine the exact cause of the slide. The party traveled to a point about 300 feet back into the hillside but found the passage blocked when they attempted to push their way back beneath the break, because of fallen slate.

Supporting posts which had been erected when the clay mines were being operated, were of no service. A narrow deposit of coal, at the roof of the mines, was removed during the war-time fuel scarcity. The earth above the posts held without the support of the posts, many of which were installed 50 years or more ago when local pottery plants obtained their clays in this district. Clapsaddle found a small break in the roof of the mine where the lower side had dropped about two inches below the upper side, he said. Numerous entries were discovered off both sides of the main shaft but these were blocked with falls of slate and other materials.

Bulger Prepares to Move.

The city engineer is preparing to make another inspection of the ground under the hillside as soon as an another entry can be opened just below the crack. If the crack is due to a settling process in the mines, no serious results are anticipated.

Walter Bulger, Diamond druggist, whose stone residence occupies a site just above the hillside, is preparing to move his household furnishings from the house. The crack in the earth passes within 10 feet of the house and should the slide occur the dwelling would be precipitated over the hillside. Bulger denied that the foundation of the house has been cracked by the ground movement.

The break in the ground has not yet reached the home of Dr. W. A. Hobbs, which also occupies a side atop the hill about 300 yards east of the Bulger home.

Edwin K. Morse, noted consulting engineer, of Pittsburgh, who came here December 26 to inspect the break in the ground expressed the opinion that there was no immediate danger of a further slide, the center of the load being well toward the top of the hill. If the earth is moving on the clay deposits in the hillside there is grave danger that the whole hillside may eventually crumble and slide, according to the engineer. In this event both Pennsylvania avenue and possibly the Pennsylvania railroad right of way at the foot of the hillside would be blocked and the task of removing the slide would no doubt require weeks and possibly months.

Defendant Given Verdict in $1,000 Damage Suit Here

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by a jury in municipal court yesterday afternoon in the suit for $1,000 damages brought by George Panalapolous, Klondyke laborer, against Valentine Neiser, Oakland mill worker, as the result of injuries alleged to have been sustained in an automobile accident on the Midland road, near the state line, last fall.

The case went to the jury at 4 o'clock and a verdict was reached after a few minutes deliberation. The plaintiff was represented by Foulks and Stevenson, while Attorney G. C. Thompson was counsel for the defendant.

The case of Mrs. Mary Allen, Toronto, against Edward Arnold, West Third street, for $500 damages alleged to have been done to her automobile in a crash near the "Red Steps" on Pennsylvania avenue was placed on trial before Judge Hanley and a jury of six persons this morning.

data on the existing state of affairs below the Rio Grande.

Just prior to Kellogg's appearance, Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the senate, was summoned to the White House for a hurried conference with President Coolidge. Robinson is also a member of the foreign relations committee.

Two of the severest critics of administration policy, Senators Wheeler (D.) of Montana and La Follette (R.) of Wisconsin, were permitted to attend the meeting behind closed doors, although they are not members of the foreign relations committee. Wheeler and La Follette simply walked into the meeting, and after they were in no one apparently wanted to take responsibility for barring them. It established a precedent in the senate.

A White House car brought the Democratic leader to the executive offices and carried him back to the capitol for the committee meeting.

The president's action in again consulting the Democratic leader, instead of Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the committee, aroused considerable comment at the capitol. Borah is completely out of sympathy with administration policy, and Mr. Coolidge apparently considered it more advantageous from the administration's standpoint to deal with the Democratic leader.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Mexico's disavowal of any desire for war with the United States, contained in the conciliatory statement issued by Foreign Minister Sanez, in reply to President Coolidge's message to congress, did not allay today the tensity that grips Washington concerning the state of affairs in Central America.

Administration officials accepted at its face value Mexico's expressed desire for peace. They did not, however, accept equally the disclaimer that the Calles government has only an academic interest in the Nicaraguan revolution.

Sanez's reply to the Coolidge charges did not mention the acts of Mexican gun-running to Nicaragua, stressed in the president's message.

DEDICATE NEW WORSHIP HOUSE HERE SUNDAY

East End Tabernacle Will be Erected Thursday.

ONE-DAY TASK

Dr. Clyde Fife Speaks in Church of Christ.

Plans were made today for the dedication on Sunday of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ tabernacle, which will be erected on the East End house of worship site on Thursday.

Decision to enlarge the church was made because of overflow crowds at revival services being conducted there by Fife Brothers, Radio Cabin Boys from Kentucky.

"I never saw such steam and zeal for religious work as is being displayed here," said Dr. Clyde Fife, last night before his sermon. "I have watched this town for 15 years and gloried in all it has done. My wife and little kiddies and I eat off of dishes made right here in this town. But I never thought I would get a sample of the zeal of these people and see them do their stuff. I am more than delighted.

"This meeting should have been a city wide effort with a union tabernacle to seat 7,000 people and we would have filled it easily and helped hundreds of souls back to God. But my friend, Rev. C. Mellon McKay, told me of the sacrifice he had made for this little church and I decided to come and help him out a few days and I am glad I did. I hope this revival spreads to the entire city."

A call was made last night for volunteers to help all aly Thursday so that the tabernacle may be completed for service by 7:30 that night. Ladies of the church served hot dinner to the men cutting the frames. John Schmidt will supervise the construction of the building.

Today at noon the Fife Brothers entertained and spoke at a pottery meeting in Newell.

Tuesday noon they were at Laughlin No. 2 plant, East End, and invited the entire office force and other employes to come in a body to the tabernacle on Friday night.

"There are men sitting here tonight who are as much lost as if they had been in hell for a thousand years," said Dr. Fite in his sermon on "The Unpardonable Sin" last night. "You never gave your heart to God and you never intend so to do. So far as you are concerned there was no reason at all why your poor mother should have gone down into the valley of the shadow of death to bring you into the world. No excuse for suffering. No efficacy in the atoning merits of the death of Christ; no hope beyond the grave. Are you dead? Can't you feel? Can't you think? Do you not know that in another generation from you your children will be entirely infidel? Is nothing to be held sacred?"

Then he went on by the logic of elimination to tell what the unpardonable sin was not, declaring that if a man worse, drank, doubted, etc., that God would forgive him if he were penitent, and then stated that any sin unforgiven and unrepented would cause a soul to be lost.

"But the unpardonable sin, that God Himself can not forgive is the wilful, constant and final rejection of God, Christ and of the Holy Spirit," he said.

There were 13 conversions last night. The sermon topic tonight will be "The Second Coming of Christ."

33 Ball Players

sloughed to Detroit two of a three-game series at the close of the 1919 season. His only specific allegations are that he played out of position and that he believes that Gandil (and two other players out of baseball since 1920) also played out of position. Gandil corroborates this, testifying that he played out of position (first saying "I think it was two out of the three ball games' and later saying: 'I probably played out of position in all three games'); that he noticed Risberg playing out of position, so figured he would do it also, without even a word between him and Risberg, or with any other Chicago or Detroit players about it.

"Of course this testimony by Gandil and Risberg is evidence to that extent against them, but there is no evidence whatever supporting the charge as involving any other Chicago player."

Except for the claims of the accusers there was nothing to show that any prearranged plans were made for raising the alleged "pool" given to Detroit and plans for raising money for any illegitimate purpose were not discussed by the players, Judge Landis ruled.

Analyzes Evidence.

In this connection his decision said: "Beyond the statements of Gandil, the record discloses nothing to the effect that the raising of the money was ever discussed at a meeting of the players. Whether such a meeting actually took place is important only as going to the question of creditability.

"Risberg and Gandil testified that they collected the money. Risberg puts it at about $1,100, Gandil states that he turned over to James between $900 and $1,100—'that he could not give the exact amount, because some that promised to give me some of that money didn't give it to me.'"

After reviewing the testimony given by the accused and the accusers at the hearings he conducted in Chicago, Judge Landis wrote as follows in his decision:

"If the Gandil-Risberg version be correct, it was an act of criminality. If the other version be true, it was an act of impropriety, reprehensible and censurable, but not corrupt.

"The usual contradictions that characterize controversies of fact are present. It is the commissioner's opinion, however, that an examination of the evidence will clearly point the truth of the matter in dispute. When Risberg was first here January 1, he stated that before Detroit played Chicago the first game of the series of September 2 and 3, 1917, 'Clarence Rowland, manager of the Chicago club at the time, instigated a proposition that if we (meaning Chicago) would give a certain amount of money to Detroit pitchers—pool the money collectively on the ball club—they (meaning Detroit pitchers) would slough (intentionally lose) to Chicago those games we were playing during that series to help us try to win the pennant.'"

Refers to Risberg's Testimony.

"And further that Rowland told him, in substance, that 'I have got it all set.'

"However, on January 5, Risberg asserted that nothing was said by Rowland about money (in connection with his telling Risberg 'everything was fixed' for Detroit to lose to Chicago the Sept. 2 and 3, 1917, games). In fact, it was Risberg's testimony, on January 5, that nothing was said by anybody about money until the Chicago team was in New York Sept. 28, 1917, and while it was his statement that the sloughing of these four games was 'common talk' among the Chicago players the only testimony he gave o' anything having been said on that subject by any Chicago player during the series, or at any time thereafter, was that Edward Collins, referring to an error by Substitute Shortstop Dyer, of Detroit, made the remark: 'My God, that is terrible'" Risberg's meaning being that Collins understood it was a dishonest game and intended to characterize Dyer's play as crude and raw."

"Collins recalled no such occurrence and testified that he knew he made no remark implying that he thought it was a crooked game or a dishonest play.

"Risberg further testified that although he knew the games were being sloughed, and notwithstanding this was the first time he knew such a thing to happen, he did not watch to see how it was to be done; that the only things he observed (aside from Dyer booting the ball) was that 'in spots' the Detroit pitchers did not appear to be 'putting much on the ball, and in this respect, the only thing he could recall was that on one occasion when he batted (and the official scores of the four games show he batted 17 times) a curve ball was thrown to him 'which did not seem to have much on it,' which ball he hit, but not safely; and that there was some base stealing 'that didn't look right which Risberg laid to poor work by Catcher Stanage, of Detroit, it being his testimony that the Detroit pitchers seemed to be holding the runners, but they 'were getting an awful lead before Oscar (Stanage) let the ball go.' Gandil blamed the pitchers. According to one newspaper account (Chicago American, Sept. 4), Chicago in these four games had, respectively, 2, 6, 6 and 4 stolen bases; according to another paper Chicago had 3, 6, 8 and 5 stolen bases (four of these were double steals). This was an unusual number of stolen bases, but not an unprecedented number. This record of stolen bases certainly is no more significant than the Boston team's eight errors in it's game against Detroit September 19, with Boston still in the pennant race and unquestionably fighting their utmost to win."

Fined for Disorderly Conduct.

Pleading guilty to charges of disorderly conduct, Daniel Lynch and Harold Green of this city were fined $10 and costs when they faced Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley in police court this morning. They were arrested by Patrolman William Lister as they left a Beaver interurban car at the Broadway terminal at 1 o'clock this morning.

DEATH ROLL

Mrs. Mollie Brandon.

Mrs. Mollie Raney Brandon, 61, New Cumberland, died yesterday afternoon in the City hospital, as a result of complications following an operation.

She is survived by two sons, James and Raney; her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Raney; four brothers, William, Cleveland; John, Toronto; James, Pittsburgh; Thomas, Weirton, and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Grimes and Miss Ella Raney, both of Zalia, W. Va.

She was a member of the New Cumberland Presbyterian church and order of Maccabees.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, in charge of Rev. Anthony Banford. Burial will be made in New Cumberland cemetery.

Fultz Loses Fight

Overrule Defense Motion.

The commission first overruled the motion of the defense to dismiss the charges on the grounds that they were filed under a section of the general code that specifies a hearing must be held in five days after facts are cited to the civil service body and then, in its decision says:

"It is the judgment of this commission that the causes stated in the order of removal made by Wallace L. Fogo, mayor, removing John H. Fultz from the office of chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, for the reasons presented is fully sustained by the evidence."

The text of the decision follows:

"The civil service commission of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, met this 10th day of January, 1927, pursuant to order taken at the close of hearing, to consider the evidence presented and render its decision in the case of the removal of John H. Fultz as chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, by Mayor Wallace L. Fogo.

"The following members were present: D. S. McLean, president; Harry Hammond, A. C. Fogo.

"The motion to dismiss is made under the provisions of Section 468-19, providing for a nearing by the commission within five (5) days after filing of appeal in cases of suspensions. The commission finds that the case now under consideration, is a case of removal from office and is governed by provisions of Section 486-17 A, requiring hearing within 30 days.

"The motion to dismiss is therefore overruled.

Commission's Findings.

"The commission then proceeded to consider the evidence in support of the charges made. After due consideration thereof, the commission finds:

"Charge No. 1—Conduct unbecoming an officer.

"In substantiation of this charge the evidence shows that on the ninth day of December, 1926, James Pugia was under arrest as was shown by the mayor's criminal docket, No. 24, page 63; title of case State of Ohio vs. James Pugia; charge, possessing liquor unlawfully; was tried, found guilty. Case dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence. A bottle containing a small quantity of white colored liquid was offered as evidence. Upon inquiry by Mayor Fogo if the bottle was his, Pugia assented but added, 'Not so much last night.' Evidence shows that at this point John H. Fultz started across the room in a threatening manner and said 'G— D— you Pugia, you have told enough lies on me.' At this point the mayor intervened and ordered John H. Fultz to sit down and directed that Pugia be dismissed. The mayor then told John H Fultz that he was tired of having such cases before him when there was not sufficient evidence.

"It is therefore the judgment of the commission that the evidence offered in support of charge No. 1 is sufficient and that same is sustained.

"Charge No. 2—Disrespect to your superior officers.

"The judgment of the commission is clear upon the point that the conduct of the said John H. Fultz, as chief of police, at the hearing in question, as shown by the undisputed evidence in the case, was wholly unreasonable, unwarranted and amounting in law to insubordination, disrespect to superior officer and has furnished justifiable cause to sustain charge No. 2.

"Charge No. 3 — Disobeying orders given by your superior officer.

"The undisputed evidence shows that the said John H. Fultz took possession of the bottle used as evidence in the trial of James Pugia and refused to return same to mayor when directed by him to do so. We hold that the court's authorities supersede those of the chief of police in such cases, and the refusal of said John H. Fultz to comply with the order of the mayor amounts to flagrant disobedience of positive orders, and charge No. 3 is sustained.

Mayor's Order Affirmed.

"It is the judgment of this commission that the causes stated in the order of removal made by Wallace L. Fogo, removing John H. Fultz from the office of chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, for reasons presented is fully sustained by the evidence.

"It is therefore ordered that the order of Wallace L. Fogo as mayor, removing from office John H. Fultz as chief of police be and the same is hereby affirmed and said John H. Fultz be and he is hereby removed from office as chief of police, said order to be in force and take effect from the date of said order of removal by Mayor W. L. Fogo, to wit: December 9, 1926.

"It is further ordered that the secretary of this commission cause Mayor W. L. Fogo and said John H. Fultz to be duly notified of the judgment of the commission, and its order, in relation to said matter as above set forth.

COUNCIL PLANS STREET WORK

Preliminary Legislation Enacted by Solons at Recent Meeting.

Probably two miles of street improvement will be done in Lisbon during the spring and summer months, according to plans of the village council. Preliminary legislation with this end in view has been approved.

Whether the street surfacing will be of concrete, paving block or Willite will be left to the property owners. Improvement notices are to be served on property owners within the next few weeks.

Streets that are to be graded and surfaced are: Green street from Lincoln way to Washington street; Lincoln avenue from Lincoln way to Washington; an extension of probably 400 feet to the west end of Washington street; Water street from South Market to Lincoln avenue and the intersection of the Erie railroad; Jefferson street from Chestnut south to the P. L. & W. railway yards; Blocksom street from Lincoln way to Washington street; Vine street from Chestnut south to Washington; Pritchard avenue from Chestnut street south to East Lincoln way.

The improvement of Beaver street from the North Market street intersection south to Water street will be considered by the council at an early meeting.

Surveys have about been completed, and plans, specifications and estimates will be filed with council within the next month.

TWO DAMAGE CASES DISMISSED

Two damage actions totalling $75,000 that have been pending in common pleas court since Sept. 9, 1924, against the Ohio Harmony Electric Co., have been dismissed for lack of prosecution. Judgment has been rendered by Judge Jones against the plaintiffs for the costs in both actions.

In a $50,000 damage action Margaret Dunn was plaintiff, and in an action for $25,000 damages Madeline Dunn, by her next friend, Margaret Dunn, was the plaintiff. Since the cases were filed, the plaintiffs have failed to prosecute the action, and the dismissal was on a motion made by counsel for the defendant company, and sustained by the court.

Divorce Action Filed.

Through her counsel, Metzgar, McCarty & McCorkhill of Salem, Minnie Simpson has filed a divorce petition in common pleas court against her husband, William Simpson, of Washingtonville.

The couple were married at Washingtonville April 20 1899. Mrs. Simpson charges her husband with extreme cruelty.

Leave To File.

Leave has been granted the county commissioners to file an answer on or before January 26 in the $5,000 damage case now pending against the board wherein Vincent Miller is plaintiff. The plaintiff is represented by Attorney K. L. Cobourn of Salem.

CLARKSON GRANGE OFFICERS NAMED

At a recent meeting of Clarkson grange No. 1802, Glenn Gaston was installed as master; Clyde Gibson as overseer and John Gaston as lecturer, the installation being in charge of Past Master Denver S. Williams.

Because of the death of Carlos Vaughn, the grange ordered the charter draped for a period of 30 days. Mr. Vaughn, who was an active member of the grange, died recently.

Trustees were elected as follows: Kim Crawford, three years; Grover Williams, two years, and Clyde Gibson, one year.

Because of the fact that the officers have not been able to connect with the desired speakers for the regular Clarkson institute for the date of January 13 and 14 the institute has been deferred until the 25th and 26th.

CRIMINAL CASES LISTED FOR TRIAL

Following a conference between Judge W. F. Lones and Prosecuting Attorney R. M. Brookes, the early part of next week will be given over to criminal court work in No. 1 court room.

Here's Speedy Relief From Bunions and Soft Corns

Mathews Cut Rate, Herche's Drug Store and J. D. Holloway Say Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness, and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Your bunions may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Mathews' Cut Rate, Herche's Drug Store and J. D. Holloway, and every good druggist guarantees Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

COUNCIL PLANS STREET WORK

Preliminary Legislation Enacted by Solons at Recent Meeting.

Probably two miles of street improvement will be done in Lisbon during the spring and summer months, according to plans of the village council. Preliminary legislation with this end in view has been approved.

Whether the street surfacing will be of concrete, paving block or Willite will be left to the property owners. Improvement notices are to be served on property owners within the next few weeks.

Streets that are to be graded and surfaced are: Green street from Lincoln way to Washington street; Lincoln avenue from Lincoln way to Washington; an extension of probably 400 feet to the west end of Washington street; Water street from South Market to Lincoln avenue and the intersection of the Erie railroad; Jefferson street from Chestnut south to the P. L. & W. railway yards; Blocksom street from Lincoln way to Washington street; Vine street from Chestnut south to Washington; Pritchard avenue from Chestnut street south to East Lincoln way.

The improvement of Beaver street from the North Market street intersection south to Water street will be considered by the council at an early meeting.

Surveys have about been completed, and plans, specifications and estimates will be filed with council within the next month.

TWO DAMAGE CASES DISMISSED

Two damage actions totalling $75,000 that have been pending in common pleas court since Sept. 9, 1924, against the Ohio Harmony Electric Co., have been dismissed for lack of prosecution. Judgment has been rendered by Judge Jones against the plaintiffs for the costs in both actions.

In a $50,000 damage action Margaret Dunn was plaintiff, and in an action for $25,000 damages Madeline Dunn, by her nevt friend, Margaret Dunn, was the plaintiff. Since the cases were filed, the plaintiffs have failed to prosecute the action, and the dismissal was on a motion made by counsel for the defendant company, and sustained by the court.

Divorce Action Filed.

ECONOMY SOUGHT BY TAX PROBERS

The report of the special state tax commission, which is to be submitted to the legislature sometime during the initial session, will contain recommendations for administrative reforms in the state government looking toward economy. Sam T Mallison, secretary of the commission announced today. These recommendations will be contained in the first section of the report and will be submitted to the law-makers probably this week.

The second section of the report, to be submitted later, will deal with recommendations as to the raising of revenues, giving the legislature the benefit of what the commission has learned from its prolonged investigation and study of all forms of taxation.

Mr. Mallison gave out the information in response to requests from newspaper men for knowledge as to when the commission's report would be submitted. The report, he said, would be held in strict confidence by members of the commission until it had been delivered to the legislature. Then it will be available for publication in newspapers.

PROGRAM FIXED FOR DEDICATION

Rev. B. H. Pocock, pastor of the Chester Nazarene church, assisted by Rev. John MacDonald, pastor of the Avondale Free Methodist church and Rev. O. L. Benedum, pastor of the Nazarene church, East Liverpool, will be in charge of the dedication services of the Interdenominational mission next Sunday at Glendale, formerly Joetown.

Selections will be given by the Newell male quartet and the orchestra of the East Liverpool Nazarene church. Services will be held at 10:45 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

ACCUSED WELLSVILLE MEN POST BONDS OF $40,000

COURT ASKS LARGE SUM IN BRIBERY CASE

Counsel for Rocco Carbicella and Frank Fusco Protests.

BOTH RE-INDICTED

State Charges They Offered $390 to Sheriff Wright.

Rocco Carbicella and Frank Fusco, of Wellsville, re-indicted by the January grand jury on charges of offering a bribe of $390 to Sheriff George Wright in an effort, it is alleged, to persuade the officer to "lay off" the Patrolman James Kenney murder investigation, have been placed under bonds of $40,000 each.

Opposition to such a heavy bond was voiced by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of defense counsel.

"The prosecuting attorney must elect under which indictment the men will next be brought to trial, and I can see no reason why such a heavy bond should be demanded at this time when the men are already under heavy bond," said Attorney O'Grady.

When the two men were previously indicted for an attempt to bribe Sheriff Wright the court placed the bonds at $5,000 each.

The law provides that bondsmen must be worth at least double the amount of the bond, and in this case the $5,000 bond would be equal to $10,000 in each case, or a total of $20,000.

Under the re-indictment the bond was placed at $5,000 in each case, and the former bond was not disturbed. This then increases the bonds to $40,000.

Under the murder indictment, the court set the bond at $20,000 in the Carbicella case or equal to $40,000. As a result Carbicello and Fusco have been bonded to the extent of $80,000, about the largest ever demanded in a criminal action in this county in recent years.

AUTHORITIES LAUNCH DRIVE ON BLACKHANDS

Arrest Yorkville Man Following Two Slayings.

OTHERS SOUGHT

Said to be Operating in Eastern Ohio.

What is believed by Brooke county and Steubenville authorities to be an important link in the murder of Dr. Delfino, Follansbee and Steubenville physician, on the Ohio river highway opposit Steubenville seven weeks ago, and that of Nick Pelligrini, 46, Steubenville fruit merchant, who was found murdered Monday evening, was the arrest of Frank Restango, 29, an Italian, at Yorkville last night.

Restango, believed by the authorities to be the leader of a supposed blackhand ring, operating in eastern Ohio and the Panhandle of West Virginia, was arrested as he entered his Yorkville home last night. Authorities stated that Restango had not been home for three days, and expressed opinion that he has been in hiding since the Pelligrini murder, said to have been committed late Saturday or early Sunday morning. The suspect refused to talk when questioned, but a query made by his wife, in which she said: "Where are you taking him, to Wellsburg?" was greeted with significance by the authorities making the arrest.

He was taken to Wellsburgh immediately last evening, where he will be held in the Brooke county jail for questioning, relative to the fatal shooting of Delfino and Pelligrini.

Officials have been seeking Restango for the past three days, and when it was learned that he was away from home, officers were stationed at his home to impede his entrance. His arrest last night was made as he stepped on the porch of his home.

Sheriff Robert M. Lowe, of Brooke county stated last night that two other arrests were made at Follansbee last night, in connection with the blackhand investigation. However, no names will be given out until officials arrest others said to be connected with the alleged ring.

MISSION MEET THURSDAY NIGHT

Members of the Women's Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church will meet Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the church parlors.

Mrs. O. H Moore will be the leader. The third chapter of the story, "At the Foot of No Man," will be read by Mrs. T. H. Scheets. Ladies of the church are invited to attend the session.

RAIL POLICE MAKE SECOND THEFT ARREST

Abe Katz Charged With Receiving Stolen Property.

HEARING MONDAY

Local Junk Dealer Posts $2,000 Bond for Appearance.

Second arrest in connection with efforts of Pennsylvania Railroad police to break up an alleged "theft ring" which, it claimed, has been responsible for the removal of brass and other equipment from the railroad property was made last night after rail authorities had filed charges of receiving stolen property against Abe Katz, local junk dealer.

Katz was arraigned before Mayor W. L. Fogo and posted bond of $2,000 for his appearance on Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock for a hearing before the mayor.

Police indicated today that there will be additional arrests in the case.

The arrest of Katz followed that of John Shultz on a larceny count. Shultz also posted bond of $2,000 for a hearing Monday afternoon.

esting people, including two Roosevelts, Theodore, Jr., and Kermit. It was their father's book on hunting in Africa that started the prince in that direction.

There was also Ernest Thompson Seton, who could have told exactly what the gorilla was thinking about when the bullet hit him; Stefansson who knows the north as well as the prince knows the Equator, and Mr. Macrea, head of Dutton & Co., who makes good books.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE tells congress that "rebels" in Nicaragua got assistance from President Calles of Mexico. The rebels are to be congratulated, assuming that they are on the right side, as were some American rebels in 1776.

On the other hand, the Nicaraguan government has the assistance of this country and its president, so it can probably afford to laugh at Mexico—although you never can tell.

THERE may not be any punishment for stage indecency, but there is for lying. Carl Carroll, according to sworn testimony, got a young woman half drunk, then caused her to appear naked in a bathtub filled with real or imitation champagne to amuse an intellectual gathering of friends.

Nobody took seriously the drunken-naked-bath-tub part of it. But Mr. Carroll was convicted of lying under oath, and the United States court decides that he must spend a year and a day in prison. If you give a naked wine bath-tub party, don't lie about it.

ON FRIDAY the Chicago Civic Opera company will broadcast its entire performance, an enlightened, public-spirited course.

The Metropolitan Opera in New York will do likewise some day and profit by it. Artists making talking machine records know that publicity is valuable.

Meanwhile Mr. Kahn and his associates in New York's Metropoltan Opera will make a good start in their new opera house building, providing excellent seats at reasonable prices, from which the opera will be seen and heard, as good for seeing and hearing as those built for the exhibition of pearls and diamonds.

CHICAGO seeks to control crime by preventing sale of pistols. As well try to stop bootlegging by forbidding sale of bottles. You can keep honest men, not criminals, from getting deadly weapons.

Chicago bandits operate with gas bombs and machine guns and it is ridiculous to talk about keeping little pistols from them. If necessary pistol bootleggers would appear and supply the demand at higher prices.

To discourage crime, put those that have once used a pistol where they will never again use it, this side of the River Jordan.

MISSIONARIES MAY EVACUATE CHINESE ZONE

Americans are Ordered to Leave Fukien Province.

MISSION SEIZED

Plans Made to Hold International Settlement at Shanghai.

PEKING, Jan. 12—Preparations for the vacuation of all American missionaries from Fukien province were ordered today by Consul Price in a message to the American legation here.

The consul's report indicated that the enmity of the Nationalist troops is being aroused against all foreigners by professional agitators.

The American mission at Shahwu, Fukien province, has been seized by the Nationalist troops.

It is understood that American officials here are not in agreement with the British relinquishment of the Hankow concession, and that every possible means will be employed to hold the international settlement at Shanghai against Chinese occupation, should an attack be made.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Despite the expectations of an early decrease in the New York federal reserve bank, industrial stocks were under selling pressure in early trading today, and the trend of values was downward. The railroad shares made a better showing, with Atchison and the Northwestern rail stocks the centers of interest in that section of the market.

The professionals who were "looking for weak spots" threw a good volume of selling orders into the motor shares list at the beginning of trading. Hudson declined sharply to 53 for a new 2 point loss, while Hupp, Willys Overland and Studebaker were deflected fractionally downward. As a rule the offerings were well absorbed, and prices were inclined to snap back from the low levels of the first half hour.

The 4 per cent call loan renewal rate appears to be the established rate for the current period. Meanwhile the marking down of bankers' acceptance rates and the softening of time money rates has ushered in the period of easy money which usually appears at this time of year.

Slight progress was made in a few of the independent oil stocks, including Shell Union, Barnsdall, Marland, Phillips Petroleum and Skelly. The Standard Oil of Indiana cut gasoline a cent a gallon in its territory today, but the oil markets were reported as firm in the other districts.

The commodity markets were firm with cotton up about 5 points and the principal grains fractionally higher. Industrial reports were unchanged, with higher bookings reported for the steel mills and a waiting policy in other industries.

years—ever since she divorced her husband in 1916 for non-support—she supported "Peaches" and educated her. She sent "Peaches" to boarding school at St. Mary's of the Springs at Shepard, Ohio, and kept her at school when they came to New York five years ago up to the time she met Browning.

Asked if there was any truth in the report that "Peaches" plans to act as chief hostess at a fashionable Broadway night club owned by Texas Guinan after her trial is over, Mrs. Heenan said there was not. She admitted that Miss Guinan had invited 'Peaches to her home the other evening, saying it was the first night "Peaches" had been out in weeks, but "Peaches' was home at eleven and made no agreement or arrangement with the night club owner.

"Keep away from Broadway, I advised Babe," said Mrs. Heenan, "you're not the Broadway type, dear. Keep away from old men, and when this trial is over go back to the younger crowd, those wholesome happy boys and girls you used to know."

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. ACCUSED WELLSVILLE MEN POST BONDS OF $40,000

Counsel for Rocco Carbicella and Frank Fusco Protests.

BOTH RE-INDICTED

State Charges They Offered $390 to Sheriff Wright.

Rocco Carbicella and Frank Fusco, of Wellsville, re-indicted by the January grand jury on charges of offering a bribe of $390 to Sheriff George Wright in an effort, it is alleged, to persuade the officer to "lay off" the Patrolman James Kenney murder investigation, have been placed under bonds of $40,000 each.

Opposition to such a heavy bond was voiced by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of defense counsel.

"The prosecuting attorney must elect under which indictment the men will next be brought to trial, and I can see no reason why such a heavy bond should be demanded at this time when the men are already under heavy bond," said Attorney O'Grady.

When the two men were previously indicted for an attempt to bribe Sheriff Wright the court placed the bonds at $5,000 each.

The law provides that bondsmen must be worth at least double the amount of the bond, and in this case the $5,000 bond would be equal to $10,000 in each case, or a total of $20,000.

Under the re-indictment the bond was placed at $5,000 in each case, and the former bond was not disturbed. This then increases the bonds to $40,000.

Under the murder indictment, the court set the bond at $20,000 in the Carbicella case or equal to $40,000. As a result Carbicello and Fusco have been bonded to the extent of $80,000, about the largest ever demanded in a criminal action in this county in recent years.

AUTHORITIES LAUNCH DRIVE ON BLACKHANDS

Arrest Yorkville Man Following Two Slayings.

OTHERS SOUGHT

Said to be Operating in Eastern Ohio.

What is believed by Brooke county and Steubenville authorities to be an important link in the murder of Dr. Delfino, Follansbee and Steubenville physician, on the Ohio river highway opposit Steubenville seven weeks ago, and that of Nick Pelligrini, 46, Steubenville fruit merchant, who was found murdered Monday evening, was the arrest of Frank Restango, 39, an Italian, at Yorkville last night.

Restango, believed by the authorities to be the leader of a supposed blackhand ring, operating in eastern Ohio and the Panhandle of West Virginia, was arrested as he entered his Yorkville home last night. Authorities stated that Restango had not been home for three days, and expressed opinion that he has been in hiding since the Pelligrini murder, said to have been committed late Saturday or early Sunday morning. The suspect refused to talk when questioned, but a query made by his wife, in which she said: "Where are you taking him, to Wellsburg?" was greeted with significance by the authorities making the arrest.

He was taken to Wellsburgh immediately last evening, where he will be held in the Brooke county jail for questioning, relative to the fatal shooting of Delfino and Pelligrini.

Officials have been seeking Restango for the past three days, and when it was learned that he was away from home, officers were stationed at his home to impede his entrance. His arrest last night was made as he stepped on the porch of his home.

Sheriff Robert M. Lowe, of Brooke county stated last night that two other arrests were made at Follansbee last night, in connection with the blackhand investigation. However, no names will be given out until officials arrest others said to be connected with the alleged ring.

MISSION MEET THURSDAY NIGHT

Members of the Women's Missionary society of the First Presbyterian church will meet Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the church parlors.

Mrs. O. H. Moore will be the leader.

The third chapter of the story, "At the Foot of No Man," will be read by Mrs. T. H. Scheets. Ladies of the church are invited to attend the session.

RAIL POLICE MAKE SECOND THEFT ARREST

Abe Katz Charged With Receiving Stolen Property.

HEARING MONDAY

Local Junk Dealer Posts $2,000 Bond for Appearance.

Second arrest in connection with efforts of Pennsylvania Railroad police to break up an alleged "theft ring" which, it claimed, has been responsible for the removal of brass and other equipment from the railroad property was made last night after rail authorities had filed charges of receiving stolen property against Abe Katz, local junk dealer.

Katz was arraigned before Mayor W. L. Fogo and posted bond of $2,000 for his appearance on Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock for a hearing before the mayor.

Police indicated today that there will be additional arrests in the case.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Despite the expectations of an early decrease in the New York federal reserve bank, industrial stocks were under selling pressure in early trading today, and the trend of values was downward. The railroad shares made a better showing, with Atchison and the Northwestern rail stocks the centers of interest in that section of the market.

The professionals who were "looking for weak spots" threw a good volume of selling orders into the motor shares list at the beginning of trading. Hudson declined sharply to 53 for a new 2 point loss, while Hupp, Willys Overland and Studebaker were deflected fractionally downward. As a rule the offerings were well absorbed, and prices were inclined to snap back from the low levels of the first half hour.

Landis Makes Baseball History Today In Scandal Decision

ELKS IN FIRST PLACE AS SALINEVILLE DOWNS SALEM LEAGUERS

Buck Weaver, Former White Sox Star, Also May Learn His Fate

Commissioner Faces Task of Deciding Whether Risberg and Gandil, or 31 Prominent Diamond Figures Told the Truth.

By Copeland C. Burg.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Judge K. M. Landis, makes baseball history today.

The snow-crowned czar of the diamond game brings to a conclusion, by decision, his $20,000 investigation of charges that the Chicago White Sox "bought and paid for" a "thrown" series with the Detroit Tigers in 1917

The baseball commissioner faced the task of deciding whether Charles "Swede" Risberg and Arnold "Chick" Gandil, former White Sox stars ousted in the 1919 scandal, or 31 prominent diamond figures, past and present, told the truth.

Risberg and Gandil charged members of the Chicago American league team put $45 in a "pool" to pay the Tigers for handing them four games. The 31 accused players testified before Landis the Sox merely "gave the money" to the Tigers as a reward for Detroit's victories over the Boston club, then at the heels of the Chicago club.

Complete exoneration of the accused men is expected. It is hardly in the cards, a majority contend, that Landis will uphold the traducement painted by the ousted "Black Sox" pair.

At the same time Judge Landis' known penchant for the unusual and spectacular and the fact that the accusers had little at stake, while the careers of the accused were placed in jeopardy, has created the impression in some quarters the charges will be sustained.

Among the players involved, many of them still prominent in baseball, are four managers—Ray Schalk, new White Sox pilot, Donie Bush of the Pittsburgh Pirates, John Collins of the Des Moines club of the Western league, and Oscar Vitt of the Hollywood team, Pacific Coast league.

Eddie Collins, the former White Sox manager, now with the Philadelphia Jackmen; Clarence Rowland, manager of the Six in 1917 and now an American league umpire, and Kid Gleason, coach of the Mackmen, are other well known players who face the bar today.

In addition to the verdict in the Risberg-Gandil investigation, Judge Landis may also decide today the fate of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, former Detroit and Cleveland managers, and George "Buck" Weaver, White Sox star banned in the 1919 scandal.

Cobb and Speaker were "ousted" from baseball as a result of charges of "Dutch" Leonard, one-time Detroit pitcher, involving them in an alleged betting coup and a "thrown" game between Detroit and Cleveland in September, 1919. Attorneys for Cobb and Speaker are reported demanding a face-to-face meeting with Leonard, and Landis may rule at this time whether or not he intends to re-open that case.

Weaver, who refused to substantiate the charges of Risberg, asserting he did not even contribute to the "golden pot," climaxed his appearance before Landis with a request for reinstatement in baseball. His formal application is now in the hands of the commissioner.

That the commissioner will at this time re-open either the Cobb-Speaker or Weaver cases appeared doubtful. He has repeatedly stated he has no plans for such action.

Ex-Kings Meet In Gotham Ring

PAUL BERLENBACH

MIKE McTIGUE

Paul Berlenbach and Mike McTigue, both formerly light heavyweight champions, will meet at Madison Square Garden, New York City, Jan. 28. Berlenbach took the title from McTigue and lost it to Jack Delaney.

DATE IS FIXED FOR DEMPSEY'S RING COMEBACK

May 26, at Yanks Park, Tentatively Selected by Rickard.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Jack Dempsey's mooted come back—if, when or at all—has been set tentatively by Tex Rickard for the night of Thursday, May 26, at the Yankee stadium, according to skeletonized plans said to have been outlined by the promoter in a long distance conversation with Dempsey two days ago. Dempsey's opponent will be any one of five men—Jack Sharkey, Jimmy Maloney, Jack Delaney, Paolino or Paul Berlenbach—and the winner will qualify without further question for the title shot with Gene Tunney in September.

No definite date will be named for the Dempsey match until two factors are determined. They are, listed in the order of their importance, the question of whether Dempsey will fight at all and the approximate location of the New York Yankees on the day in question. The latter will be determined by the official American league schedule to be drafted in February.

However, Dempsey's presumed reappearance under colors will not take place later than the first week in June, since Rickard is under contract to Tunney to name the latter's challenger on June 15. Rickard expects to know what it is all about by that time—whether or not Dempsey's plan to challenge for the title is a lot of soup meat; the real intentions of Jack Delaney about playing with the other inmates and, if so, whether he really belongs in the first place; and the respective capabilities of Sharkey, Maloney, Paolino, Berlenbach and sundry challengers, alleged and otherwise.

Rickard will know the worst about Paolino when the Spaniard returns from Cuba to meet Knute Hanson, a match that has been arranged with the tacit hope that Knute doesn't choose the nearest exit and run, not walk. The Knute is supposed to be a fistic squirrel; he can fight but you have to catch him first.

Assuming that Paolino survives this awful carnage, the next step will be a match with either Maloney or Sharkey in February. Maloney generally is understood to be favored for the shot with Sharkey to be held in reserve for a rally with the winner in March.

This series will bring the situation pretty well up to date, only Delaney and Berlenbach being unaccounted for. However, they will get some action somewhere, provided Delaney begins to play smart and joins the line forming on the left. He probably will be substituted in the scheme of things for Paolino if the latter looks the part of a tramp against Hanson, which is not at all unlikely. On the strength of his record, Delaney cannot be ignored by any man who wants to develop the ultimate and final challenger.

Offhand, the writer would pick Delaney as the fill-in for Dempsey at the Yankee stadium match. My impression is and has been that the ex-champion will turn up very absent when the show down comes.

AL ZILL NOW MATCHMAKER

Will Work For A. C. Wilson, Race-Ring Promoter.

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 12.—Al Zill's New Year's resolution—henceforth, now and forever, to have nothing to do with the promoting and matchmaking end of the boxing game—has gone the way of the usual "I firmly resolves.'

Ten days following his solemn declaration the ex-promoter and matchmaker let it be known today that he had slightly modified that resolution to read something like this:

"Henceforth, now and forever, I will not put any of my own money in the promoting game, but I will do what I can to make some mony for myself and any promoter that will furnish backing."

With this announcement Zill gave it out this morning that he had reached an agreement with Austin C. Wilson, prominent automobile racing promoter, whereby Wilson would become the promoter of local boxing affair and Al would do the matchmaking. Wilson is to furnish the capital and Zill is to line up attractions that will either put a severe dent in Aust's exchequer or, should fate be a little kinder, swell it beyond the fondest expectations.

Messrs. Wilson and Zill have some well laid plans to put the fight game back on its tottering limbs during the remainder of the winter. Foremost of these is the declaration by Wilson that money will be no object in securing talent that will compare favorably with the best to be seen in Cleveland.

STUFFY McINNIS will leave the family doorstep at his Philadelphia home in the early days of April, start down the street in one direction and then change his mind.

Stuffy, who spent the best years of this baseball life with the Athletics at Shibe Park, was signed this winter to manage the Philadelphia Nationals, so he can't be blamed if he starts for the wrong park now and then.

STUFFY McINNIS

McInnis was signed by the Athletics in 1908 just after leaving high school at Gloucester, Mass. He became a star almost over night and was a member of the famous $100,000 infield. He broke into four world series. He was traded to the Red Sox in 1918, being the last member of the quartet to go. The Sox traded him to Cleveland in 1922. He moved to the Braves in 1923, was released early in 1925, joined the Pirates and helped them win the league and world pennants.

He played through the season of 1921 with a fielding average of .999, making but one error in the entire campaign.

Mullins Quint in Third Place; Damascus Second.

SPRINGING one of the big surprises of the campaign to date Tom Cartwright's Salineville county league team last night toppled the Salem Mullins Body quint, 30 to 28, and the victory boosted the East Liverpool Elks a little along the road to first half championship honors.

The engagement was staged at Addison Hall, Salineville, and brought out a record crowd.

The Salemites, who have been without the services of "Red" Matticks, star center, failed to develop the mighty offensive that, in the early sections of the first half, gave them a commanding first place position. Without Matticks, the Salem five last week bowed to Damascus.

Maher, Grundy and Raffle collaborated in Salineville's attack on the basket, Maher sinking the ball four times and Grundy and Raffle three times apiece.

Jenkins was the chief point maker for the visitors, bucketing the leather five times while the best Hawkins and Sidinger could do was two apiece.

The Salem five held the edge in the first half, leading, 16 to 13, at the midway intermission period, but Cartwright brought his squad out in front in the concluding quarters, finishing ahead by two points.

The defeat puts Salem in third place, with Damascus now trailing the Elks by one full game.

Lisbon will win another game tonight by forfeit from East Palestine and go into a .500 berth right behind Salem.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The first effect of having the head held mechanically in a fixed position during the back swing is that the back swing shortens greatly. In other words, if you sweep the club away back you also let the head go with it because if you held your head still and took the club back that way something would have to break. Thus it becomes obvious that the reason the par golfer uses a short back swing is not because he is sold on the advantages of the short swing, but for the simple reason that he holds his head still. That makes it automatic. Another phase of this is how solidly the weight goes against the right leg, and yet at the top of the back swing you feel a considerable weight resting on the left toe too. It might appear that more weight was on the left foot than the right, but this is because you have hold of the ground only with the left toe. The weight really is about evenly divided, with perhaps 60 per cent of it on the right foot.

THE BACKSWING GREATLY SHORTENS

POWER QUINT RE-ORGANIZED

Strong Squad Lined up for Remainder of Season.

The Power class five of the Methodist Episcopal church was re-organized for the remainder of the season at a meeting last night.

The Powers will be on the floor the rest of the season with a much faster team than last year's, with the following players already signed: Bucher, C. Nease, Paul Jester (Captain), E. Rockhold, C. Coleman, W. Ashbaugh, Reed, E. Cochrane, Orland Cunningham.

Dewey Geren, manager of last year's team, was re-elected pilot for the present campaign with Earl Cochrane as assistant manager.

Players will practice Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. Games can be booked with Manager Geren, Box 92, Wellsville.

Landis Makes Baseball History Today In Scandal Decision

ELKS IN FIRST PLACE AS SALINEVILLE DOWNS SALEM LEAGUERS

Buck Weaver, Former White Sox Star, Also May Learn His Fate

Commissioner Faces Task of Deciding Whether Risberg and Gandil, or 31 Prominent Diamond Figures Told the Truth.

By Copeland C. Burg.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Judge K. M. Landis, makes baseball history today.

The snow-crowned czar of the diamond game brings to a conclusion, by decision, his $20,000 investigation of charges that the Chicago White Sox "bought and paid for" a "thrown" series with the Detroit Tigers in 1917

The baseball commissioner faced the task of deciding whether Charles "Swede" Risberg and Arnold "Chick" Gandil, former White Sox stars ousted in the 1919 scandal, or 31 prominent diamond figures, past and present, told the truth.

Risberg and Gandil charged members of the Chicago American league team put $45 in a "pool" to pay the Tigers for handing them four games. The 31 accused players testified before Landis the Sox merely "gave the money" to the Tigers as a reward for Detroit's victories over the Boston club, then at the heels of the Chicago club.

Complete exoneration of the accused men is expected. It is hardly in the cards, a majority contend, that Landis will uphold the traducement painted by the ousted "Black Sox" pair.

At the same time Judge Landis' known penchant for the unusual and spectacular and the fact that the accusers had little at stake, while the careers of the accused were placed in jeopardy, has created the impression in some quarters the charges will be sustained.

Among the players involved, many of them still prominent in baseball, are four managers—Ray Schalk, new White Sox pilot, Donie Bush of the Pittsburgh Pirates, John Collins of the Des Moines club of the Western league, and Oscar Vitt of the Hollywood team, Pacific Coast league.

Eddie Collins, the former White Sox manager, now with the Philadelphia Nackmen; Clarence Rowland, manager of the Six in 1917 and now an American league umpire, and Kid Gleason, coach of the Mackmen, are other well known players who face the bar today.

In addition to the verdict in the Risberg-Gandil investigation, Judge Landis may also decide today the fate of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, former Detroit and Cleveland managers, and George "Buck" Weaver, White Sox star banned in the 1919 scandal.

Cobb and Speaker were "ousted" from baseball as a result of charges of "Dutch" Leonard, one-time Detroit pitcher, involving them in an alleged betting coup and a "thrown" game between Detroit and Cleveland in September, 1919. Attorneys for Cobb and Speaker are reported demanding a face-to-face meeting with Leonard, and Landis may rule at this time whether or not he intends to re-open that case.

Weaver, who refused to substantiate the charges of Risberg, asserting he did not even contribute to the "golden pot," climaxed his appearance before Landis with a request for reinstatement in baseball. His formal application is now in the hands of the commissioner.

That the commissioner will at this time re-open either the Cobb-Speaker or Weaver cases appeared doubtful. He has repeatedly stated he has no plans for such action.

Ex-Kings Meet In Gotham Ring

PAUL BERLENBACH

MIKE McTIGUE

Paul Berlenbach and Mike McTigue, both formerly light heavyweight champions, will meet at Madison Square Garden, New York City, Jan. 29. Berlenbach took the title from McTigue and lost it to Jack Delaney.

DATE IS FIXED FOR DEMPSEY'S RING COMEBACK

May 26, at Yanks Park, Tentatively Selected by Rickard.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Jack Dempsey's mooted come back—if, when or at all—has been set tentatively by Tex Rickard for the night of Thursday, May 26, at the Yankee stadium, according to skeletonized plans said to have been outlined by the promoter in a long distance conversation with Dempsey two days ago. Dempsey's opponent will be any one of five men—Jack Sharkey, Jimmy Maloney, Jack Delaney, Paolino or Paul Berlenbach—and the winner will qualify without further question for the title shot with Gene Tunney in September.

No definite date will be named for the Dempsey match until two factors are determined. They are, listed in the order of their importance, the question of whether Dempsey will fight at all and the approximate location of the New York Yankees on the day in question. The latter will be determined by the official American league schedule to be drafted in February.

However, Dempsey's presumed reappearance under colors will not take place later than the first week in June, since Rickard is under contract to Tunney to name the latter's challenger on June 15. Rickard expects to know what it is all about by that time—whether or not Dempsey's plan to challenge for the title is a lot of soup meat; the real intentions of Jack Delaney about playing with the other inmates and, if so, whether he really belongs in the first place; and the respective capabilities of Sharkey, Maloney, Paolino, Berlenbach and sundry challengers, alleged and otherwise.

Rickard will know the worst about Paolino when the Spaniard returns from Cuba to meet Knute Hanson, a match that has been arranged with the tacit hope that Knute doesn't choose the nearest exit and run, not walk. The Knute is supposed to be a fistic squirrel; he can fight but you have to catch him first.

Assuming that Paolino survives this awful carnage, the next step will be a match with either Maloney or Sharkey in February. Maloney generally is understood to be favored for the shot with Sharkey to be held in reserve for a rally with the winner in March.

This series will bring the situation pretty well up to date, only Delaney and Berlenbach being unaccounted for. However, they will get some action somewhere, provided Delaney begins to play smart and joins the line forming on the left. He probably will be substituted in the scheme of things for Paolino if the latter looks the part of a tramp against Hanson, which is not at all unlikely. On the strength of his record, Delaney cannot be ignored by any man who wants to develop the ultimate and final challenger.

Offhand, the writer would pick Delaney as the fill-in for Dempsey at the Yankee stadium match. My impression is and has been that the ex-champion will turn up very absent when the show down comes.

CERAMIC BOOKS MENJOU FILM

Ricardo Cortez Also Appears in "Sorrows of Satan."

Satan was first represented in human form during the ninth century. This curious fact was recently brought to light by the Paramount Long Island Studio's Research department.

The representation was on an ivory diptych of the time of Charles the Bold.

Since then a long line of painters—Schongauer, Durer, Michelangelo, Titan, Raphael, Rubens, Pussin, Van Dyck, Breughel, Gustave Dore—and innumerable book illustrators and other artists have produced their conception of the spirit of evil. Modern artists—Felicien Rops, Max Klinger and Franz Stuck—have embodied the Evil One as a female. Victor Hugo thought the Devil to be a woman.

It was necessary to collect a mass of data and paintings so that D. W. Griffith could have something with which to work when production began on his version of Marie Corelli's book, "Sorrows of Satan," which opens a three-day run at the Ceramic theatre tomorrow.

In his treatment of the story, Mr. Griffith follows Miss Corelli's conception of Satan. He is pictured as a polished man of the world, tempting those with whom he associates. But — in order to introduce Satan make his motives clear it has been found necessary to go back to the legend of Lucifer's expulsion from Heaven.

Adolphe Menjou as Satan, Ricardo Cortez, Carol Dempster and Lya de Putti are featured in "Sorrows of Satan." John Russell and George Hull adapted the Corelli novel. Forest Halsey scenarized it. "Sorrows of Satan, following "That Royle Girl," is Griffith's second film for Paramount.

Haskin's Letter

once president of the United States and is now at the head of its judiciary. They may get themselves presented at the White House and enjoy the privilege of shaking the hand that rules the most important sector of the world and they may see cabinet members, generals, and admirals, world without end.

Then, too, there are many side trips to be taken from Washington that in themselves repay one for a trip across the continent. Arlington, Alexandria, Mount Vernon, the beautiful Potomac country, are immediately at hand, and not far away are a dozen great battlefields and scenic attractions not to be found anywhere else in the United States.

One important feature of the convention bureau as it is now exemplified in various cities is service. It is not so many years since a city might invite some national organization to hold an annual meeting within its confines and then forget all about it. The delegates would gather and find that no arrangements had been made to take care of them and that they might not be able to get into an hotel unless they had made reservations individually. Nowadays the convention bureau engages hotel accommodations, has representatives on hand to welcome the incoming hosts, supplies an information bureau, and has skilled men and women to handle registration, et cetera.

Washington business men who support the city's convention bureau say that it is a good investment. They have found that it pays dividends at a rate that would shame the biggest natural monopoly in the country and their only complaint is that not all who benefit from the bureau's work contribute to its support.

And, speaking of Washington as a convention city, few people know or will be willing to believe that the city ranks as one of the first four cities in the United States in the matter of hotel facilities. Such is the case. The others are New York, Chicago, and Atlantic City. Likewise it is to be noted that Washington now has a magnificent auditorium, thanks largely to Col. Robert N. Harper, who had both the vision and the energy to put over that vital municipal enterprise.

Cleveland Votes Use of Paddle On Unruly Pupils

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 12.—Local school children are to be disciplined according to the ancient manner—with a paddle.

By a vote of four to three, members of the school board have decided a controversy which has raged here for months by ordering unruly students to be punished with the rod.

Board members who voted for the paddle, declared that school discipline must be maintained "in view of the breakdown in home control of youth."

INGRAM FILM PLEASES CROWD

American Theatre Offers "Four Horsemen of Apocalypse.

Rex Ingram's well remembered screen classic, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," one of the greatest films ever produced by the industry is now showing at the American theatre. The picture, unsurpassed as an artistic record of its time, is the film that brought the late Rudolph Valentino to fame. Valentino plays opposite Alice Terry in this picture, and in it does some of the best work he ever contributed to the screen.

An enormous cast was employed by Director Ingram with phenomenal success in translating the popular Ibanez novel to the screen. Its first showing aroused unprecedented enthusiasm in New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Los Angeles and other film centers, where it was characterized by the critics as one of the great pictures of all time.

June Mathis made the adaptation for this Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn.

DANCE GARDENS OPEN THURSDAY

Rock Springs Pavilion Parties Friday and Saturday, Too.

Large crowds are expected to attend the dances to be conducted at Rock Springs' Park, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, when "Virginia Gardens," the new pavilion, will be opened for the winter season.

The dance on Thursday night is for employes of the Homer Laughlin China company, members of their families and friends. The dances on Friday and Saturday evenings will be public affairs. Sam Smolin's Radio orchestra, of Akron, an eight-piece organization, will play.

Ample parking space has been provided in the park for automobiles. Six guards will watch over the machines during the dance. Cabs may enter from the rear entrance to the park, Sixth street and Indiana avenue, or at the main entrance. Street cars from East Liverpool will make the loop, running to the park entrance for the accommodation of the visitors.

Public dances will be held every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, while the pavilion will be open for private dances on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Progress is being made on the new coaster ride under construction in the park. This ride will be completed by early spring. Other amusement features are to be installed before the playground opens for the summer season on or about Decoration Day.

CERAMIC BOOKS MENJOU FILM

Ricardo Cortez Also Appears in "Sorrows of Satan."

Satan was first represented in human form during the ninth century. This curious fact was recently brought to light by the Paramount Long Island Studio's Research department.

The representation was on an ivory diptych of the time of Charles the Bold.

Since then a long line of painters—Schongauer, Durer, Michelangelo, Titan, Raphael, Rubens, Pussin, Van Dyck, Breughel, Gustave Dore—and innumerable book illustrators and other artists have produced their conception of the spirit of evil. Modern artists—Felicien Rops, Max Klinger and Franz Stuck—have embodied the Evil One as a female. Victor Hugo thought the Devil to be a woman.

It was necessary to collect a mass of data and paintings so that D. W. Griffith could have something with which to work when production began on his version of Marie Corelli's book, "Sorrows of Satan," which opens a three-day run at the Ceramic theatre tomorrow.

In his treatment of the story, Mr. Griffith follows Miss Corelli's conception of Satan. He is pictured as a polished man of the world, tempting those with whom he associates. But — in order to introduce Satan make his motives clear it has been found necessary to go back to the legend of Lucifer's expulsion from Heaven.

Adolphe Menjou as Satan, Ricardo Cortez, Carol Dempster and Lya de Putti are featured in "Sorrows of Satan." John Russell and George Hull adapted the Corelli novel. Forest Halsey scenarized it. "Sorrows of Satan, following "That Royle Girl," is Griffith's second film for Paramount.

Haskin's Letter

once president of the United States and is now at the head of its judiciary. They may get themselves presented at the White House and enjoy the privilege of shaking the hand that rules the most important sector of the world and they may see cabinet members, generals, and admirals, world without end.

Then, too, there are many side trips to be taken from Washington that in themselves repay one for a trip across the continent. Arlington, Alexandria, Mount Vernon, the beautiful Potomac country, are immediately at hand, and not far away are a dozen great battlefields and scenic attractions not to be found anywhere else in the United States.

One important feature of the convention bureau as it is now exemplified in various cities is service. It is not so many years since a city might invite some national organization to hold an annual meeting within its confines and then forget all about it. The delegates would gather and find that no arrangements had been made to take care of them and that they might not be able to get into an hotel unless they had made reservations individually. Nowadays the convention bureau engages hotel accommodations, has representatives on hand to welcome the incoming hosts, supplies an information bureau, and has skilled men and women to handle registration, et cetera.

Washington business men who support the city's convention bureau say that it is a good investment. They have found that it pays dividends at a rate that would shame the biggest natural monopoly in the country and their only complaint is that not all who benefit from the bureau's work contribute to its support.

And, speaking of Washington as a convention city, few people know or will be willing to believe that the city ranks as one of the first four cities in the United States in the matter of hotel facilities. Such is the case. The others are New York, Chicago, and Atlantic City. Likewise it is to be noted that Washington now has a magnificent auditorium, thanks largely to Col. Robert N. Harper, who had both the vision and the energy to put over that vital municipal enterprise.

Cleveland Votes Use of Paddle On Unruly Pupils

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 12.—Local school children are to be disciplined according to the ancient manner—with a paddle.

By a vote of four to three, members of the school board have decided a controversy which has raged here for months by ordering unruly students to be punished with the rod.

Board members who voted for the paddle, declared that school discipline must be maintained "in view of the breakdown in home control of youth."

INGRAM FILM PLEASES CROWD

American Theatre Offers "Four Horsemen of Apocalypse.

Rex Ingram's well remembered screen classic, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," one of the greatest films ever produced by the industry is now showing at the American theatre. The picture, unsurpassed as an artistic record of its time, is the film that brought the late Rudolph Valentino to fame. Valentino plays opposite Alice Terry in this picture, and in it does some of the best work he ever contributed to the screen.

An enormous cast was employed by Director Ingram with phenomenal success in translating the popular Ibanez novel to the screen. Its first showing aroused unprecedented enthusiasm in New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Los Angeles and other film centers, where it was characterized by the critics as one of the great pictures of all time.

June Mathis made the adaptation for this Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn.

DANCE GARDENS OPEN THURSDAY

Rock Springs Pavilion Parties Friday and Saturday, Too.

Large crowds are expected to attend the dances to be conducted at Rock Springs' Park, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, when "Virginia Gardens," the new pavilion, will be opened for the winter season.

The dance on Thursday night is for employes of the Homer Laughlin China company, members of their families and friends. The dances on Friday and Saturday evenings will be public affairs. Sam Smolin's Radio orchestra, of Akron, an eight-piece organization, will play.

Ample parking space has been provided in the park for automobiles. Six guards will watch over the machines during the dance. Cabs may enter from the rear entrance to the park, Sixth street and Indiana avenue, or at the main entrance. Street cars from East Liverpool will make the loop, running to the park entrance for the accommodation of the visitors.

Public dances will be held every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, while the pavilion will be open for private dances on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Progress is being made on the new coaster ride under construction in the park. This ride will be completed by early spring. Other amusement features are to be installed before the playground opens for the summer season on or about Decoration Day.

HARMONY RULES PARTY CAUCUSES

Republican members of the legislature in caucus session last night at Charleston named M. Z. White for presiding officer of the senate, while Vernon E. Johnson was named as the majority candidate for speaker of the house of delegates.

Democrats named Harry P. Henshaw, of Berkley county, as their candidate for president of the senate and L. T. Harvey, of Braxton, as the choice for speaker.

Selections were made by acclamation.

COUNTY SCHOOL UNIT PROPOSED

Recommendation Is Made in Report of State Superintendent.

Advocacy of the county as the school unit, forms the chief subject of discussion in the recommendations contained in the biennial report of George M. Ford, state superintendent of schools, just submitted to Governor Gore. For sometime representatives of Mr. Ford's department have been traveling over the state and visiting education boards to explain the details of the county unit plan. Bills to take care of the matter have been drawn up for submission to the legislature. The plan as advocated by Mr. Ford, would not eliminate the school district boards, but would serve primarily for the purpose of equalizing educational opportunities in all counties.

"The vital equalization factor is missing under the existing system of financing the schools," said Mr. Ford in his report. The statement is followed by the presentation of statistics proving the point.

There are two large places at which the schools are losing an unusually large percentage of their pupils, says the report. These places are at the end of the sixth grade and at the end of the eighth grade. Twenty-five per cent of the sixth grade pupils do not go on to the seventh grade and 52 per cent of the eighth grade pupils do not enter high school.

This mortality, as it is termed, is heaviest in the one, two and three room schools. In these schools there are only 13 per cent as many pupils in the eighth grade as there are in the first grade. Whereas, in the city schools, there are 52 per cent as many pupils in the eighth grade as in the first grade.

The reorganization of the school system proposed by Mr. Ford and embodied in carefully drawn bills to be presented to the legislature embraces a county board of education that would effect a consolidation of district school budgets into a county school budget as a basis for laying a county school levy to guarantee the minimum standard of school service, and the creation of a distributable state school fund of approximately one-third to one-half of teachers' fund and maintenance fund.

WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Members of the Chester Woman's club met yesterday with Mrs. R. A. Douglass at her home in Louisiana avenue. Sealed program was given.

Music was given under the direction of H. F. Laughlin, accompanied by his son, Robert Laughlin. Piano duet was rendered by Rev. and Mrs. W. J. H. McKnight.

Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, East Liverpool, spoke on the subject, "Building of a Soul as the Most Important Thing in This Life."

Social hour was enjoyed during which refreshments were served by members of the social committee.

How to Build Healthy Flesh

Gives Added Strength, Too

If you are thin and drawn-looking and tire easily or are not up to proper weight, you are undernourished—the food you eat fails to build energy and muscle and health as it should.

Your system needs the right kind of digestive stimulation—must have it if you want the rugged appearance of health and the power to resist disease and the strains of every day tasks.

A remarkable stimulant-tonic has been devised for just such conditions as these. It is delightfully palatable and is prepared by an old Virginia concern in business for nearly a century. Druggists and physicians have come to know this stimulant as "Old Monticello Tonic." Get a bottle today from your druggist, take a small wineglass full before your next meal—see how much better you eat—feel the glow of stimulated functions throughout the body. A few days' treatment will bring a quick change in run-down conditions and overcome lack of energy.

SHERIFF LOWE DEFIES GANG

Sheriff Robert M. Lowe, Brooke county, last night affirmed reports that have leaked out since the Nick Pelligrini murder that he has been advised of a plot to take his life because of his activities in running down a murderous criminal gang that has taken heavy toll in the valley.

From his office in Wellsburg, Sheriff Lowe stated he has received four death threats. Although he is accompanied by deputies wherever he goes, he is still pursuing his chase, in running to earth the murderers of Dr. Deigo Delfino, prominent Follansbee and Steubenville physician, shot five times while driving his automobile near Follansbee seven weeks ago.

Four separate threats have been received, he said. The first, a letter came in an indirect way six months ago. The second letter was found in the sheriff's automobile the day following the Dr. Delfino murder. This letter threatened the sheriff's life if he attempted to investigate the murder, or should the arrest of any member of the "society" result from his investigations.

STATE HOSPITAL SWEPT BY FIRE

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 12.—Thirty-three patients in the Williamson hospital narrowly escaped cremation early last night when fire, thought to have started in the offices of the hospital, swept the building and left only the four exterior walls holding a bed of smouldering ruins.

All of the patients were rescued by Williamson firemen with the assistance of hospital staffs and volunteers who in many instances risked their own lives to remove the patients to safety.

The annex buildings of the Presbyterian and First Baptist churches were hurriedly converted into temporary quarters for the patients and those who were unable to be cared for in these quarters were taken into private homes.

Class Meeting Scheduled.

Members of the Bible Searchers' class of the First Methodist Episcopal church will meet tomorrow night in the tabernacle. Mrs. Joseph Allen and Mrs. Dick will be in charge of the program.

Commissioner Mayhew Ill.

J. L. Mayhew, president of the Hancock county court, who has been ill at his home in Indiana avenue, is recovering.

Revival Services Here.

Rev. C. E. Rostofer, of Ashtabula, O., preached at the evangelistic services last night in the First Christian church. The meeting was largely attended. Selections were given by the Shingleton quartet.

Mrs. Hettie Sill.

Mrs. Hettie Sill, 60 years old, former resident of East Liverpool, died today at her home in Beaver Falls, Pa.

She is survived by three daughters, also one sister, Mrs. J. W. Spahr, East Liverpool, and one brother, Charles T. Burne, San Monica, Cal.

Mrs. Hager Hostess.

Mrs. Rodney Hager was hostess to members of the Queen Esther class of the First Presbyterian church last night at her home in Carolina avenue. The usual program was carried out.

Mission Society To Meet.

Mrs. R. B. Rutledge will entertain members of the Women's Missionary society of the United Presbyterian church at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at her home in Phoenix avenue.

Baby Clinic Held.

TELLS WHY MEN AND WOMEN NEVER GROW GRAY OR OLD LOOKING

Their Color Glands Are Normal and Pigment Keeps Hair Nice Shade and Color

ADVISE TO READERS IF TURNING GRAY

A Simple Home Tonic Starts Youthful Color Returning.

Everyone knows if their color glands and hair roots are active and normal they will continue indefinitely to have rich, natural colored hair entirely free of gray, or off-colored locks, so why use dyes or tints?

A doctor several years ago asked himself this question: "If with certain medicines I can stimulate my patient's other organs, why not rub a stimulatign tonic into the scalp that will revive, strengthen and tone up these inactive glands so that nature in her own inimitable way will resume putting plenty of pigment into the hair tubes? Surely the hair will then again resume its original shade and color regardless of the users age or previous condition of their hair.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY

He didn't want an artificial dye or tint and it of course must be harmless and something that could be used for years and years without the slightest injury to hair or scalp. Just like a tonic that builds up a person's strength after some long wasting illness, he wanted a tonic that would revive and stimulate the inactive, weak, or dormant hair roots and color glands.

Under the name of Lea's Hair Tonic anyone may now purchase the scalp food and tonic he finally perfected. For several years hair dressers and specialists have been using it. Results are so natural, gradual and nice that men as well as women use it.

It doesn't stain the scalp. One's friends seldom notice the gradual change and to test what it will do one need only apply it to some small spot for a week or two and watch results.

Men and women in all walks of life have been amazed at the younger appearance that comes with the disappearance of gray hairs from their head. Evidently one need never become gray if they keep the scalp and roots toned up with an occasional massage with Lea's Hair Tonic.

If any reader desires to try a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic on the maker's absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back, they should purchase a bottle at the drug store or pin a dollar bill to this advertisement and send with name and address plainly written to Lea's Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md. $1 bottles parcels post anywhere with full directions.

No one need have gray or off-colored hair any more.

Recommendation Is Made in Report of State Superintendent.

Advocacy of the county as the school unit, forms the chief subject of discussion in the recommendations contained in the biennial report of George M. Ford, state superintendent of schools, just submitted to Governor Gore. For sometime representatives of Mr. Ford's department have been traveling over the state and visiting education boards to explain the details of the county unit plan. Bills to take care of the matter have been drawn up for submission to the legislature. The plan as advocated by Mr. Ford, would not eliminate the school district boards, but would serve primarily for the purpose of equalizing educational opportunities in all counties.

"The vital equalization factor is missing under the existing system of financing the schools," said Mr. Ford in his report. The statement is followed by the presentation of statistics proving the point.

There are two large places at which the schools are losing an unusually large percentage of their pupils, says the report. These places are at the end of the sixth grade and at the end of the eighth grade. Twenty-five per cent of the sixth grade pupils do not go on to the seventh grade and 52 per cent of the eighth grade pupils do not enter high school.

This mortality, as it is termed, is heaviest in the one, two and three room schools. In these schools there are only 13 per cent as many pupils in the eighth grade as there are in the first grade. Whereas, in the city schools, there are 52 per cent as many pupils in the eighth grade as in the first grade.

The reorganization of the school system proposed by Mr. Ford and embodied in carefully drawn bills to be presented to the legislature embraces a county board of education that would effect a consolidation of district school budgets into a county school budget as a basis for laying a county school levy to guarantee the minimum standard of school service, and the creation of a distributable state school fund of approximately one-third to one-half of teachers' fund and maintenance fund.

WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Members of the Chester Woman's club met yesterday with Mrs. R. A. Douglass at her home in Louisiana avenue. Sealed program was given.

Music was given under the direction of H. F. Laughlin, accompanied by his son, Robert Laughlin. Piano duet was rendered by Rev. and Mrs. W. J. H. McKnight.

Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, East Liverpool, spoke on the subject, "Building of a Soul as the Most Important Thing in This Life."

Social hour was enjoyed during which refreshments were served by members of the social committee.

Gives Added Strength, Too

If you are thin and drawn-looking and tire easily or are not up to proper weight, you are undernourished—the food you eat fails to build energy and muscle and health as it should.

Your system needs the right kind of digestive stimulation—must have it if you want the rugged appearance of health and the power to resist disease and the strains of every day tasks.

A remarkable stimulant-tonic has been devised for just such conditions as these. It is delightfully palatable and is prepared by an old Virginia concern in business for nearly a century. Druggists and physicians have come to know this stimulant as "Old Monticello Tonic." Get a bottle today from your druggist, take a small wineglass full before your next meal—see how much better you eat—feel the glow of stimulated functions throughout the body. A few days' treatment will bring a quick change in run-down conditions and overcome lack of energy.

SHERIFF LOWE DEFIES GANG

Sheriff Robert M. Lowe, Brooke county, last night affirmed reports that have leaked out since the Nick Pellegrini murder that he has been advised of a plot to take his life because of his activities in running down a murderous criminal gang that has taken heavy toll in the valley.

From his office in Wellsburg, Sheriff Lowe stated he has received four death threats. Although he is accompanied by deputies wherever he goes, he is still pursuing his chase in running to earth the murderers of Dr. Deigo Delfino, prominent Follansbee and Steubenville physician, shot five times while driving his automobile near Follansbee seven weeks ago.

Four separate threats have been received, he said. The first, a letter came in an indirect way six months ago. The second letter was found in the sheriff's automobile the day following the Dr. Delfino murder. This letter threatened the sheriff's life if he attempted to investigate the murder, or should the arrest of any member of the "society" result from his investigations.

STATE HOSPITAL SWEPT BY FIRE

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Jan. 12.—Thirty-three patients in the Williamson hospital narrowly escaped cremation early last night when fire, thought to have started in the offices of the hospital, swept the building and left only the four exterior walls holding a bed of smouldering ruins.

All of the patients were rescued by Williamson firemen with the assistance of hospital staffs and volunteers who in many instances risked their own lives to remove the patients to safety.

The annex buildings of the Presbyterian and First Baptist churches were hurriedly converted into temporary quarters for the patients and those who were unable to be cared for in these quarters were taken into private homes.

MR. LEACH of the Forum, asked Prince William, second son of the Swedish king, to luncheon yesterday, and showed him the "important editors." The prince, earnest, pleasant young man, much more than six feet high, returned the compliment by showing moving pictures of the mountain gorilla that he killed in Africa, also a leopard devouring a zebra, just killed.

Modern women would be interested in the prince's pictures of African pygmies, including a young mother with one baby in front nursing, another hanging on her back with its little legs wrapped around the mother's waist.

Prince William shot his mountain gorilla as it charged at him, only three yards away. The gorilla ran 50 yards and died. It weighed 400 pounds, knew nothing about any divinity hedging a king, and would have torn the plucky young Swede to pieces had it covered those last three yards.

American youth will want to know that Prince William has diamonds in his cuff buttons, wears a black coat with braid on the edges, but without any tails, long striped trousers and has a thin waist that would fill the stout American business man with envy.

In addition to the dull collection of "leading editors," with faces far less interesting than that of the gorilla killed on the mountains of the moon, Mr. Leach had collected inter-

Review-Tribune Offers Its Readers New Map of Europe

For years our maps have changed the spelling of names in Europe to suit our American pronunciations.

Now our postal authorities, travel agencies, geographers and business houses have decided it is sensible to spell European names as Europeans do. We would laugh if they spelled our cities to match their own pronunciations or accents.

The new map of Europe, just off the newly made plates, shows the new and old spellings, the new and old boundaries, and other post-war changes. Not much like the maps we studied in the old school geographies' Our Washington Information Bureau has secured the first printing of the new maps, exclusively for our readers.

CIVIL SERVICE BOARD UPHOLDS MAYOR FOGO IN "FIRING" FULTZ

Three Charges Against Deposed Department Head Sustained.

FIGHT GOES ON

Accused Officer Will Carry Case to Lisbon Court.

Mayor W. L. Fogo's suspension of Chief of Police John H. Fultz, of Wellsville, on charges of disrespect, disobedience and conduct unbecoming an officer, was sustained by the Wellsville civil service commission in a written opinion handed down today.

The former chief announced immediately he will appeal the finding to common pleas court, Lisbon.

Aftermath of Pugia Arrest.

The decision of the commission follows a one-night hearing last week in which six witnesses were examined by the prosecution, including City Hall Patrolman John Duncan, William Taylor, a garage owner; George Davis, newspaper publisher; Mayor Fogo; Fultz and James Pugia, whose arrest and arraignment in police court here precipitated the break between the mayor and the police chief.

Pugia was arrested by the chief and Patrolman John Cole on charges of possessing intoxicating liquor.

Pugia was brought into court and dismissed by Mayor Fogo, the latter deeming a small quantity of liquid in a bottle insufficient evidence to convict the accused. Fultz then pocketed the bottle and refused to surrender it to the mayor's demands.

Second Suspension.

Fultz's suspension today is his second since the early part of last year. Twelve charges were preferred against the office. by Mayor Fogo in the first removal and lengthy hearings were held both before the commission and the court of common pleas. The court of appeals finally affirmed the lower court's decision reinstating Fultz.

Members of the commission handing down the decision today, include Dwight McLean, chairman; A. C. Fogo and Harry Hammond.

AKRON, O., Jan. 12.—"The Black Bottom" has been banned here by George E. McCord, superintendent of public schools. In a letter to all principals of schools, McCord declared that students recently have participated in the dance which he believes to be immoral and ugly.

Three Shorthand Reporters on Job In Lisbon Court

For the first time in county history, three court stenographers are now employed at Lisbon. This has been made necessary on account of two branches of common pleas court being in session, and with records accumulating rapidly it was impossible for the two reporters, Miss Alice Glenn, of Lisbon, and Miss Minnie Higgins, of Wellsville, to keep up with the task. Miss Edna Callahan, of Dayton, is filling the third place.

KELLOGG FACES SENATORS' FIRE ON NICARAGUA

Secretary of State Explains Concentration of Marines.

PRESENTS DATA

Aides Accompany Him as he Defends Caribbean Issue.

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Strong opposition to the administration's "Big Stick" policy in Central America was registered on both sides of the Capital tody.

While Secretary of State Kellogg, behind closed doors, explained to the semi-hostile senate committee on foreign relations the reasons for the concentration of 15 warships and 5,000 bluejackets in the Caribbean, the house committee on foreign affairs staged a quarrelsome open session at which the Coolidge-Kellogg policy was denounced and defended.

Kellogg surrounded his appearance before the senate committee with unusual precautions of secrecy. He insisted upon the regular committee stenographer being dispensed with, and substituted one of his own, from the state department. He then proceeded to read a long prepared statement of the events leading up to the establishment of a virtual protectorate over Nicaragua, and the president's warning to Mexico to keep "hands off" in that republic. He had not concluded the statement when the senate convened at noon and the session continued long after the noon hour.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The administration's "big stick" policy in Central America came face to face with its senatorial critics today when Secretary of State Kellogg made his long-delayed appearance before the senate foreign relations committee to explain and defend the concentration of 15 warships and 5,000 men in Caribbean waters.

Secretary Kellogg was accompanied to the capitol by a number of aides bearing brief cases and portfolios of

ANOTHER AUTO IS STOLEN HERE

Police have been asked to search for a Ford touring car, 1926 model belonging to Elmer Crawford, insurance agent, of 1514 Allison street stolen while parked on Broadway between 9 and 10 o'clock last night. The machine carried license plates No. No. 387-005.

DON MELLETT'S SLAYER HAS NO PARDON HOPE, COURT RULES

Sentence Meted Out in Killing of Canton Editor.

NADEL GUILTY

Cleveland Man Convicted of Hiding Pat After Crime.

CANTON, Jan. 12.—Patrick Eugene McDermott, convicted of slaying Don R. Mellett, Canton published on July 16 last, was today sentenced by Judge E. W. Diehl in common pleas court to life imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary without hope of pardon or parole.

E. L. Mills, counsel for McDermott made a motion for a new trial which was overruled by Judge Diehl. Mills gave notice that he would appeal the verdict of Pat's guilt to a higher court. He has forty days from today in which to file an appeal.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 12.—Motion for a new trial will be filed it was announced today, by attorneys for Ben Nadel, convicted here late yesterday of having financed and hidden Patrick McDermott, while the latter hid for three months from police who sought him for the murder of Don R. Mellett.

Nadel is to be sentenced by Judge Walter McMahon in common pleas court Friday. The crime carries a penalty of from one to seven years in the penitentiary.

Although Nadel and McDermott both testified that they never before had seen each other, state witnesses swore that the former acted as "angel" for Pat during his flight, maintaining him in an East Side apartment.

The jury, composed of eight women and four men, deliberated about one hour.

William T. Grimm, 83, Drops Dead in His Home at Calcutta

William T. Grimm, 83, retired grocer, dropped dead yesterday of heart disease in his home at Calcutta.

Mr. Grimm, who was born and spent his entire life in Calcutta, was a veteran of the Civil war and for many years was proprietor of a general store at Grimm's bridge.

He is survived by two sons and two daughters: Robert, East Liverpool; Roy, Calcutta; Mrs. Gertrude Hameric, Martins Ferry, and Mrs. Edward Martin, Seattle, Wash.

Funeral services will be held in the home at 2:30 Friday afternoon, in charge of Rev. C. R. Cheeks, pastor of the Calcutta United Presbyterian church Burial will be made in Long's Run cemetery.

KIWANIS CLUB MEETS TOMORROW

40 Columbus High School Girls Will Run City One Day

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 12.—Forty Columbus high school girls will try their hands at "Ma" Ferguson's hand of running a government, when they will be given charge of the administration of the municipal machinery here for one day, Jan. 18. They are members of the girl reserves, and will hold down the jobs of mayor, safety director and other important city department heads.

THREE MEXICAN TOWNS RETAKEN FROM REBELS

Three Other Cities Reported Held by Revolutionists.

RELIGIOUS WAR

Twenty-six Killed in Two Clashes in Jailisco.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—Three small Mexican towns have been recaptured from rebels while three others are reported to now be in the hands of Revolutionists, according to dispatches received here today, indicating that the warfare of religious zealots has not been entirely stifled by the government.

Two clashes between rebels and Federals in Jallisco, in the towns of Arandas and Tottelan, are reported to have resulted in the death of 26 rebels and the scattering of the remainder of the bands.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 12.—With orders for summary executions of rebels, General Jose Escobar has been placed in command of the federal forces assigned to suppress the rebels who are active in northern and central Mexico, fighting under banners inscribed "Viva Christ, the King."

Meanwhile a statement has been issued from the presidential palace charging that fanatical religious outbreaks have been inspired by the Catholic Episcopate under the leadership of Bishop Diaz and Rene Capistran Garza, who has been active on the border.

Lorraine Coleman Is Arrested on Non-support Count

Lorraine Coleman was brought to the city jail by Sheriff George Wright today to await a hearing before Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley upon a charge of non-support preferred by his wife, Mrs. Martha Coleman, in behalf of her four-months-old daughter, Marcella.

Coleman was arrested at the home of his father, William Coleman, employed on the Scott farm in Elkrun township, Tuesday afternoon. He will be given a hearing before Judge Hanley this afternoon or Thursday morning.

Law Against Libeling Dead.

TOLEDO, Jan. 12.—The Ohio State Bar association which will open its mid-winter meeting here January 27 is to sponsor a law which would make libeling of the dead as illegal as against the living. It would provide a fine of $500 and six months imprisonment for violators.

JUDGE LANDIS ACQUITS STARS OF CHARGES OF SOX-TIGER 'SLOUGHING'

PAST AND PRESENT DIAMOND PERFORMERS ABSOLVED OF BLAME

Chieftain, Who Upholds Testimony of Accused Men, Makes no Reference to Cases of Cobb and Speaker and Does Not Rule on "Buck" Weaver's Application.

By C. COPELAND BURG.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, today exonerated leading Detroit and Chicago baseball players of charges they "threw" games in 1917.

The diamond czar decided there was no truth in the charges of Charles "Swede" Risberg that the Chicago White Sox paid the Detroit Tigers for "sloughing" them a series of games.

Judge Landis also ruled there was no 'sloughing" in the games of September, 1919, "except possibly" by Risberg and "Chick" Gandil, another Black Sox player, who jointly charged the Sox and Tigers with "crookedness."

Only a group of newspapermen was present in the commissioners' office when he announced his decision in a five-page document.

The concluding paragraph of Judge Landis' decision was as follows:

"It is the finding of the commissioner that the fund raised by the Chicago players about September 28, 1917, was not collected or paid to Detroit players for "sloughing" to Chicago the games of September 2 and 3, 1917, but was paid because of Detroit's beating Boston; that there was no 'sloughing" of the September 2 and 3, 1917, games, nor of the September 26, 27 and 28, 1919, games, except possibly by Risberg and Gandil."

Scores Risberg and Gandil.

Eddie Collins of Philadelphia; Donie Bush, Pittsburgh Pirates' manager, and Ray Schalk, new pilot of the Chicago White Sox, as well as the thirty other diamond stars, past and present, were absolved of all blame by Landis, who upheld the testimony of the accused men that they had merely given the Detroit team a present for winning games from Boston club at a time when Boston was close at the heels of the Sox in the pennant race.

By making the charges against Collins, Bush and other prominent players Risberg and Gandil had nothing to lose, the commissioner ruled. His decision said anent this feature:

"To some it may seem inexplicable that Risberg and Gandil should implicate themselves in these alleged corrupt practices. Obviously, that self-implication may have been conceived upon the theory that 'they have in criminated themselves, so it must be true.' However, being already on the ineligible list, this would not affect them and it might blacken 'the lily whites.' "

No Action on Weaver's Request.

Judge Landis made no reference to day to the cases of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, ousted Detroit and Cleveland managers. He said no application for a rehearing of the charges made against these men by "Dutch" Leonard, former Detroit pitcher, had been filed with him as yet.

The commissioner also took no action on the application of "Buck" Weaver, banned White Sox player, who has asked to be returned to baseball, declaring he was innocent of the 1919 scandal.

Ruling on 1919 Series.

In relation to the charges that two games of a three-game series of the Sox and Detroit teams in 1919 were "sloughed" the commissioner said:

"In addition to the charge of sloughing the September 2 and 3, 1917, series, Risberg alleges that Chicago

Toledo Pyromaniac Applies Torch to Storage Warehouse

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 12.—Toledo's pyromaniac plied his torch again today causing damage estimated at $250.000 and bringing total losses attributed to the fire bug of nearly $1,500,000 during the last 60 days.

Today's blaze occurred at the Moreton Storage company's warehouse where the flames had gained such headway before discovery that lives of firemen were endangered by falling walls.

Dozens of automobiles and quantities of merchandise owned by Baumgardner and company, stored in the warehouse, were destroyed.

Fall River, Mass., Playhouse is Swept By $200,000 Fire

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 12.—Empire theatre, a vaudeville and motion picture playhouse, was swept by fire today at a loss estimated at $200,000.

Actors and actresses who had run from nearby hotels into the burning theatre saved most of their personal belongings.

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

(Copyright, 1927, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—"Peaches" Browning still loves her elderly millionaire husband, Edward W. ("Daddy") Browning, but she'll never go back to him, her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Chamberlain Heenan, declared in an exclusive interview today.

"She is afraid of him," said Mrs Heenan. "Why, he used to sleep with a gun at the side of their bed and act so strangely. She was an innocent child when she married Browning but when she left him she was a physical wreck."

It was the first interview granted by Mrs. Heenan since she and "Peaches" suddenly and dramatically packed up last fall at New Gardens inn the honeymoon retreat of Brownings, and left Browning "flat. Mrs. Heenan and "Peaches" since have been in seclusion in their fashionable uptown apartment and have not talked to reporters on advice of counsel. "Mamma" is spokesman for "Peaches."

Mrs. Heenan scoffed at the statement made in court yesterday by Browning's attorney that the millionaire was "dragged into" his marriage with "Peaches."

"We are not gold diggers," said Mrs. Heenan spiritedly. "My daughter didn't marry Browning for his money and furthermore she didn't propose to him. My girl is a saddened and disillusioned young wife—a mighty changed girl."

"Peaches" is going through with her forthcoming suit for separation and is prepared to take the witness stand. much as she recoils from such an ordeal, her mother said. Mrs. Heenan talked frankly and freely, sketching the high spots in "Peaches" life from the time she was born sixteen years ago to their pretty home at 116 East Fifth avenue, Columbus, Ohio, up to the time of the collapse of her romance with Browning the famous adopter of young girls and widely known as a "prince charming."

"All this publicity, this notoriety that Mr. Browning dotes on, my daughter detests," said Mrs. Heenan. "Babe is naturally a retiring girl with the most domestic tastes. She never wrote that diary credited to her. Mr. Browning had it published.

"Her romance wasn't a case of flaming youth and a man at the dangerous age. Babe wasn't the jazz, wild young type. She was just a wholesome, winsome high school girl when she met Mr. Browning at a sorority dance. What change was wrought in her was brought about by Mr. Browning."

To show how domesticated "Peaches" is, Mrs. Heenan escorted the reporter into her daughter's orchid and green boudoir to see "all the things Babe made herself."

"Old Fashioned Home Girl."

"She would make the right kind of a man a mighty good wife," commented Mrs. Heenan proudly. "She's the old-fashioned home girl."

"Peaches" herself wasn't home. She was out taking a Turkish bath. She is reducing, her mother smilingly explained. She will be fashionable.

"I see Mr. Browning makes me out the dreadful mother-in-law who broke up his home," said the genial, 42-year-old Mrs. Heenan. "That isn't true. I didn't interfere in any way until my daughter telephoned me, with tears in her voice, to come to her—that he was mistreating her. What mother would not respond to such an appeal? When I got to her she was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. I am a nurse, and I knew how serious her condition was so we packed up, and I took her away.

"His lawyer said in court yesterday that we 'dragged' Mr. Browning into this marriage. That is another falsehood. Did any one send for Mr. Browning when he came to see my daughter, day after day, afternoon and night, bringing her flowers and telling her he couldn't live without her? And what real man would say his wife proposed to him, even if she did, which, however, in this case she did not?

"Money wasn't what we were after. My daughter simply fell in love with his dignified, man-of-the-world manner. I honestly didn't want her to marry so young. We were so happy together. All I wanted from him was that he be kind to her. Instead he bedecked her in trinkets, paraded her about for publicity purposes and soon began treating her most cruelly. That was too much for me."

Denies Browning's Statement.

Mrs. Heenan denied Browning's statement that he took "Peaches" from a poor home. She said when Browning was courting her daughter they were living in an attractive apartment in Iris Gardens. In refuting the insinuation that she is a "gold digger," Mrs. Heenan said that for

All's Well on the Potomac

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

"LITTLE GIANT FROM THE SOUTH" UPHOLDS OLD-TIME DEMOCRACY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.— When Representative George Huddleston of Alabama dies or retires from politics the race of Jeffersonian Democrats will have become extinct in Washington.

A few other specimens of the dying species may still lurk in remote fastnesses of the country, but Huddleston is the only one left here.

He's a splendid specimen, too.

It warms the blood of any true believer in what once were Democratic doctrines to hear him speak. In fact, it warms anybody's blood. He's one of the few members of congress who always has a full house whenever he takes the floor.

"AH, there's a man who knows what democracy is."

And it wasn't a Democratic lawmaker, either, who said this, as Huddleston sat down after a short talk the other day. It was a tribute of involuntary admiration for a legislator who speaks from the heart, and the heart of a genuine democrat, at that —with a little "d."

The strange thing is that Huddleston isn't better known. He's known in his own bailiwick, of course, and he's known on Capitol Hill as one of the ablest men who comes to Washington, but he doesn't break into the newspapers on a national scale.

Why he isn't of countrywide renown—for his oddity, if not for his quality — is one of the mysteries to me.

THAT he's re-elected, term after term, isn't peculiar. In Alabama all Democratic nominees are sure of election.

But how does it happen that he's renominated?

He comes from Birmingham.

Now Birmingham is the center of the industrialization of the south. So far has southern industrialization progressed in recent years that the Republicans are figuring on gaining a foothold in spots where manufacturing has become the predominant influence.

"I'm for absolutely free trade."

Huddleston told me this himself, without a qualifying clause.

He said it in an ordinary tone, but it sounded like a clap of thunder in these times, with the rank and file of Democrats hesitant to express themselves favorably even toward tariff reduction.

HOW does Huddleston manage to get himself, not re-elected, which is a

MRS. M'PHERSON PLANS LECTURE TOUR IN EAST

Woman Evangelist Freed of Conspiracy Charges.

CASE DISMISSED

Friends Urge Her to Demand Trial to Clear Name.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12. — Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, noted woman evangelist, freed of conspiracy charges, today was on her way to the east to begin a lecture tour. On the eve of her departure it was urged that she demand a trial, in order that she might clear her name of the alleged charges.

In spite of the evident relief seen both in the district attorney's office and in Angelus Temple over the dismissal of the case, rumblings of protest were heard in many circles, among which the pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, Rev. G. A. Briegleb, was the most emphatic.

"Just why the district attorney, after besmirching a woman's character now finds that he cannot try her, is a question which the district attorney alone can answer," Dr. Breigleb said.

"Mrs. McPherson should demand and get a trial. She should not allow herself to go through life with suspicion against her in the minds of many."

By Aimee Semple McPherson

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12. — Three things have upheld me during these months of trial. There were, first, the kindness, strength and comfort of my heavenly Father; second, my knowledge of my innocence of the charges against me; third, the confidence and trust of my people.

Realizing that I possessed these three aides I never have had any fear of the ultimate outcome of my case.

District Attorney Keyes' statement is simple that my confidence was well grounded. He admits that the evidence against me was not worth bringing into court.

I am glad he found out before further prosecution that Mrs. Wiseman's story was false, just the same as all other attacks on me have been false.

My loyal followers and countless thousands throughout the world, believe in me and know that I have told the truth and I want to thank them for their faith in me, knowing that I would be fully cleared of all falsities.

We shall go on in the work of the Lord.

Nice's automatic telephone system has proved so popular that it has been outgrown and an entire new one must be installed.

matter of course, but renominated?—in a district like his, with the views he holds, and not only holds but voices so boldly.

The only explanation seems to be that his constituents like his nerve.

They also know where he stands—a thing so rare in a politician as to count as a recommendation, perhaps, even to may a voter who stands somewhere else.

HUDDLESTON looks like anything but a scrapper. He's short and slight, with a gentle face, an upturned nose and washed out brown hair.

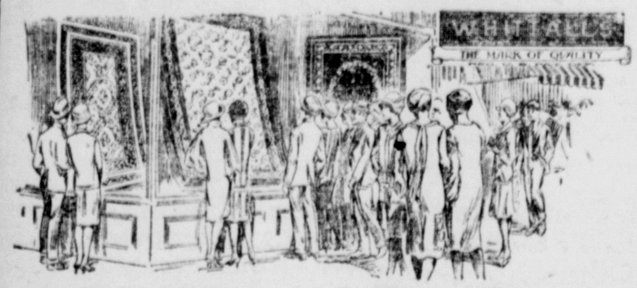

He's the picture of a political tenderfoot, every inch.

From appearances, any bully should be able to run over him.

But when he unlimbers his artillery —oh, how he can shoot!

Several "gentlemen" — as they call 'em all in congress—have tackled him in debate and been carried out feet first. They refer to him on Capitol Hill as "the little giant from the south."

THREE DAY COLDS THREATEN LUNGS

A cough or cold that hangs on after the third day is a threat.

Do something! Don't wait until the cold has run its course—from your head to your throat—from throat to chest or bronchial tubes. Break up your cold before it settles in this "danger zone"; for inflammation spreads, and your bronchial tubes lead directly into your lungs.

Quickly and unfailingly Ayer's Cherry Pectoral goes straight to the seat of trouble. With the very first swallow you feel its comforting warmth. You feel its soothing, healing powers reaching deep down into your bronchial tubes. You feel it penetrating through and through the irritated membranes.

This healing medication, absorbed into the membranes themselves, breaks up the cold, stops the cough, brings prompt and lasting relief.

If you are catching cold; if you have a "head cold"; if your chest is tight; if you have a cough — even if bronchitis has developed — Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at once!

Cherry Pectoral is pleasant, safe and dependable—for children and grown people. At all druggists—50c; twice as much, $1.00. 2a2c

SISTERS OF CHARITY HAVE PROVEN VALUE OF FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

Used it with great success in Children's Home for Coughs and Colds and as a Body Builder.

At the Children's Home in Newburyport, Mass., are many children under the loving care of the Sisters of Charity.

In a signed statement the Sister in charge states:

"We cheerfully endorse Father John's Medicine because in our Home it has become indispensable. We use it, not only for coughs and colds but also as a builder. We tell our friends that we would not be without it. We have used it with great success and find it to have no equal as a builder."

In many similar institutions throughout the country Father John's Medicine is depended upon by the nurses in charge to keep the children well and strong. They know, too, it is entirely safe because it is free from alcohol and harmful drugs.

Many similar letters of endorsement have been received from homes, hospitals, and other institutions. Father John's Medicine is a doctor's prescription that has been successfully used for colds and throat troubles and as a tonic and body builder for more than 70 years.

CHAPTER ELEVEN.

I pulled steadily at the woodwork, and in about ten minutes I had broken down the whole partition, which was of a very flimsy nature. The hole was now large enough for me to force my way through. I was, however, at least sixty feet from the ground, and my next step was to seek for some means to shorten that distance. The couch was useless, since it was covered with shiny yellow silk, well secured at the edges, but the hangings on the wall would, I thought, prove sufficient for my purpose.

I accordingly tore down a large part of the judgment scene. It went to my heart to destroy such exquisite embroidery, but this was no time for vain regrets. The silk, I noted with dismay, was old and not at all strong. I wove it with some difficulty into a rough form of a rope, and, by using most of the embroidery on one of the walls I obtained a length of about forty feet.

I tied my rope to one leg of the couch, and looking out through the hole, made sure that I was unobserved. I then let the rope through the hole down the side of the wall, and saw to my satisfaction that it reached within ten feet or so of the ground. Laying hold of it, I started to climb down. The evening, as I have already said, was fine, but I forgot to mention that there was a strong wind blowing, the local name for which as I heard later, was the "bise." It came from the northwest, and its violence was such that before I had descended ten feet, it had twisted me quite round, so that, instead of facing the wall, I had my back to it, hanging some forty feet above the courtyard, my face turned to the mountains, my body buffeted by the strong breeze. From where I hung, the sigh was lovely. The lake of Geneva had been beaten into long rugged lines of white-capped waves, and the last rays of sunset were striking the topmost peaks of Mount Blanc and the Dome du Gouter.

I did not, however, give much attention to the beauties of the view, but twisted about so as to face the wall again, and start my descent. Suddenly, however, I felt myself going.

The rope had parted, and I fell like a plummet, my knee and one elbow striking the hard, uneven surface of the wall.

It all took place to quickly that I had no time to realize what had happened, but the thought flashed into my head that all was over, when with a terrific splash I was suddenly submerged in water. Down I went till my lungs were bursting and it seemed an age before I shot back to the surface. I could see nothing at first. I appeared to be in pitch darkness, and in an unknown depth of water. Being a fair swimmer, I struck out vaguely, but a couple of strokes brought me hard against a stone wall. I turned on my back, and looking upwards realized what had happened.

I had fallen into a well!

My good fortune had been extraordinary, for the opening had been situated immediately beneath the window from which I had climbed, otherwise I should have been dashed to pieces on the stones of the courtyard. As it was my plight was sufficiently desperate. It semed a case of death deferred rather than avoided. The sides of the well, though not quite smooth, were round and offered very little in the way of foothold, and I must have been fifteen or sixteen feet below the rim. I could see no bucket or windlass of any kind. To add to my miseries the water was very cold, though apparently fresh and clean.

I began to swim slowly round and round to keep myself afloat, while, at the same time, I looked desperately for some means of escape. I had not swum more than a few strokes when I found myself entangled in the silken rope which had fallen with me into the water. Its coils clung to my body and impeded my movements. As I strove to get free of them, my hand struck against a piece of timber about three feet long. This I discovered to be nothing less than the leg and part of the back of the couch to which the rope had been attached. It had not, therefore, been the rope but the couch which had given way under my weight.

I had made more than one fruitless circuit of the well, when kicking out with my left, I failed to encounter the wall. This surprised me, as I had hitherto touched it at every second stroke. I turned again on my back and felt carefully. Then I noticed what had previously escaped my attention—an opening of some size, situated just below the level of the water, apparently at right angles to the main shaft. I dropped my legs and began feeling for its lower edge. Presently I found it, though not before I had been compelled to sing right below the surface. It seemed that the lower edge of the hole was a little more than the height of a man from the top of the water, and I wondered whether it led anywhere, or was merely a recess in the wall. My position in the well was sufficiently desperate to make it well worth while to find out. I decided to explore the passage, taking with me the leg of the couch as a possible weapon and the coil of rope which might very probably be useful. The rope I coiled round my waist, treading the water as I did so, and the leg of the couch I thrust into the girdle which I had thus improvised. It had evidently parted company at the joint, for in itself it was quite stout wood.

I then got as far away from the wall as possible, plunged beneath the water and "duck dived" towards it, grouping with my hands. I soon felt the rough edges of the hole, and pulled myself in with my hands. With a bit of a struggle I was through.

I swam under water through what semed an eternity. Now I had gone too far. The passage was narrow, I found that I was unable to turn! I could not go back, my lungs were bursting, and this was, I thought, the end.

With a desperate effort I raised my head and found to my astonishment that it came clear of the water. I gasped once or twice for breath and discovered that the water was in reality quite shallow, not more than waist deep, and that I might easily have walked the greater part of the distance along the shaft. The air was horribly dank and musty, but pure enough to breathe. I grouped my way forward in pitch black darkness, the water getting lower and lower as I went along, till, at what I judged to be some twenty yards from the well shaft, it ceased altogether, and I found myself in a very narrow passage sloping upwards fairly steeply, and not quite high enough for me to stand upright. I stumbled along, my teeth chattering, wet to the skin and very tired.

After what seemed an eternity, though it was probably only a very short time, my progress came to an abrupt end.

I was brought up short by a barrier which, from the feel of it, appeared to be wood. I halted and felt all over the surface carefully, soon coming to the conclusion that it was some sort of a door. But I could feel no handle or keyhole of any kind, and I wondered miserably what I would better do next. I was caught like a rat in a trap. I do not mind confessing that I was near despair in that horrible darkness, with the unyielding door in front and the water behind. I think indeed I must have lost my nerve and beat wildly on the door, for I found later that my hands were bruised and cut.

I do not know how long I continued there, as the water had put my wrist watch out of action. I only know that after a time I forced myself to some sort of calmness, and that I was beginning to take further stock of my position when, through utter darkness, a sudden shaft of light shot like a sword.

Here's Real Relief From the Torturing Pains of Neuritis

Men and Women Everywhere Seldom Fail to Get Quick Relief from Pain and Suffering

When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to some good druggist and get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2 which comes in capsule form.

Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced if not entirely banished those persisting nerve racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights.

While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful, Gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in most forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.

You needn't be afraid of its containing dope of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and can at the best give only partial relief.

Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. J. D. Holloway and Mathew's Medicine Store sell lots of it.

INDIGESTION MAKING YOU MISERABLE?

See How Quick Improvement Comes

DO you suffer the tortures of this typical American malady? Are you afraid to eat the food you like? Do pains and discomforts after eating drive you mad?

You need Plant Juice, the pleasant tasting, natural remedy of herbs, roots, barks, leaves and blossoms. It is Nature's way to stimulate your liver and your bowels. Safe and quick in action.

Read Mrs. Mary Bowers' experience—Mrs. Bowers writes from Cabin 13, 11th Street Bridge, Wilmington, Del.:

"Four years ago I was just miserable from indigestion, gas bloating, headaches, and dizzy spells. To eat anything meant only to suffer, and such headaches would come on that I felt like my head would burst. I had such dizzy attacks I had to sit down. I began taking Plant Juice, and after my sixth bottle I was like a new person. It just put my stomach in perfect condition, rid me of all the headaches, dizziness, and gas bloating, so that I did not have a sign of distress left. Plant Juice put me in splendid health, which I have enjoyed ever since."

If the first bottle of Plant Juice makes you feel a lot better don't stop taking it. Give this good old remedy a chance to do some real good. Let it tone up your system and get you good and clean.

For nearly 31 years Dillinghams' Plant Juice has helped people like you. We have received thousands of grateful letters from indigestion sufferers. Your druggist can supply you. Ask for the original Dillingham's Plant Juice.

Rheumatism can't be rubbed away

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried most everything. Went to Hot Springs and finally I decided to try S. S. S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatism pains entirely left me. I also had a breaking out on my hands for years that nothing would heal, but now this has disappeared, and I am sure that it was S. S. S. which removed the cause. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S. S. S. is the best." Carl C. Campbell, 114 West Main street, Johnson Cit, Tenn.

S. S. S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Wanted—Traffic Engineering

The statistician of the National Safety Council says that this year 25,000 persons will die in automobile accidents in the United States "unless more rigid observance of the laws is maintained."

That is probably true, inasmuch as the motor toll of lives in 1926 was nearly 23,000. But it is not exactly a fair way of putting it.

Better observance of traffic laws will help a good deal; there is always room for improvement in that respect. Universal licensing of drivers, with examinations to determine their competency, will help, too. So will all further contributions that drivers can make toward safety in matters outside the field of legislation and official action—courtesy on the road, better knowledge of their car and its operation, etc. Further improvements in cars for fuller control will help. But there is another very important factor outside of all these which may do as much as any of them, possibly as much as all.

That is better engineering of highways.

Motorists want to drive safely, and most of them are good drivers. They get into mix-ups largely because of the traffic jams caused by the fact that streets and roads as laid out are so seldom adapted to the safe passage of modern traffic. Thoroughfares are not wide enough or straight enough. There is too much needless cross-traffic. Street car lines interfere, too much. There are too many "bottle-necks."

A man whose blood had to circulate through a system like that which handles the motor traffic of an ordinary city wouldn't live long. He would die of hardened arteries or thrombosis or heart disease. There would be vital accidents all along the line.

Health Instead of Weight

The Yale University Department of Health pays attention to students' weight and endeavors to fatten those who are found to be too thin. This sounds a little old-fashioned in a period when reducing is the faddish thing. Perhaps it is just a matter of giving the thing a different name.

What the Yale authorities are doing is to make students more healthy. Persons in genuinely good health, whether students or not, do not need either to be reduced or fattened.

There are many persons who need to reduce, not for the sake of style, but for their own good health and efficiency and happiness. There are others who need just as much to put on a few more pounds, the added weight being merely part of a general improvement of health.

Regarding it then as a matter of putting on health or reducing un-health, the methods employed at Yale are worthy of outside note. Students in the nutrition classes are urged to eat their meals regularly, to eat food containing the quantity of calories their systems need, to correct any physical defects or chronic infections, to rest before the evening meal, to get adequate sleep at night and moderate exercise.

That is a regime worth following, not to make oneself fat or lean, but simply well.

Recognition For The Bob

The Beauty Shop Owners of America have now convened and have decided what's to be what about hair—women's hair—and other matters of charm and loveliness. First of all they decided that bobbed hair is to remain, not necessarily because they approve of it, but because their disapproval wouldn't make much difference anyhow.

To the laity it has seemed strange that the beauty shop owners should persist, in their conventions, to bemoan the folly of short locks, while within their professional precincts they have long scorned the courageous or obstinate female who refused to have her hair cut. Bobbed hair, it developed long since, was to the beauty shop business what phonograph and radio were to the concert hall and professional musicians. More people, and particularly phonograph and radio owners, now go to paid concerts than did so a few years ago. More women visit beauty and barber shops than ever before—to have their hair cut if nothing else. And many who go for that initial purpose linger for beauty treatments of one sort and another.

There seems to be no real reason why the hair dressers and beauty shop professionals shouldn't be quite cheerfully resigned to the bobbed head.

Drama Reform From Within

Theatrical producers of New York City had a chance to make their good resolutions early when they were called to a conference with Mayor Walker a short time ago. The mayor asked them to undertake a moral housecleaning "for the protection of the theater and the good name of the city." He wanted them to do this job themselves because he had little faith in censorship.

The producers present at this conference promised to cooperate in carrying out the mayor's wishes. If their efforts are sincere they are likely to meet with success. If they devote more energy to discovering and producing plays that are good artistically and dramatically it will more often than not be true that those plays are sound morally. It is the raising of false standards—mere sensationalism, for one—that puts the wrong sort of theatrical entertainment before the public and stirs up trouble for the theater.

My Favorite Stories
By IRVIN S. COBB

A QUICK ORDER OF KID STORIES.

Stories of children seem to come in groups. Probably this is because if someone in company tells of a cute saying by his little nephew somebody else is sure to be reminded of a bright thing that his little niece got off only that day.

At one sitting, lately, I heard three juvenile yarns, all of them bearing marks of authenticity, and all of them to my way of thinking, deserving of a wider circulation than could be given them by word or mouth. Here is the first one:

Elizabeth, aged four, was being parentally reproved for indulging in an appetite for chocolate caramels.

"If you eat so much candy," her mother said, "it'll ruin your stomach."

"Oh, I don't mind that, Mother," she answered. 'It won't show with my clothes on."

Here follows the second:

Mildred was sent to the grocery on an errand.

"Well," said the grocer, "I hear you've got a little baby brother up at your house. What do you think of him?"

"I don't like him," said Mildred frankly. "He's got a funny red face and he cries all the time."

"Well," asked the grocer, "why don't you send him back where he came from?"

"Oh, I'm afraid we couldn't do that," she said. 'We've used him two days already."

And this is the third:

At Sunday school Charles, just past his fourth birthday, was making his first appearance. The teacher asked him who had made him and Charles confessed a total ignorance on this important point.

"God made you, Charles," said the teacher. "Now remember that, so you can tell me when you come back next Sunday."

Next Sunday Charles returned.

"Charles," said the teacher, "tell me who made you."

Charles thought a moment:

"I done forgot the gentleman's name," he said.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Jan. 12.—The New Yorker is a little baffled out here with the way things are accomplished in a leisurely way. He is accustomed to flying subway trains, hurry-up conferences, rapid fire luncheons and rushing crowds. The Gotham tempo is quick. Always quick!

Gotham provides a mountain goat existence leaping from crag to crag. Here men have time for walks, rides, tennis and a shower before breakfast. They stroll to their clubs for luncheon and many have time for the brief siesta. They chat on street corners and sit on park benches in a warmth of friendliness.

Yet they tunnel mountains, make rivers gush in deserts and build towering cities. And have a lot of fun as they go along. Out in Hollywood you find stars and directors loafing for months between pictures. And this brings us to the roseate dream of almost every prairie cottage.

The longing to quit the plow or the milk stool and become a movie extra. It is not fiction that most of the movie stars were plucked from obscurity and it is this romantical fact that brings thousands upon thousands of votaries to the shrine.

They are still pouring into that Los Angeles suburb, vibrant and eager eyed with hope to drift swiftly to despair. At sun up they are at the casting offices day after day to hear the same old rebuff: "Sorry, nothing today."

Hollywood issues its ceaseless warnings but still they come. Not one in ten thousand receives the Big Chance. A pitiful few chuck their pride and go back home. The stories of Valentino, Swanson and a host of others ring in the ears of those who remain.

Widowed mothers bring their potential Jackie Coogans and Baby Peggies. Girls quit their typewriters and young men their counters impelled by the swish of romance that has flickered before them in Main street nickelodeans. They swarm here, linger and eventually vanish.

I believe it was Harry Witwer who called Hollywood Yes Man's Land. It is a tradition that every director has his Yes Man — an agreeable and harried soul who will stoutly agree water is ink if the director suggests it. This is the balm to tortured directorial nerves. So many are the oppositions in making a picture that had he not this quiescent influence he would likely be carried off the lot in a straight jacket at the end of the first reel.

It interested me to inquire who is the most popular producer in Hollywood. I asked many in all branches of the industry and in almost every instance it was Adolph Zukor. He has been in a way the kindly little man to whom everyone turns in black and despairing moments. I have never met Mr. Zukor save for a hurried handshake in a ship smoking room nor am I acquainted with his activities. So I cannot be called prejudiced in his favor.

I also find Jack Dempsey is extremely popular among Los Angelans. His hotel—the Barbara—is on a midtown corner with an expensive pressed yellow brick facade and he is said to be devoting much time to its management.

Los Angeles seems to have more drug stores than any city in America. Some one tells me 800 of them. Most appear the kind that would have to send out for a pharmacist if you presented a prescription. They sell everything from needle threaders to bass drums. One I noticed had evening jazz concerts and a pool hall.

The suburbs of Los Angeles expand with the city. Pasadena, at its doorstep, is now a bustling city of about 100,000. Santa Barbara is rebuilt and charging heroically ahead.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A Convention Country.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 12.—Men whose business it is to know about such things say that there are approximately 15,000 conventions of one kind and another in the United States every year. Some of them are international gatherings or world congresses, many of them are national affairs, while most of them are state or local in character.

The larger cities of the country are keen rivals for the privilege of entertaining these conventions. In a few instances, the by-laws or constitution of an organization stipulate that its annual meeting shall be held in a certain city, and in the case of state associations it is obvious that their meetings will not be held outside the state of the organization's origin. Thus the number of conventions that cities can fight for is decidedly reduced from the grand total of 15,000. In fact, it is stated on the best authority that there are not more than 2,000 convocations that may be said to be at large and subject to being snared by the city that is the most hospitable, or that makes the most of its attractions.

In going after these gatherings almost every city of importance has a convention bureau which may be an adjunct of the local chamber of commerce or board of trade or may be an independent organization manned by experts who know the convention game inside and out. Most of their work is done by correspondence, but in case of the larger conventions they frequently attend and make personal bids for the next convention.

Kansas City with a convention bureau that is fifteen years old may be cited as a typical example of what a city can do in this line when it tries. The western metropolis of Missouri made a bid for the Republican national convention of 1908. The city had a splendid auditorium and fairly adequate hotel accommodations for a great national gathering, but it didn't have the organization to turn the trick.

Independent Civic Unit.

After that experience the business men of Kansas City expanded their convention bureau from a mere committee of the chamber of commerce into an independent civic unit. Moreover, they gave it an operating fund of $35,000 a year, which is paid in advance so that the bureau has its money before it spends a nickel, and this has proved to be such a good investment that Kansas City is now on record with the declaration that as well organized convention bureau is as necessary to a city as a paved street or a union station."

Municipalities get their dividends out of conventions not alone through the money which the delegates spend during the three or four days or week that their organizations are in session. That is a considerable item, of course. No delegate to a convention of any importance spends less than $10 a day in the city that is entertaining him, and in most instances the daily contributions run far above that sum. From this source, for example, it is said that Kansas City business interests drew dividends of $15,000,000 in seven years on an investment of but a little more than $115,000.

A city also profits in a large way from conventions and similar gatherings in the instance of a man's being so favorably impressed with his host city that he decides to establish a factory or some other business institution there. In the case of a factory with but a few hundred employes the city acquires a substantial increase in population and new capital and business that run into the millions every year.

Washington has a convention bureau less than two years old that has been functioning with exceptional success. During this year just passed the national capital entertained 212 of the 2,000-odd conventions that are available for cities of this class. C. E. La Vaigne, executive director of the bureau, says that this is 18 times Washington's proportionate expectancy in the competition for conventions.

These conventions ranged from those of stationers and certified public accountants to various international scientific organizations, sanitary engineers, Ku Klux Klan-ers, and "selected morticians," as modern undertakers prefer to be known. Also there have been gatherings of Baptists, Congregationalists, and other church people. In all, these affairs brought something like 100,000 visitors to Washington and contributed several million dollars to the city's commercial pool.

Why Washington Is Popular.

Washington is popular as a convention city despite the fact that it is not at all centrally located or even conveniently located. It has so many attractive features of historic interest, and there are so many interesting people here—statesmen, diplomats, Army and Navy officials, distinguished jurists, and the like—that delegates are reasonably certain of getting even more than their money's worth. They can look in on the two houses of congress and if luck is with them they may hear a Blanton in the house or a Reed in the senate. They have a fair chance of seeing the man who was

Miss Marie Kelly Becomes Bride of John J. Hughes

Miss Marie Ryan Kelly of Orchard Grove avenue, became the bride of John J. Hughes of West Fourth street, at a nuptial mass at 8 o'clock this morning in the St. Aloysius Catholic church, West Fifth street. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Thomas E. Walsh, before an altar banked with flowers.

Miss Loretta A. Kelly, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, while Andrew F. Hughes, a brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by Miss Lysbeth Hamill. Following the ceremony, Miss Eva Hughes sang, "Oh! Promise Me," and "Ave Marie."

The bride was gowned in ashes of roses georgette, wore a hat to match, and carried a shower bonquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Previous to her marriage she was a member of the headquarters staff of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

The bridesmaid was attired in Queen blue georgette, with hat to match, and carried Ophelia roses.

The bridegroom is employed by the Knowles, Taylor and Knowles Pottery company.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the bride's home, places being arranged for 24 guests. The table was decorated with a wedding cake, lighted candles and flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes left this afternoon for a honeymoon in New York City and New England states. After January 20 they will be at home to friends at 600 Orchard Grove avenue.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

It's Up to Us.

AN advertising salesman WAS in here the other DAY with a bunch of "TRADE-at-home" ads AND we listened to QUITE a story about HOW the citizens of THIS community owe us THEIR trade and that THEY shouldn't buy ANY of their merchandise OUT of town, all of WHICH is pure bunk in OUR estimation! So far AS this store is CONCERNED the citizens OF East Liverpool don't OWE us anything—in fact, WE don't remember that ANY of you folks invited US here, we got into THIS business because WE thought we might be ABLE to make a living AT it—but before we can DO that, we've got to give YOU service, merchandise AND prices that attract—WE certainly can't do it HOLLERING about people TRADING out of town.

BEAVER COURT SETS PRECEDENCE

Precedence was set in the Beaver county courts when Judge William A. McConnel, sitting in sentence session placed Mike Warner, 50 years old, on probation for a period of 12 years on condition he contribute $10 a week for the support of the children of the man he was convicted of killing. Warner was tried for murder at the December term of criminal court, it being charged by the commonwealth that he struck Dan Mitchell of Beaver Falls, over the head with an iron bar, killing him. The jury learned that Mitchell was intoxicated at the time of the killing and with other facts at hand returned a verdict of voluntary manslaughter, and recommended the defendant to the extreme mercy of the court.

Judge McConnell, in passing sentence, stated he believed the enforcement of a sentence requiring payment of money to the widow and children would be a just punishment for the convicted killer and would keep the family from becoming a public charge.

Fluffy Biscuits

"Fluffy" is just the name for these lovely, light biscuits. A recipe by Miss.....who is in charge of the Cooking School now being conducted by (name of paper)

2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Crisco
¾ cup milk, or half milk and half water

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add Crisco and mix in very lightly with fork; add liquid slowly; roll or pat out with hands on floured board to about one inch of thickness (handle as little as possible); cut with biscuit cutter first dipped in flour. Bake in hot oven twelve or fifteen minutes.

Miss..... says:

Your biscuits will be light and tender if you will cut the Crisco into the sifted flour with two knives as in making pastry—instead of rubbing it in with your finger-tips.

BREAK IN PENN AVENUE HILLSIDE IS MENACING

200-FOOT CRACK IS EXTENDED, SAYS ENGINEER

Earth Near Red Steps is Reported Moving.

ENDANGERS HOUSE

Passage in Clay Mine Blocked After 100-ton Slide.

Break in the hillside above Pennsylvania avenue near the "red steps," which made its appearance shortly after a 100-ton slide of rock and earth blocked the street car tracks and automobile drive way on Pennsylvania avenue, on Christmas morning, is daily becoming more menacing, according to an opinion by City Engineer Flay Clapsaddle today.

The 200-foot long fissure in the ground which developed December 25 has extended itself along the hillside past the Walter Bulger house in the direction of East End for at least another 100 feet. According to stakes and other marks the city engineer says the earth has moved approximately eight inches since December 26.

The gap in the ground about half way up from the point where the break starts has opened wider. It has been impossible to determine the depth of the fissure with the human eye and no attempt has been made to measure it with a weight and string.

Inspect Abandoned Mine.

The city engineer and three assistants made an inspection of an abandoned clay mine, which opened along Pennsylvania avenue just east of where the crack occurred, about a week ago in an effort to determine the exact cause of the slide. The party traveled to a point about 300 feet back into the hillside but found the passage blocked when they attempted to push their way back beneath the break, because of fallen slate.

Supporting posts which had been erected when the clay mines were being operated, were of no service. A narrow deposit of coal, at the roof of the mines, was removed during the war-time fuel scarcity. The earth above the posts held without the support of the posts, many of which were installed 50 years or more ago when local pottery plants obtained their clays in this district. Clapsaddle found a small break in the roof of the mine where the lower side had dropped about two inches below the upper side, he said. Numerous entries were discovered off both sides of the main shaft but these were blocked with falls of slate and other materials.

Bulger Prepares to Move.

The city engineer is preparing to make another inspection of the ground under the hillside as soon as an another entry can be opened just below the crack. If the crack is due to a settling process in the mines, no serious results are anticipated.

Walter Bulger, Diamond druggist, whose stone residence occupies a site just above the hillside, is preparing to move his household furnishings from the house. The crack in the earth passes within 10 feet of the house and should the slide occur the dwelling would be precipitated over the hillside. Bulger denied that the foundation of the house has been cracked by the ground movement.

The break in the ground has not yet reached the home of Dr. W. A. Hobbs, which also occupies a side atop the hill about 300 yards east of the Bulger home.

Edwin K. Morse, noted consulting engineer, of Pittsburgh, who came here December 26 to inspect the break in the ground expressed the opinion that there was no immediate danger of a further slide, the center of the load being well toward the top of the hill. If the earth is moving on the clay deposits in the hillside there is grave danger that the whole hillside may eventually crumble and slide, according to the engineer. In this event both Pennsylvania avenue and possibly the Pennsylvania railroad right of way at the foot of the hillside would be blocked and the task of removing the slide would no doubt require weeks and possibly months.

Defendant Given Verdict in $1,000 Damage Suit Here

A verdict in favor of the defendant was returned by a jury in municipal court yesterday afternoon in the suit for $1,000 damages brought by George Panalapolous, Klondyke laborer, against Valentine Neiser, Oakland mill worker, as the result of injuries alleged to have been sustained in an automobile accident on the Midland road, near the state line, last fall.

The case went to the jury at 4 o'clock and a verdict was reached after a few minutes deliberation. The plaintiff was represented by Foulks and Stevenson, while Attorney G. C. Thompson was counsel for the defendant.

The case of Mrs. Mary Allen, Toronto, against Edward Arnold, West Third street, for $500 damages alleged to have been done to her automobile in a crash near the "Red Steps" on Pennsylvania avenue was placed on trial before Judge Hanley and a jury of six persons this morning.

GRIFFIN GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

William Griffin, who was turned over to Probation Officer John McShane last week, following his arrest by local police, was yesterday sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail and pay the costs of prosecution after he had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor before Probate Judge Lodge Riddle at Lisbon.

Kellogg Faces

data on the existing state of affairs below the Rio Grande.

Just prior to Kellogg's appearance, Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the senate, was summoned to the White House for a hurried conference with President Coolidge. Robinson is also a member of the foreign relations committee.

Two of the severest critics of administration policy, Senators Wheeler (D.) of Montana and La Follette (R.) of Wisconsin, were permitted to attend the meeting behind closed doors, although they are not members of the foreign relations committee. Wheeler and La Follette simply walked into the meeting, and after they were in no one apparently wanted to take responsibility for barring them. It established a precedent in the senate.

A White House car brought the Democratic leader to the executive offices and carried him back to the capitol for the committee meeting.

The president's action in again consulting the Democratic leader, instead of Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, chairman of the committee, aroused considerable comment at the capitol. Borah is completely out of sympathy with administration policy, and Mr. Coolidge apparently considered it more advantageous from the administration's standpoint to deal with the Democratic leader.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Mexico's disavowal of any desire for war with the United States, contained in the conciliatory statement issued by Foreign Minister Sanez, in reply to President Coolidge's message to congress, did not allay today the tensity that grips Washington concerning the state of affairs in Central America.

Administration officials accepted at its face value Mexico's expressed desire for peace. They did not, however, accept equally the disclaimer that the Calles government has only an academic interest in the Nicaraguan revolution.

Sanez's reply to the Coolidge charges did not mention the acts of Mexican gun-running to Nicaragua, stressed in the president's message.

France Denies U. S. Report.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—France has not requested the United States to protect her interests in Nicaragua, the foreign office announced today. This statement was made in reply to reports here attributed to Senator Willis of Ohio that France had asked the United States for protection in Nicaragua.

DEDICATE NEW WORSHIP HOUSE HERE SUNDAY

East End Tabernacle Will be Erected Thursday.

ONE-DAY TASK

Dr. Clyde Fife Speaks in Church of Christ.

Plans were made today for the dedication on Sunday of the Pennsylvania Avenue Church of Christ tabernacle, which will be erected on the East End house of worship site on Thursday.

Decision to enlarge the church was made because of overflow crowds at revival services being conducted there by Fife Brothers, Radio Cabin Boys from Kentucky.

"I never saw such steam and zeal for religious work as is being displayed here," said Dr. Clyde Fife, last night before his sermon. "I have watched this town for 15 years and gloried in all it has done. My wife and little kiddies and I eat off of dishes made right here in this town. But I never thought I would get a sample of the zeal of these people and see them do their stuff. I am more than delighted.

"This meeting should have been a city wide effort with a union tabernacle to seat 7,000 people and we would have filled it easily and helped hundreds of souls back to God. But my friend, Rev. C. Mellon McKay, told me of the sacrifice he had made for this little church and I decided to come and help him out a few days and I am glad I did. I hope this revival spreads to the entire city."

A call was made last night for volunteers to help all aly Thursday so that the tabernacle may be completed for service by 7:30 that night. Ladies of the church served hot dinner to the men cutting the frames. John Schmidt will supervise the construction of the building.

Today at noon the Fife Brothers entertained and spoke at a pottery meeting in Newell.

Tuesday noon they were at Laughlin No. 2 plant, East End, and invited the entire office force and other employes to come in a body to the tabernacle on Friday night.

"There are men sitting here tonight who are as much lost as if they had been in hell for a thousand years," said Dr. Fife in his sermon on "The Unpardonable Sin" last night. "You never gave your heart to God and you never intend so to do. So far as you are concerned there was no reason at all why your poor mother should have gone down into the valley of the shadow of death to bring you into the world. No excuse for suffering. No efficacy in the atoning merits of the death of Christ; no hope beyond the grave. Are you dead? Can't you feel? Can't you think? Do you not know that in another generation from you your children will be entirely infidel? Is nothing to be held sacred?"

Then he went on by the logic of elimination to tell what the unpardonable sin was not, declaring that if a man worse, drank, doubted, etc., that God would forgive him if he were penitent, and then stated that any sin unforgiven and unrepented would cause a soul to be lost.

"But the unpardonable sin, that God Himself can not forgive is the wilful, constant and final rejection of God, Christ and of the Holy Spirit," he said.

There were 13 conversions last night.

The sermon topic tonight will be "The Second Coming of Christ."

TREMOR ROCKS LISBON, PORTUGAL

LISBON, Jan. 12.—A violent earthquake of five seconds duration caused a panic among inhabitants of Lisbon this morning. Residents, awakened by the tremor, rushed into the streets. No casualties or damage was reported.

33 Ball Players

sloughed to Detroit two of a three-game series at the close of the 1919 season. His only specific allegations are that he played out of position and that he believes that Gandil (and two other players out of baseball since 1920) also played out of position. Gandil corroborates this, testifying that he played out of position (first saying "I think it was two out of the three ball games' and later saying: 'I probably played out of position in all three games'); that he noticed Risberg playing out of position, so figured he would do it also, without even a word between him and Risberg, or with any other Chicago or Detroit players about it.

"Of course this testimony by Gandil and Risberg is evidence to that extent against them, but there is no evidence whatever supporting the charge as involving any other Chicago player."

Except for the claims of the accusers there was nothing to show that any prearranged plans were made for raising the alleged "pool" given to Detroit and plans for raising money for any illegitimate purpose were not discussed by the players, Judge Landis ruled.

Analyzes Evidence.

In this connection his decision said: "Beyond the statements of Gandil, the record discloses nothing to the effect that the raising of the money was ever discussed at a meeting of the players. Whether such a meeting actually took place is important only as going to the question of creditability.

"Risberg and Gandil testified that they collected the money. Risberg puts it at about $1,100, Gandil states that he turned over to James between $900 and $1,100—'that he could not give the exact amount, because some that promised to give me some of that money didn't give it to me.'"

After reviewing the testimony given by the accused and the accusers at the hearings he conducted in Chicago, Judge Landis wrote as follows in his decision:

"If the Gandil-Risberg version be correct, it was an act of criminality. If the other version be true, it was an act of impropriety, reprehensible and censurable, but not corrupt.

"The usual contradictions that characterize controversies of fact are present. It is the commissioner's opinion, however, that an examination of the evidence will clearly point the truth of the matter in dispute. When Risberg was first here January 1, he stated that before Detroit played Chicago the first game of the series of September 2 and 3, 1917, 'Clarence Rowland, manager of the Chicago club at the time, instigated a proposition that if we (meaning Chicago) would give a certain amount of money to Detroit pitchers—pool the money collectively on the ball club—they (meaning Detroit pitchers) would slough (intentionally lose) to Chicago those games we were playing during that series to help us try to win the pennant.'"

Refers to Risberg's Testimony.

"And further that Rowland told him, in substance, that 'I have got it all set.'

"However, on January 5, Risberg asserted that nothing was said by Rowland about money (in connection with his telling Risberg 'everything was fixed' for Detroit to lose to Chicago the Sept. 2 and 3, 1917, games). In fact, it was Risberg's testimony, on January 5, that nothing was said by anybody about money until the Chicago team was in New York Sept. 28, 1917, and while it was his statement that the sloughing of these four games was 'common talk' among the Chicago players the only testimony he gave o' anything having been said on that subject by any Chicago player during the series, or at any time thereafter, was that Edward Collins, referring to an error by Substitute Shortstop Dyer, of Detroit, made the remark: 'My God, that is terrible'" Risberg's meaning being that Collins understood it was a dishonest game and intended to characterize Dyer's play as crude and raw."

"Collins recalled no such occurrence and testified that he knew he made no remark implying that he thought it was a crooked game or a dishonest play.

"Risberg further testified that although he knew the games were being sloughed, and notwithstanding this was the first time he knew such a thing to happen, he did not watch to see how it was to be done; that the only things he observed (aside from Dyer booting the ball) was that 'in spots' the Detroit pitchers did not appear to be 'putting much on the ball, and in this respect, the only thing he could recall was that on one occasion when he batted (and the official scores of the four games show he batted 17 times) a curve ball was thrown to him 'which did not seem to have much on it,' which ball he hit, but not safely; and that there was some base stealing 'that didn't look right which Risberg laid to poor work by Catcher Stanage, of Detroit, it being his testimony that the Detroit pitchers seemed to be holding the runners, but they 'were getting an awful lead before Oscar (Stanage) let the ball go.' Gandil blamed the pitchers. According to one newspaper account (Chicago American, Sept. 4), Chicago in these four games had, respectively, 2, 6, 6 and 4 stolen bases; according to another paper Chicago had 3, 6, 8 and 5 stolen bases (four of these were double steals). This was an unusual number of stolen bases, but not an unprecedented number. This record of stolen bases certainly is no more significant than the Boston team's eight errors in it's game against Detroit September 19, with Boston still in the pennant race and unquestionably fighting their utmost to win."

Fined for Disorderly Conduct.

Pleading guilty to charges of disorderly conduct, Daniel Lynch and Harold Green of this city were fined $10 and costs when they faced Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley in police court this morning. They were arrested by Patrolman William Lister as they left a Beaver interurban car at the Broadway terminal at 1 o'clock this morning.

Fultz Loses Fight

Overrule Defense Motion.

The commission first overruled the motion of the defense to dismiss the charges on the grounds that they were filed under a section of the general code that specifies a hearing must be held in five days after facts are cited to the civil service body and then, in its decision says:

"It is the judgment of this commission that the causes stated in the order of removal made by Wallace L. Fogo, mayor, removing John H. Fultz from the office of chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, for the reasons presented is fully sustained by the evidence."

The text of the decision follows:

"The civil service commission of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, met this 10th day of January, 1927, pursuant to order taken at the close of hearing, to consider the evidence presented and render its decision in the case of the removal of John H. Fultz as chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, by Mayor Wallace L. Fogo.

"The following members were present: D. S. McLean, president; Harry Hammond, A. C. Fogo.

"The motion to dismiss is made under the provisions of Section 468-19, providing for a nearing by the commission within five (5) days after filing of appeal in cases of suspensions. The commission finds that the case now under consideration, is a case of removal from office and is governed by provisions of Section 486-17 A, requiring hearing within 30 days.

"The motion to dismiss is therefore overruled.

Commission's Findings.

"The commission then proceeded to consider the evidence in support of the charges made. After due consideration thereof, the commission finds:

"Charge No. 1—Conduct unbecoming an officer.

"In substantiation of this charge the evidence shows that on the ninth day of December, 1926, James Pugia was under arrest as was shown by the mayor's criminal docket, No. 24, page 63; title of case State of Ohio vs. James Pugia; charge, possessing liquor unlawfully; was tried, found guilty. Case dismissed for lack of sufficient evidence. A bottle containing a small quantity of white colored liquid was offered as evidence. Upon inquiry by Mayor Fogo if the bottle was his, Pugia assented but added, 'Not so much last night.' Evidence shows that at this point John H. Fultz started across the room in a threatening manner and said 'G— D— you Pugia, you have told enough lies on me.' At this point the mayor intervened and ordered John H. Fultz to sit down and directed that Pugia be dismissed. The mayor then told John H Fultz that he was tired of having such cases before him when there was not sufficient evidence.

"It is therefore the judgment of the commission that the evidence offered in support of charge No. 1 is sufficient and that same is sustained.

"Charge No. 2—Disrespect to your superior officers.

"The judgment of the commission is clear upon the point that the conduct of the said John H. Fultz, as chief of police, at the hearing in question, as shown by the undisputed evidence in the case, was wholly unreasonable, unwarranted and amounting in law to insubordination, disrespect to superior officer and has furnished justifiable cause to sustain charge No. 2.

"Charge No. 3 — Disobeying orders given by your superior officer.

"The undisputed evidence shows that the said John H. Fultz took possession of the bottle used as evidence in the trial of James Pugia and refused to return same to mayor when directed by him to do so. We hold that the court's authorities supersede those of the chief of police in such cases, and the refusal of said John H. Fultz to comply with the order of the mayor amounts to flagrant disobedience of positive orders, and charge No. 3 is sustained.

Mayor's Order Affirmed.

"It is the judgment of this commission that the causes stated in the order of removal made by Wallace L. Fogo, removing John H. Fultz from the office of chief of police of the city of Wellsville, Ohio, for reasons presented is fully sustained by the evidence.

"It is therefore ordered that the order of Wallace L. Fogo as mayor, removing from office John H. Fultz as chief of police be and the same is hereby affirmed and said John H. Fultz be and he is hereby removed from office as chief of police, said order to be in force and take effect from the date of said order of removal by Mayor W. L. Fogo, to wit: December 9, 1926.

"It is further ordered that the secretary of this commission cause Mayor W. L. Fogo and said John H. Fultz to be duly notified of the judgment of the commission, and its order, in relation to said matter as above set forth.

"City of Wellsville, Ohio.
"Civil Service Commission.
"DWIGHT McLEAN, president.
"HARRY HAMMOND.
"A. C. FOGO.
"Attest: Grattan V. Dugan, secretary."

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Story of Couzens' Fortune Told in Tax Appeals Suit

DETROIT, Jan. 12.—The story of Senator James Couzens' fortune which jumped from $900 to more than $29,000,000 in 13 years, was told today in the governments $34,0000,000 tax suit against former stockholders of the Ford Motor company.

A stipulation signed by Couzens and read at the hearing by the senator's attorney, former Judge Arthur Lacy, showed that Couzens invested $1,000 in the Ford Motor company at the time of its organization in June, 1903. He borrowed $100 of this from his sister, Mrs. Rosetta V. Hauss, however, and carried $100 worth of stock in her name. The $1,000 was the down payment on a block of 25 shares of stock then valued at $2,500.

COUNCIL PLANS STREET WORK

Preliminary Legislation Enacted by Solons at Recent Meeting.

Probably two miles of street improvement will be done in Lisbon during the spring and summer months, according to plans of the village council. Preliminary legislation with this end in view has been approved.

Whether the street surfacing will be of concrete, paving block or Willite will be left to the property owners. Improvement notices are to be served on property owners within the next few weeks.

Streets that are to be graded and surfaced are: Green street from Lincoln way to Washington street; Lincoln avenue from Lincoln way to Washington; an extension of probably 400 feet to the west end of Washington street; Water street from South Market to Lincoln avenue and the intersection of the Erie railroad; Jefferson street from Chestnut south to the P. L. & W. railway yards; Blocksom street from Lincoln way to Washington street; Vine street from Chestnut south to Washington; Pritchard avenue from Chestnut street south to East Lincoln way.

The improvement of Beaver street from the North Market street intersection south to Water street will be considered by the council at an early meeting.

Surveys have about been completed, and plans, specifications and estimates will be filed with council within the next month.

TWO DAMAGE CASES DISMISSED

Two damage actions totalling $75,000 that have been pending in common pleas court since Sept. 9, 1924, against the Ohio Harmony Electric Co., have been dismissed for lack of prosecution. Judgment has been rendered by Judge Jones against the plaintiffs for the costs in both actions.

In a $50,000 damage action Margaret Dunn was plaintiff, and in an action for $25,000 damages Madeline Dunn, by her next friend, Margaret Dunn, was the plaintiff. Since the cases were filed, the plaintiffs have failed to prosecute the action, and the dismissal was on a motion made by counsel for the defendant company, and sustained by the court.

Divorce Action Filed.

Through her counsel, Metzgar, McCarty & McCorkhill of Salem, Minnie Simpson has filed a divorce petition in common pleas court against her husband, William Simpson, of Washingtonville.

The couple were married at Washingtonville April 20 1899. Mrs. Simpson charges her husband with extreme cruelty.

Leave To File.

Leave has been granted the county commissioners to file an answer on or before January 26 in the $5,000 damage case now pending against the board wherein Vincent Miller is plaintiff. The plaintiff is represented by Attorney K. L. Cobourn of Salem.

CLARKSON GRANGE OFFICERS NAMED

At a recent meeting of Clarkson grange No. 1802, Glenn Gaston was installed as master; Clyde Gibson as overseer and John Gaston as lecturer, the installation being in charge of Past Master Denver S. Williams.

Because of the death of Carlos Vaughn, the grange ordered the charter draped for a period of 30 days. Mr. Vaughn, who was an active member of the grange, died recently.

Trustees were elected as follows: Kim Crawford, three years; Grover Williams, two years, and Clyde Gibson, one year.

Because of the fact that the officers have not been able to connect with the desired speakers for the regular Clarkson institute for the date of January 13 and 14 the institute has been deferred until the 25th and 26th.

CRIMINAL CASES LISTED FOR TRIAL

Following a conference between Judge W. F. Lones and Prosecuting Attorney R. M. Brookes, the early part of next week will be given over to criminal court work in No. 1 court room.

Only 10 cases where pleas of not guilty have been entered remain to be disposed of, four pleas of guilty and sentences passed when defendants were arraigned before Judge Lones Tuesday.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

A few months after they were married her husband abandoned her, according to a petition in divorce filed in common pleas court by Attorney P. V. Mackall of East Liverpool on behalf of Margaret Dillard against her husband, George Dillard.

The petition declares the couple were married at Lisbon in the early part of 1922. Wilful absence for a period of over three years is charged in the petition.

Agrees To Settle Claim.

In the case of the state of Ohio on relation of Lucy Wisler against Otto H Segesman, which was filed in common pleas court July 10 last, the plaintiff has agreed to a full settlement of her claim of $750. The payment of this money is to secured by the defendant posting bond, and upon the payment of the costs in the action.

Judament Asked.

The Arrow Gasoline company, of Salem, has filed its petition in court against W. E. Murray and Virginia Murray, seeking judgment on a demand note for $175 and interest from Dec. 8 last.

Alimony Granted.

Temporary alimony of $12 per week has been granted by the court in the divorce case of Anna Landis against her husband, Guy Landis, payable weekly and to begin January 15. Of this money $5 is to be paid to the account of a bill for furniture.

ECONOMY SOUGHT BY TAX PROBERS

The report of the special state tax commission, which is to be submitted to the legislature sometime during the initial session, will contain recommendations for administrative reforms in the state government looking toward economy, Sam T. Mallison, secretary of the commission announced today. These recommendations will be contained in the first section of the report and will be submitted to the law-makers probably this week.

The second section of the report, to be submitted later, will deal with recommendations as to the raising of revenues, giving the legislature the benefit of what the commission has learned from its prolonged investigation and study of all forms of taxation.

Mr. Mallison gave out the information in response to requests from newspaper men for knowledge as to when the commission's report would be submitted. The report, he said, would be held in strict confidence by members of the commission until it had been delivered to the legislature. Then it will be available for publication in newspapers.

ACCUSED WELLSVILLE MEN POST BONDS OF $40,000

COURT ASKS LARGE SUM IN BRIBERY CASE

Counsel for Rocco Carbicella and Frank Fusco Protests.

BOTH RE-INDICTED

State Charges They Offered $390 to Sheriff Wright.

Rocco Carbicella and Frank Fusco, of Wellsville, re-indicted by the January grand jury on charges of offering a bribe of $390 to Sheriff George Wright in an effort, it is alleged, to persuade the officer to "lay off" the Patrolman James Kenney murder investigation, have been placed under bonds of $40,000 each.

Opposition to such a heavy bond was voiced by Attorney W. A. O'Grady, of defense counsel.

"The prosecuting attorney must elect under which indictment the men will next be brought to trial, and I can see no reason why such a heavy bond should be demanded at this time when the men are already under heavy bond," said Attorney O'Grady.

When the two men were previously indicted for an attempt to bribe Sheriff Wright the court placed the bonds at $5,000 each.

The law provides that bondsmen must be worth at least double the amount of the bond, and in this case the $5,000 bond would be equal to $10,000 in each case, or a total of $20,000.

Under the re-indictment the bond was placed at $5,000 in each case, and the former bond was not disturbed. This then increases the bonds to $40,000.

Under the murder indictment, the court set the bond at $20,000 in the Carbicella case or equal to $40,000. As a result Carbicello and Fusco have been bonded to the extent of $80,000, about the largest ever demanded in a criminal action in this county in recent years.

AUTHORITIES LAUNCH DRIVE ON BLACKHANDS

Arrest Yorkville Man Following Two Slayings.

OTHERS SOUGHT

Said to be Operating in Eastern Ohio.

What is believed by Brooke county and Steubenville authorities to be an important link in the murder of Dr. Delfino, Follansbee and Steubenville physician, on the Ohio river highway opposit Steubenville seven weeks ago, and that of Nick Pelligrini, 46, Steubenville fruit merchant, who was found murdered Monday evening, was the arrest of Frank Restango, 39, an Italian, at Yorkville last night.

Restango, believed by the authorities to be the leader of a supposed blackhand ring, operating in eastern Ohio and the Panhandle of West Virginia, was arrested as he entered his Yorkville home last night. Authorities stated that Restango had not been home for three days, and expressed opinion that he has been in hiding since the Pelligrini murder, said to have been committed late Saturday or early Sunday morning. The suspect refused to talk when questioned, but a query made by his wife, in which she said: "Where are you taking him, to Wellsburg?' was greeted with significance by the authorities making the arrest.

He was taken to Wellsburgh immediately last evening, where he will be held in the Brooke county jail for questioning, relative to the fatal shooting of Delfino and Pelligrini.

Officials have been seeking Restango for the past three days, and when it was learned that he was away from home, officers were stationed at his home to impede his entrance. His arrest last night was made as he stepped on the porch of his home.

Sheriff Robert M. Lowe, of Brooke county stated last night that two other arrests were made at Follansbee last night, in connection with the blackhand investigation. However, no names will be given out until officials arrest others said to be connected with the alleged ring.

Mrs. O. H Moore will be the leader. The third chapter of the story, "At the Foot of No Man," will be read by Mrs. T. H. Scheets. Ladies of the church are invited to attend the session.

RAIL POLICE MAKE SECOND THEFT ARREST

Abe Katz Charged With Receiving Stolen Property.

HEARING MONDAY

Local Junk Dealer Posts $2,000 Bond for Appearance.

Second arrest in connection with efforts of Pennsylvania Railroad police to break up an alleged "theft ring" which, it claimed, has been responsible for the removal of brass and other equipment from the railroad property was made last night after rail authorities had filed charges of receiving stolen property against Abe Katz, local junk dealer.

Katz was arraigned before Mayor W. L. Fogo and posted bond of $2,000 for his appearance on Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock for a hearing before the mayor.

Police indicated today that there will be additional arrests in the case.

Americans are Ordered to Leave Fukien Province.

MISSION SEIZED

Plans Made to Hold International Settlement at Shanghai.

PEKING, Jan. 12—Preparations for the vacuation of all American missionaries from Fukien province were ordered today by Consul Price in a message to the American legation here.

The consul's report indicated that the enmity of the Nationalist troops is being aroused against all foreigners by professional agitators.

The American mission at Shahwu, Fukien province, has been seized by the Nationalist troops.

It is understood that American officials here are not in agreement with the British relinquishment of the Hankow concession, and that every possible means will be employed to hold the international settlement at Shanghai against Chinese occupation, should an attack be made.

CHICAGO seeks to control crime by preventing sale of pistols. As well try to stop bootlegging by forbidding sale of bottles. You can keep honest men, not criminals, from getting deadly weapons.

Chicago bandits operate with gas bombs and machine guns and it is ridiculous to talk about keeping little pistols from them. If necessary pistol bootleggers would appear and supply the demand at higher prices.

To discourage crime, put those that have once used a pistol where they will never again use it, this side of the River Jordan.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Despite the expectations of an early decrease in the New York federal reserve bank, industrial stocks were under selling pressure in arly trading today, and the trend of values was downward. The railroad shares made a better showing, with Atchison and the Northwestern rail stocks the centers of interest in that section of the market.

The professionals who were "looking for weak spots" threw a good volume of selling orders into the motor shares list at the beginning of trading. Hudson declined sharply to 53 for a new 2 point loss, while Hupp, Willys Overland and Studebaker were deflected fractionally downward. As a rule the offerings were well absorbed, and prices were inclined to snap back from the low levels of the first half hour.

The 4 per cent call loan renewal rate appears to be the established rate for the current period. Meanwhile the marking down of bankers' acceptance rates and the softening of time money rates has ushered in the period of easy money which usually appears at this time of year.

Slight progress was made in a few of the independent oil stocks, including Shell Union, Barnsdall, Marland, Phillips Petroleum and Skelly. The Standard Oil of Indiana cut gasoline a cent a gallon in its territory today, but the oil markets were reported as firm in the other districts.

The commodity markets were firm with cotton up about 5 points and the principal grains fractionally higher. Industrial reports were unchanged, with higher bookings reported for the steel mills and a waiting policy in other industries.

Asked if there was any truth in the report that "Peaches" plans to act as chief hostess at a fashionable Broadway night club owned by Texas Guinan after her trial is over, Mrs. Heenan said there was not. She admitted that Miss Guinan had invited 'Peaches to her home the other evening, saying it was the first night "Peaches" had been out in weeks, but "Peaches' was home at eleven and made no agreement or arrangement with the night club owner.

"Keep away from Broadway, I advised Babe," said Mrs. Heenan, "you're not the Broadway type, dear. Keep away from old men, and when this trial is over go back to the younger crowd, those wholesome happy boys and girls you used to know."

Landis Makes Baseball History Today In Scandal Decision

ELKS IN FIRST PLACE AS SALINEVILLE DOWNS SALEM LEAGUERS

Buck Weaver, Former White Sox Star, Also May Learn His Fate

Commissioner Faces Task of Deciding Whether Risberg and Gandil, or 31 Prominent Diamond Figures Told the Truth.

By Copeland C. Burg.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Judge K. M. Landis, makes baseball history today.

The snow-crowned czar of the diamond game brings to a conclusion, by decision, his $20,000 investigation of charges that the Chicago White Sox "bought and paid for" a "thrown" series with the Detroit Tigers in 1917

The baseball commissioner faced the task of deciding whether Charles "Swede" Risberg and Arnold "Chick" Gandil, former White Sox stars ousted in the 1919 scandal, or 31 prominent diamond figures, past and present, told the truth.

Risberg and Gandil charged members of the Chicago American league team put $45 in a "pool" to pay the Tigers for handing them four games. The 31 accused players testified before Landis the Sox merely "gave the money" to the Tigers as a reward for Detroit's victories over the Boston club, then at the heels of the Chicago club.

Complete exoneration of the accused men is expected. It is hardly in the cards, a majority contend, that Landis will uphold the traducement painted by the ousted "Black Sox" pair.

At the same time Judge Landis' known penchant for the unusual and spectacular and the fact that the accusers had little at stake, while the careers of the accused were placed in jeopardy, has created the impression in some quarters the charges will be sustained.

Among the players involved, many of them still prominent in baseball, are four managers—Ray Schalk, new White Sox pilot, Donie Bush of the Pittsburgh Pirates, John Collins of the Des Moines club of the Western league, and Oscar Vitt of the Hollywood team, Pacific Coast league.

Eddie Collins, the former White Sox manager, now with the Philadelphia Jackmen; Clarence Rowland, manager of the Six in 1917 and now an American league umpire, and Kid Gleason, coach of the Mackmen, are other well known players who face the bar today.

In addition to the verdict in the Risberg-Gandil investigation, Judge Landis may also decide today the fate of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, former Detroit and Cleveland managers, and George "Buck" Weaver, White Sox star banned in the 1919 scandal.

Cobb and Speaker were "ousted" from baseball as a result of charges of "Dutch" Leonard, one-time Detroit pitcher, involving them in an alleged betting coup and a "thrown" game between Detroit and Cleveland in September, 1919. Attorneys for Cobb and Speaker are reported demanding a face-to-face meeting with Leonard, and Landis may rule at this time whether or not he intends to re-open that case.

Weaver, who refused to substantiate the charges of Risberg, asserting he did not even contribute to the "golden pot," climaxed his appearance before Landis with a request for reinstatement in baseball. His formal application is now in the hands of the commissioner.

That the commissioner will at this time re-open either the Cobb-Speaker or Weaver cases appeared doubtful. He has repeatedly stated he has no plans for such action.

Ex-Kings Meet In Gotham Ring

PAUL BERLENBACH

MIKE McTIGUE

Paul Berlenbach and Mike McTigue, both formerly light heavyweight champions, will meet at Madison Square Garden, New York City, Jan. 29. Berlenbach took the title from McTigue and lost it to Jack Delaney.

DATE IS FIXED FOR DEMPSEY'S RING COMEBACK

May 26, at Yanks Park, Tentatively Selected by Rickard.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—Jack Dempsey's mooted come back—if, when or at all—has been set tentatively by Tex Rickard for the night of Thursday, May 26, at the Yankee stadium, according to skeletonized plans said to have been outlined by the promoter in a long distance conversation with Dempsey two days ago. Dempsey's opponent will be any one of five men—Jack Sharkey, Jimmy Maloney, Jack Delaney, Paolino or Paul Berlenbach—and the winner will qualify without further question for the title shot with Gene Tunney in September.

No definite date will be named for the Dempsey match until two factors are determined. They are, listed in the order of their importance, the question of whether Dempsey will fight at all and the approximate location of the New York Yankees on the day in question. The latter will be determined by the official American league schedule to be drafted in February.

However, Dempsey's presumed reappearance under colors will not take place later than the first week in June, since Rickard is under contract to Tunney to name the latter's challenger on June 15. Rickard expects to know what it is all about by that time—whether or not Dempsey's plan to challenge for the title is a lot of soup meat; the real intentions of Jack Delaney about playing with the other inmates and, if so, whether he really belongs in the first place; and the respective capabilities of Sharkey, Maloney, Paolino, Berlenbach and sundry challengers, alleged and otherwise.

Rickard will know the worst about Paolino when the Spaniard returns from Cuba to meet Knute Hanson, a match that has been arranged with the tacit hope that Knute doesn't choose the nearest exit and run, not walk. The Knute is supposed to be a fistic squirrel; he can fight but you have to catch him first.

Assuming that Paolino survives this awful carnage, the next step will be a match with either Maloney or Sharkey in February. Maloney generally is understood to be favored for the shot with Sharkey to be held in reserve for a rally with the winner in March.

This series will bring the situation pretty well up to date, only Delaney and Berlenbach being unaccounted for. However, they will get some action somewhere, provided Delaney begins to play smart and joins the line forming on the left. He probably will be substituted in the scheme of things for Paolino if the latter looks the part of a tramp against Hanson, which is not at all unlikely. On the strength of his record, Delaney cannot be ignored by any man who wants to develop the ultimate and final challenger.

Offhand, the writer would pick Delaney as the fill-in for Dempsey at the Yankee stadium match. My impression is and has been that the ex-champion will turn up very absent when the show down comes.

AL ZILL NOW MATCHMAKER

Will Work For A. C. Wilson, Race-Ring Promoter.

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 12.—Al Zill's New Year's resolution—henceforth, now and forever, to have nothing to do with the promoting and matchmaking end of the boxing game—has gone the way of the usual "I firmly resolves."

Ten days following his solemn declaration the ex-promoter and matchmaker let it be known today that he had slightly modified that resolution to read something like this:

"Henceforth, now and forever, I will not put any of my own money in the promoting game, but I will do what I can to make some mony for myself and any promoter that will furnish backing."

With this announcement Zill gave it out this morning that he had reached an agreement with Austin C. Wilson, prominent automobile racing promoter, whereby Wilson would become the promoter of local boxing affair and Al would do the matchmaking. Wilson is to furnish the capital and Zill is to line up attractions that will either put a severe dent in Aust's exchequer or, should fate be a little kinder, swell it beyond the fondest expectations.

Messrs. Wilson and Zill have some well laid plans to put the fight game back on its tottering limbs during the remainder of the winter. Foremost of these is the declaration by Wilson that money will be no object in securing talent that will compare favorably with the best to be seen in Cleveland.

Movin' On

STUFFY McINNIS will leave the family doorstep at his Philadelphia home in the early days of April, start down the street in one direction and then change his mind.

Stuffy, who spent the best years of this baseball life with the Athletics at Shibe Park, was signed this winter to manage the Philadelphia Nationals, so he can't be blamed if he starts for the wrong park now and then.

STUFFY McINNIS

McInnis was signed by the Athletics in 1908 just after leaving high school at Gloucester, Mass. He became a star almost over night and was a member of the famous $100,000 infield. He broke into four world series. He was traded to the Red Sox in 1918, being the last member of the quartet to go. The Sox traded him to Cleveland in 1922. He moved to the Braves in 1923, was released early in 1925, joined the Pirates and helped them win the league and world pennants.

He played through the season of 1921 with a fielding average of .999, making but one error in the entire campaign.

Fight Results

AT PORTLAND, Me.:—Laddie Lee, of Worcester, Mass., knocked out Johnny Saxon, of Bridgeport, Conn., in the fifth round.

Tommy O'Toole, of Portland, won decision from Paul Murphy, of Manchester, N. H.

AT ALBANY, N. Y.:—Jack De Mave, of Hoboken, won decision over Jack Warren, of Chicago, twelve rounds.

AT WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.:—Sergeant Jack Adams, of New York, won decision over Wild Bill Reed, of Columbus, O.

Bobby Marriott, of Philadelphia, knocked out Teddy Taylor, of Lake Worth, Fla., in the fourth round.

AT LOS ANGELES:—Mushy Callahan, junior welterweight champion, won decision over Joe Jawson, of Milwaukee, ten rounds.

SAINER, HERBERT ARE CUE VICTORS

F. Sainer defeated N. Johnson, 75 to 52, and Herbert won from Bennett, 75 to 63, in matches last night in the American pocket billiard tournament.

Lantz and Osborne will clash in the opening tilt tonight, followed by Moore and Reney.

CARTWRIGHT'S PASSERS LAND 30-28 CONTEST

Mullins Quint in Third Place; Damascus Second.

SPRINGING one of the big surprises of the campaign to date Tom Cartwright's Salineville county league team last night toppled the Salem Mullins Body quint, 30 to 28, and the victory boosted the East Liverpool Elks a little along the road to first half championship honors.

The engagement was staged at Addison Hall, Salineville, and brought out a record crowd.

The Salemites, who have been without the services of "Red" Matticks, star center, failed to develop the mighty offensive that, in the early sections of the first half, gave them a commanding first place position. Without Matticks, the Salem five last week bowed to Damascus.

Maher, Grundy and Raffle collaborated in Salineville's attack on the basket, Maher sinking the ball four times and Grundy and Raffle three times apiece.

Jenkins was the chief point maker for the visitors, bucketing the leather five times while the best Hawkins and Sidinger could do was two apiece.

The Salem five held the edge in the first half, leading, 16 to 13, at the midway intermission period, but Cartwright brought his squad out in front in the concluding quarters, finishing ahead by two points.

The defeat puts Salem in third place, with Damascus now trailing the Elks by one full game.

Lisbon will win another game tonight by forfeit from East Palestine and go into a .500 berth right behind Salem.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The first effect of having the head held mechanically in a fixed position during the back swing is that the back swing shortens greatly. In other words, if you sweep the club away back you also let the head go with it because if you held your head still and took the club back that way something would have to break. Thus it becomes obvious that the reason the par golfer uses a short back swing is not because he is sold on the advantages of the short swing, but for the simple reason that he holds his head still. That makes it automatic. Another phase of this is how solidly the weight goes against the right leg, and yet at the top of the back swing you feel a considerable weight resting on the left toe too. It might appear that more weight was on the left foot than the right, but this is because you have hold of the ground only with the left toe. The weight really is about evenly divided, with perhaps 60 per cent of it on the right foot.

POWER QUINT RE-ORGANIZED

Strong Squad Lined up for Remainder of Season.

The Power class five of the Methodist Episcopal church was re-organized for the remainder of the season at a meeting last night.

The Powers will be on the floor the rest of the season with a much faster team than last year's, with the following players already signed: Bucher, C. Nease, Paul Jester (Captain), E. Rockhold, C. Coleman, W. Ashbaugh, Reed, E. Cochrane, Orland Cunningham.

Dewey Geren, manager of last year's team, was re-elected pilot for the present campaign with Earl Cochrane as assistant manager.

Recht Defeats Webb In Three Cushion Match at Academy

Jack Recht defeated Jimmie Webb, 25 to 20, in a thrilling three cushion billiard match last night at the Academy parlors.

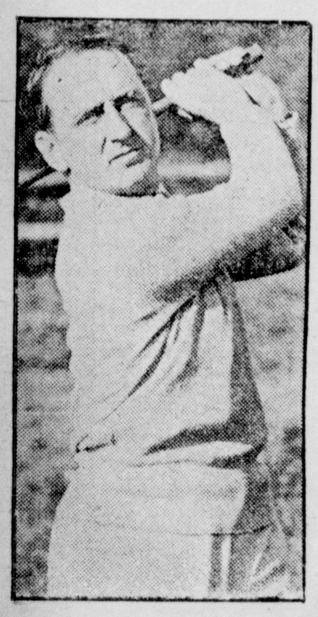

Recht turned in a high run of four, Webb was out in front until the last billiard and appeared to be a winner, but Recht overtook him and won in a spectacular finish.

Tom Connelly and Dutch Berger are scheduled to play tonight at 8 o'clock.

What Pretty Girl Did For Sick Stomach

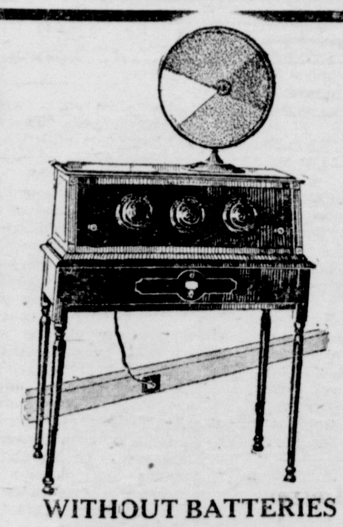

Miss E. Rich of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I don't know what the cause was, but every few days my stomach would feel all bloated up with gas, my appetite was poor and I felt sick to my stomach—to say nothing of headaches.

"I never thought of using Carter's Little Liver Pills until nothing seemed to help After using Carter's I felt relieved at once—and now as soon as my stomach 'talks' back I answer with Carter's and have the last word."

CERAMIC BOOKS MENJOU FILM

Ricardo Cortez Also Appears in "Sorrows of Satan."

Satan was first represented in human form during the ninth century. This curious fact was recently brought to light by the Paramount Long Island Studio's Research department.

The representation was on an ivory diptych of the time of Charles the Bold.

Since then a long line of painters—Schongauer, Durer, Michelangelo, Titan, Raphael, Rubens, Pussin, Van Dyck, Breughel, Gustave Dore—and innumerable book illustrators and other artists have produced their conception of the spirit of evil. Modern artists—Felicien Rops, Max Klinger and Franz Stuck—have embodied the Evil One as a female. Victor Hugo thought the Devil to be a woman.

It was necessary to collect a mass of data and paintings so that D. W. Griffith could have something with which to work when production began on his version of Marie Corelli's book, "Sorrows of Satan," which opens a three-day run at the Ceramic theatre tomorrow.

In his treatment of the story, Mr. Griffith follows Miss Corelli's conception of Satan. He is pictured as a polished man of the world, tempting those with whom he associates. But — in order to introduce Satan make his motives clear it has been found necessary to go back to the legend of Lucifer's expulsion from Heaven.

Adolphe Menjou as Satan, Ricardo Cortez, Carol Dempster and Lya de Putti are featured in "Sorrows of Satan." John Russell and George Hull adapted the Corelli novel. Forest Halsey scenarized it. "Sorrows of Satan, following "That Royle Girl," is Griffith's second film for Paramount.

Haskin's Letter

once president of the United States and is now at the head of its judiciary. They may get themselves presented at the White House and enjoy the privilege of shaking the hand that rules the most important sector of the world and they may see cabinet members, generals, and admirals, world without end.

Then, too, there are many side trips to be taken from Washington that in themselves repay one for a trip across the continent. Arlington, Alexandria, Mount Vernon, the beautiful Potomac country, are immediately at hand, and not far away are a dozen great battlefields and scenic attractions not to be found anywhere else in the United States.

One important feature of the convention bureau as it is now exemplified in various cities is service. It is not so many years since a city might invite some national organization to hold an annual meeting within its confines and then forget all about it. The delegates would gather and find that no arrangements had been made to take care of them and that they might not be able to get into an hotel unless they had made reservations individually. Nowadays the convention bureau engages hotel accommodations, has representatives on hand to welcome the incoming hosts, supplies an information bureau, and has skilled men and women to handle registration, et cetera.

Washington business men who support the city's convention bureau say that it is a good investment. They have found that it pays dividends at a rate that would shame the biggest natural monopoly in the country and their only complaint is that not all who benefit from the bureau's work contribute to its support.

And, speaking of Washington as a convention city, few people know or will be willing to believe that the city ranks as one of the first four cities in the United States in the matter of hotel facilities. Such is the case. The others are New York, Chicago, and Atlantic City. Likewise it is to be noted that Washington now has a magnificent auditorium, thanks largely to Col. Robert N. Harper, who had both the vision and the energy to put over that vital municipal enterprise.

Cleveland Votes Use of Paddle On Unruly Pupils

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 12.—Local school children are to be disciplined according to the ancient manner—with a paddle.

By a vote of four to three, members of the school board have decided a controversy which has raged here for months by ordering unruly students to be punished with the rod.

Board members who voted for the paddle, declared that school discipline must be maintained "in view of the breakdown in home control of youth."

INGRAM FILM PLEASES CROWD

American Theatre Offers "Four Horsemen of Apocalypse.

Rex Ingram's well remembered screen classic, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," one of the greatest films ever produced by the industry is now showing at the American theatre. The picture, unsurpassed as an artistic record of its time, is the film that brought the late Rudolph Valentino to fame. Valentino plays opposite Alice Terry in this picture, and in it does some of the best work he ever contributed to the screen.

An enormous cast was employed by Director Ingram with phenomenal success in translating the popular Ibanez novel to the screen. Its first showing aroused unprecedented enthusiasm in New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Los Angeles and other film centers, where it was characterized by the critics as one of the great pictures of all time.

June Mathis made the adaptation for this Rex Ingram production for Metro-Goldwyn.

DANCE GARDENS OPEN THURSDAY

Rock Springs Pavilion Parties Friday and Saturday, Too.

Large crowds are expected to attend the dances to be conducted at Rock Springs' Park, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, when "Virginia Gardens," the new pavilion, will be opened for the winter season.

The dance on Thursday night is for employes of the Homer Laughlin China company, members of their families and friends. The dances on Friday and Saturday evenings will be public affairs. Sam Smolin's Radio orchestra, of Akron, an eight-piece organization, will play.

Ample parking space has been provided in the park for automobiles. Six guards will watch over the machines during the dance. Cabs may enter from the rear entrance to the park, Sixth street and Indiana avenue, or at the main entrance. Street cars from East Liverpool will make the loop, running to the park entrance for the accommodation of the visitors.

Public dances will be held every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, while the pavilion will be open for private dances on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Progress is being made on the new coaster ride under construction in the park. This ride will be completed by early spring. Other amusement features are to be installed before the playground opens for the summer season on or about Decoration Day.

HARMONY RULES PARTY CAUCUSES

Republican members of the legislature in caucus session last night at Charleston named M. Z. White for presiding officer of the senate, while Vernon E. Johnson was named as the majority candidate for speaker of the house of delegates.

Democrats named Harry P. Henshaw, of Berkley county, as their candidate for president of the senate and L. T. Harvey, of Braxton, as the choice for speaker.

Selections were made by acclamation.

Recommendation Is Made in Report of State Superintendent.

Advocacy of the county as the school unit, forms the chief subject of discussion in the recommendations contained in the biennial report of George M. Ford, state superintendent of schools, just submitted to Governor Gore. For sometime representatives of Mr. Ford's department have been traveling over the state and visiting education boards to explain the details of the county unit plan. Bills to take care of the matter have been drawn up for submission to the legislature. The plan as advocated by Mr. Ford, would not eliminate the school district boards, but would serve primarily for the purpose of equalizing educational opportunities in all counties.

"The vital equalization factor is missing under the existing system of financing the schools," said Mr. Ford in his report. The statement is followed by the presentation of statistics proving the point.

There are two large places at which the schools are losing an unusually large percentage of their pupils, says the report. These places are at the end of the sixth grade and at the end of the eighth grade. Twenty-five per cent of the sixth grade pupils do not go on to the seventh grade and 52 per cent of the eighth grade pupils do not enter high school.

This mortality, as it is termed, is heaviest in the one, two and three room schools. In these schools there are only 13 per cent as many pupils in the eighth grade as there are in the first grade. Whereas, in the city schools, there are 52 per cent as many pupils in the eighth grade as in the first grade.

The reorganization of the school system proposed by Mr. Ford and embodied in carefully drawn bills to be presented to the legislature embraces a county board of education that would effect a consolidation of district school budgets into a county school budget as a basis for laying a county school levy to guarantee the minimum standard of school service, and the creation of a distributable state school fund of approximately one-third to one-half of teachers' fund and maintenance fund.

WOMAN'S CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Members of the Chester Woman's club met yesterday with Mrs. R. A. Douglass at her home in Louisiana avenue. Sealed program was given.

Music was given under the direction of H. F. Laughlin, accompanied by his son, Robert Laughlin. Piano duet was rendered by Rev. and Mrs. W. J. H. McKnight.

Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, East Liverpool, spoke on the subject, "Building of a Soul as the Most Important Thing in This Life."

Social hour was enjoyed during which refreshments were served by members of the social committee.

How to Build Healthy Flesh

Gives Added Strength, Too

If you are thin and drawn-looking and tire easily or are not up to proper weight, you are undernourished—the food you eat fails to build energy and muscle and health as it should.

Your system needs the right kind of digestive stimulation—must have it if you want the rugged appearance of health and the power to resist disease and the strains of every day tasks.

A remarkable stimulant-tonic has been devised for just such conditions as these. It is delightfully palatable and is prepared by an old Virginia concern in business for nearly a century. Druggists and physicians have come to know this stimulant as "Old Monticello Tonic." Get a bottle today from your druggist, take a small wineglass full before your next meal—see how much better you eat—feel the glow of stimulated functions throughout the body. A few days' treatment will bring a quick change in run-down conditions and overcome lack of energy.

SHERIFF LOWE DEFIES GANG

Sheriff Robert M. Lowe, Brooke county, last night affirmed reports that have leaked out since the Nick Pelligrini murder that he has been advised of a plot to take his life because of his activities in running down a murderous criminal gang that has taken heavy toll in the valley.

From his office in Wellsburg, Sheriff Lowe stated he has received four death threats. Although he is accompanied by deputies wherever he goes, he is still pursuing his chase, in running to earth the murderers of Dr. Deigo Delfino, prominent Follansbee and Steubenville physician, shot five times while driving his automobile near Follansbee seven weeks ago.

Four separate threats have been received, he said. The first, a letter came in an indirect way six months ago. The second letter was found in the sheriff's automobile the day following the Dr. Delfino murder. This letter threatened the sheriff's life if he attempted to investigate the murder, or should the arrest of any member of the "society" result from his investigations.

STATE HOSPITAL SWEPT BY FIRE

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Jan .12.—Thirty-three patients in the Williamson hospital narrowly escaped cremation early last night when fire, thought to have started in the offices of the hospital, swept the building and left only the four exterior walls holding a bed of smouldering ruins.

All of the patients were rescued by Williamson firemen with the assistance of hospital staffs and volunteers who in many instances risked their own lives to remove the patients to safety.

The annex buildings of the Presbyterian and First Baptist churches were hurriedly converted into temporary quarters for the patients and those who were unable to be cared for in these quarters were taken into private homes.

Class Meeting Scheduled.

Members of the Bible Searchers' class of the First Methodist Episcopal church will meet tomorrow night in the tabernacle. Mrs. Joseph Allen and Mrs. Dick will be in charge of the program.

Commissioner Mayhew Ill.

J. L. Mayhew, president of the Hancock county court, who has been ill at his home in Indiana avenue, is recovering.

Revival Services Here.

Rev. C. E Rostofer, of Ashtabula, O., preached at the evangelistic services last night in the First Christian church. The meeting was largely attended. Selections were given by the Shingleton quartet.

Mrs. Hettie Sill.

Mrs. Hettie Sill, 60 years old, former resident of East Liverpool, died today at her home in Beaver Falls, Pa.

She is survived by three daughters, also one sister, Mrs. J. W. Spahr, East Liverpool, and one brother, Charles T. Burne, San Monica, Cal.

Mrs. Hager Hostess.

Mrs. Rodney Hager was hostess to members of the Queen Esther class of the First Presbyterian church last night at her home in Carolina avenue. The usual program was carried out.

Mission Society To Meet.

Mrs. R. B. Rutledge will entertain members of the Women's Missionary society of the United Presbyterian church at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at her home in Phoenix avenue.

Baby Clinic Held.

Baby clinic was held yesterday in the Welfare House in Carolina avenue under the direction of Miss Caroline Brown, county health nurse. Local physicians conducted the examinations. These clinics will be held every Tuesday afternoon.

Toll Roads for Japan.

TOKIO.—Toll roads for motor cars will be common in Japan if a bill under consideration by the Home Office is enacted by the Diet. The bill would provide for construction of system highways on which only motor traffic would be allowed but a fee would be charged to each car using the highway.

It would be great if some people talked as well as they do loud.—Mansfield Journal.

A Raw, Sore Throat

eases quickly when you apply a little Musterole. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain and won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. Brings quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Their Color Glands Are Normal and Pigment Keeps Hair Nice Shade and Color

ADVISE TO READERS IF TURNING GRAY

A Simple Home Tonic Starts Youthful Color Returning.

Everyone knows if their color glands and hair roots are active and normal they will continue indefinitely to have rich, natural colored hair entirely free of gray, or off-colored locks, so why use dyes or tints?

A doctor several years ago asked himself this question: "If with certain medicines I can stimulate my patient's other organs, why not rub a stimulatign tonic into the scalp that will revive, strengthen and tone up these inactive glands so that nature in her own inimitable way will resume putting plenty of pigment into the hair tubes? Surely the hair will then again resume its original shade and color regardless of the users age or previous condition of their hair.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY

He didn't want an artificial dye or tint and it of course must be harmless and something that could be used for years and years without the slightest injury to hair or scalp. Just like a tonic that builds up a person's strength after some long wasting illness, he wanted a tonic that would revive and stimulate the inactive, weak, or dormant hair roots and color glands.

Under the name of Lea's Hair Tonic anyone may now purchase the scalp food and tonic be finally perfected. For several years hair dressers and specialists have been using it. Results are so natural, gradual and nice that men as well as women use it.

It doesn't stain the scalp. One's friends seldom notice the gradual change and to test what it will do one need only apply it to some small spot for a week or two and watch results.

Men and women in all walks of life have been amazed at the younger appearance that comes with the disappearance of gray hairs from their head. Evidently one need never become gray if they keep the scalp and roots toned up with an occasional massage with Lea's Hair Tonic.

If any reader desires to try a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic on the maker's absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back, they should purchase a bottle at the drug store or pin a dollar bill to this advertisement and send with name and address plainly written to Lea's Tonic Co., Brentwood, Md. $1 bottles parcels post anywhere with full directions.

No one need have gray or off-colored hair any more.
